CRESCENT BEACH

Those who contributed so generously to the fund for the St. Vincent de Paul Catholic summer camp at Crescent Beach would expedience much merited joy if they could but look in on the forty little children who are enjoying a real vacation away from the city heat. Since the closing of the schools in June, on every other Monday, automobiles have been bringing these Hartford little children for two weeks' vacation at this ideal spot at the shore. Kind friends give the use of their cars and the children start off under the careful supervision which is maintained until, at the end of two weeks, they are taken back to their homes, happier and healthier. It is worth any special effort a trip to Crescent Beach would entail, to visit the children during their long holiday and see what united effort on the part of the friends of these little ones has accomplished.

WESTMINSTER

At the morning worship Sunday the 10th recent news was given from three important mission fields: China, Japan and Turkey. The last was in form of a letter from Rev. Paul Nilson of St. Paul College, Tarsus. There were several present who remembered Mr. Nilson's Sunday in Westminster, during the war, when he spoke morning and evening most earnestly and interestingly concerning that land, using the stereopticon illustrations of people and conditions, telling much not easily forgotten.

Miss Evelyn Anderson who for a number of years has spent summers in the home of Mrs. John Soderberg, was here for July, at the close of her first year of high school, returning to her home in Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 2nd.

Marcus Palmer with his mother from Willimantic, visited Westminster church cemetery lately, getting a new stone at the grave of his grandmother.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hicks have returned to New Rochelle, N. Y., having sold their place (for many years known as the Ladd farm) to a Jewish family.

Benjamin Davies returned early last week from a visit to his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson at Strugrerra Chase, Milford Pike Co., Penn., where Mr. Johnson is laying out a large tract of land into building lots.

Thursday evening Elmer Stalberg gave a radio party to friends, who thus listened to the speech of President Coolidge, accepting his nomination. The radio is so far as known the only one of high power in this section of the town, and was set up by its owner for summer vacation use here.

Edward Burns and his granddaughter, Marie Fisher, who were guests for a week at Rose Cottage, returned to Wolsegton, N. Y., Aug. 9. Miss Fisher found a number of friends who knew her when she was here with her grandmother in the home of her great aunt, Mrs. Frank S. Lynnell, several summers, when she was a small girl.

Last Wednesday, Buell Union, Canterbury W. C. T. U. met for a lawn fete with Miss Baldwin in the southern part of the town. A pleasant informal session on the lawn came first during which Mrs. Emily Bushnell gave some account of the recent trip abroad of her daughter. Delicious refreshments were served in the dining room

Rev. Mr Gollup and members of his church held a 3 p. m. service Sunday at the M. P. church, a continuation of the evangelist services of last spring.

Plainfield guests at the Sunday morning worship the 10th were John Inglis, William Inglis, George Inglis, the last named giving a greatly appreciated solo. Others present were the summer people from Restawhile with Mrs Moody and little son.

Mrs. Martha Warren of Bridgeport, formerly of Westminster, was in town the 10th for a few hours, making the trip by automobile to see her brother, William Davies and his wife at Elm Arch Farm.

Mrs. Charles Barstow entertained as a week end guest her sister from Sommerville, Mass. Three brothers and four sisters have visited Mrs. Barstow this season. A fourth brother in California was unable to come.

Albert Anderson has returned to New York, after several days in the home of John Soderberg.

Mrs. John Berg with her infant who has been a guest in the home of her sister, Mrs. Axel Helstorm, has returned to New York.

The portable house of Charles Dewing was burned on the night of August 10th. The cause of this fire is not known, as there was no electrical storm and Mr. Dewing was in Vermont where he has been for some weeks. The building was burned to the ground with its contents. Mr. Dewing's brother Stephen of California and his nephew, Prof. Dewing of Bowdoin College, Maine, were in Westminster recently in his absence.

NUMBER FOUR

engaged in work on war vessels. At first they resided in Mystic in a house owned by the late John Forsyth on Frazier Street, where they lived until just before Thanksgiving in 1866, when they moved into the house in which Mrs. Mattison now resides, which was built by her husband.

For about two years she was engaged in business making coats and dresses, in a shop on East Main St., occupied now by W. L. Main as a grocery store; she had three or four girls in her employ. She recalls the joy and enthusiasm which prevailed at the re-election of President Lincoln and the lighting of houses and the celebration held in honor of it, then the sad news of his assassination which so soon followed and the universal sorrow which it produced, all the stores being draped in mourning.

Although a staunch democrat, having descended from a line of democratic ancestors, her great-grandfather Baker having served in the Rhode Island legislature from the time he was a young man until retired by the age limit at 71, when he was said to have been more capable than any young man they could get to take his place, Mrs. Mattison was a great admirer of President Lincoln and she thinks President Coolidge is a fine president and would vote for him except that she says she could never go against her own party. Her first vote for president was cast for President Wilson, whom she considers one of the best presidents the country has ever had. She says one of his truest statements was the one where he says in one of his speeches that the confidence of the nations is what we need and that without confidence we are lost. She deplores the lack of confidence which is felt today in those in high places and the unsettled condition of affairs and the unrest which exists, but hopes to live long enough to see confidence restored and peace and harmony again prevailing in the world.

In looking back over her long life, Mrs. Mattison recalls being in Providence when the first test of the use of a telephone between that city and Boston was held in Music Hall, Providence and speaks interestingly of many other notable inventions that have occurred during her lifetime. She uses the telephone frequently and enjoys the radio when it works well. She is looking forward to hearing the speeches incident to the presidential campaign this fall, and to casting her vote for president next November.

Mrs. Mattison has two sisters, both residents of Providence, Mrs. Martha Thompson, who is 82 years old; and the other Mrs. Amy Baker, who will be ninety-nine the 29th of October and who, during the world war, knitted ninety-one face cloths, out of the softest cotton obtainable, for us in wiping off blood when dressing wounds.

Saturday afternoon a number of friends from New London called on Mrs. Mattison as a surprise and brought gifts in honor of her approaching birthday, and she also received many other remembrances from friends and relatives as well as numerous cards from acquaintances.

STATE NUNS PREPARING FOR THEIR YEAR'S WORK

One hundred Sisters of the Order of St. Joseph of the diocese fo Hartford began their annual retreat at the convent of Mary Immaculate, Parkville, Tuesday evening. Rev. William J. Ennis, S. J., connected with the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola, Park avenue, New York city, is the preacher. The retreat will end Aug. 19th, when the ceremonies of profession and reception of applicants for admission to the order will be held. The teacher nuns who have been taking summer courses at the Catholic university, Washington, D. C., returned to Hartford Sunday and are taking part in the retreat at Parkville.

At the same time Rev. Henry T. Kasten, S. J., of Woodstock, Maryland, has been conducting a retreat for the Sisters of Mercy, including those from the Norwich convents, at Mt. St. Joseph academy, Hamilton Heights, Hartford. Father Kasten is professor of dogmatic theology at the College of the Sacred Heart, Woodstock, the house of philosophy and theology for novices of the Jesuit Order of the Maryland-New York province. Two hundred and five Sisters of the diocese have been making the present retreat —the second held at Hamilton Heights this summer. The exercises began last week Wednesday and ended Friday morning.

Here's Real Relief From Mosquito Bites
"All my customers insist on taking it with them on vacation trips," says one New Jersey druggist who has been selling a lot of Moone's Emerald Oil for the plague of Mosquitoes and Black Flies. "They say a single bottle is worth more than all the Citronella and Eucalyptus I've got in my store. And I believe they're right for itching, and all fear of infection and blood-poisoning ceases at once the minute Moone's Emerald Oil is applied."

POLICE CAPTURE YOUTHFUL BURGLARS AT BROOKLYN OUTFITTERS STORE

Three youthful burglars, 7, 9 and 13 years of age, respectively, were nabbed by the local police about 10 o'clock Sunday morning as they were about to make a getaway after burglarizing the Brooklyn Outfitters store on Main street. A local man who keeps his automobile at Swan's garage which is back of the Brooklyn Outfitters store, went to the garage Sunday morning about 10 o'clock to get his car. A girl called his attention to the trio of juvenile burglars and he saw them gain entrance to the store through a rear window. He notified Officer Bernard Keenan at Franklin square and Officer Keenan with Officer Matthew Delaney went to the store.

As the boys were leaving the store through the window they spotted the police and run back and started to get over a low roof. They were cornered by the police and taken to police headquarters. As the boys are under 16 years of age their cases will be disposed of under the provisions of the juvenile court law. Probation Officer Edwin Hill was called in on the case and the boys placed in his keeping. They will be presented before the juvenile court at a session to be held Tuesday evening.

The boys had a "jimmy" with them which they evidently used to force the window. The store safe was left open by the proprietors of the store and in a secret compartment in the safe was found the receipts of Saturday's business. These the boys overlooked. They took one inside box from the safe and got some old coins which were in the box. They scattered papers taken from the safe over the store and had handkerchiefs and shoes piled up ready to take with them. The telephone, a pay station 'phone, which was on the desk, was tipped over and the receiver knocked from its hook. The boys got about twenty-five or thirty pennies from the cash drawer.

It is said the trio have been in trouble before and that they are the boys who got into Pendleton's store and the Self Service store recently. The boys are of Italian parentage.

CHARLES H. WHALEY FOUND DEAD AT HIS HOME

Charles H. Whaley, well known painter and paper hanger, was found dead on the floor at his home, No. 28 Mechanic street, Sunday morning about 11 o'clock. He was last seen alive Friday evening and probably died some time Friday night or early Saturday morning. Mr. Whaley who was popular with the men of the fire department, had been in the habit of visiting the firemen at the central station almost daily. His last visit to the station was Thursday evening.

As Mr. Whaley had been in very poor health for some months and as he lived alone, Fireman Adam Ensling went to his house Sunday morning about 11 o'clock as it was feared that he might have been taken ill. Mr. Ensling knocked at the door and receiving no answer went to one of the windows and partly removing the screen pushed aside the curtain. He saw Mr. Whaley on the floor, dead. Police headquarters was notified and Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve summoned. The medical examiner conducted an investigation after which Undertakers Church and Allen were given permission to remove the body to their undertaking rooms. Death was due to heart trouble.

Mr. Whaley who was about 64 years of age, was taken seriously ill during the early spring and was a patient at the Backus hospital for some weeks. Practically all of his life had been spent in this city. For years he was in the restaurant business and had conducted restaurants in several sections of the city. He was a member of the old time volunteer fire department and after the paid department was organized still maintained a deep interest in the department.

He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whaley and is the last of his immediate family. His wife, who is in poor health, is at present in Centreville, Md. Mr. Whaley intended to go to Centreville September 1 in order to bring his wife to Norwich.

Mr. Whaley was well known throughout the city and was popular with all who knew him. He had a pleasing personality and easily made friends. He was "Capt." Whaley to those to whom he was best known. The news of his death was received with sincere regret by his many acquaintances.

PHARISEE-PUBLICAN PARABLE SUGGESTS FR. MAY'S TEXT

The large congregation assembled for the 7.30 mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday morning heard a practical sermon on true contrition for sin, the preacher being the rector, Rev. M. H. May, who as usual read the low mass. Father May took his text from the gospel for the Sunday, the tenth after Pentecost, which he had just read—the parable of the Pharisee and the Publican, Luke xviii. 9-14. From the contrite cry of the Publican, "O, God, be merciful to me a sinner," he taught the lesson of the humility which should fill the soul of man, realizing his offenses against God. All are sinners—the Scripture declares that even the just man falls seven times daily—but not into mortal sin, otherwise he would not remain just. But he is guilty of those venial sins which dim the brightness of the soul's luster, which weaken the will, so that graver sins may follow.

To restore spiritual brightness, to give back strength, God has provided for man the sacrament of penance. Once man has cried out with the contrite Publican, "God be merciful to me a sinner," when he has confessed his misdeeds and has made a firm purpose of amendment, he, too, will "go down to his house justified" as did the humble Publican. The preacher laid stress upon the importance of being always prepared for death, which often comes so suddenly and so unexpectedly. It is not a sudden death against which the church warns; but dying in a state of sin, unprepared to meet the judgment, hence hazarding the awful fate of being shut out from the presence of God forever.

In giving Holy Communion Father May was assisted by Rev. Myles P. Galvin, the communicants including the members of the Rosary Society, for whom were reserved the pews on the gospel side of the center aisle.

The list of donors to the annual collection at St. Patrick's has been distributed and covers nearly eight closely printed pages—a most convincing proof of the loyalty and generosity of the great number of parishioners.

A suit in the Mrs. M. B. Ring estate was started Saturday when Deputy Sheriff Main of Norwich served the writ.

Mrs. Mary B. Ring, a lifelong resident of Norwich, died in St. Francis hospital, Hartford, July 26. She leaves four children, Charles B. Ring of Springfield, Mass., Miss Mary M., Joseph and Bernard of Norwich. Her will, dated January 29, has been offered for probate before Judge Nelson J. Ayling in Norwich. Last November she conveyed to her daughter a business building in Norwich valued between $30,000 and $40,000.

About that time an application was made to have a conservator appointed over her person and estate. In her will she devised her home, No. 43 Broad street, originally the Nathan G. Gilbert property, Norwich, to her daughter and divided the rest of her estate among her four children. The homestead is valued between $15,000 and $20,000 and the personal estate is estimated at about $10,000. She appointed her son, Bernard, executor, but he has declined to act.

Through Lawyer Augustine Lonergan of Hartford, Charles B. Ring has brought suit against his sister, alleging that his mother was in an enfeebled condition and incapable to transact any business when she conveyed the business block last November to the daughter. Mr. Ring asks that the conveyance be declared null and void and the deed cancelled.

The case is returnable in the New London county superior court the first Tuesday in September. Mr. Lonergan has also entered appearance in the probate court for Charles B. Ring and will oppose the probating of the will of Mrs. Ring on the ground that she lacked capacity to make a will.

The father of the family, the late M. B. Ring, was a prominent local business man. The two sons, Joseph and Bernard, are in the automobile business here.

People in this city have valued the realestate involved in the suit as high as $60,000 upon which there is no mortgage. It is stated that when the father of the family, the husband of Mrs. Mary B. Ring, died he left an estate of the value of about $100,000.

POETRY

PLEASURE OF SOUL.

If thou turn away thy foot from doing thy pleasure on My Holy Day.—Is. 58. 13.

Ill tuned are souls who use God's Day
For worldly pleasures sought with zest,
Pleasure exhausts when fierce pursued,
For neither mind nor body best;
'Sabbath was made for man,' endued
With power to bless; not if abused.
Not if in wildest craze pursued.
It's gold with base alloy thus fused.

The thoughtless world for things like these
Cares not, by man's commandments ruled.
But Christians, wishing God to please,
Their minds by His commandments are schooled.
Tasks usual, dropped—unusual claim
The day styled Holy seems to make;
"God's Day,"—not man's, defined, its name,
Holy they'd keep it for His sake.

Thousands blind conscience with the claim,
"Hard work we till the Seventh day.
Then glad t' escape the workship's chain
We're off to mount or beach away.
Pleasures to seek God meant us for—
Christ ne'er forbade men's plucking corn
Abroad 'mid fields—why stand in awe
With face like Puritan's, forlorn?"

And specious reasons all may find,
Since God with pleasure crowns each life
But Sabbath grants the noblest kind,
With pleasures for the spirit rife;
God is a Spirit—so made man,
His spirit, hungering, should be fed
With fare six workdays often ban,
Bread the soul needs—the Christ the bread.

All souls devout love Holy Time.
Find highest pleasure in God's will.
Who far man's chiefest good assigned
One day, his soul with love to fill;
Six days, in course, all may receive
Allowance due, indulgence free
In work and pleasure; then beleive
In God—give Soul a chance to live!

Man's Diamond Day, of seven the best!
Turn thy foot off the precious gem,
Nor stamp in dust the Day of Rest,
Jewel for Spirit's Diadem:
To deck for endless life 'twas given,
Waste not its wealth on joys but frail,
Then when from earth thy soul is riven
God's blest Rewards shall never fail
—Rev. George G. Phippa, in Boston Transcript.

THE PATH.

Blest be the man who makes a path
For weary feet to follow—
A path that finds the shortest way
O'er hill and dale and hollow.

Now winding through a leafy grove,
A shy, secluded byway,
Now plunging headlong down a bank
To meet the traveled highway.

A slender path, a gray trail,
Half hid by purple shadows
Of friendly, overarching trees
That girdle the green meadows.

In sun and rain, each day I go,
O'er hillside and through hollow,
And bless the man who made the path
For homing feet to follow.
—Edith B. Osborne, in St. Nicholas.

MRS. BUSH TELLS OTHER WOMEN

How Pains in Side and Dragging Down Feelings Were Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Massena, New York.—"I had terrible pains in both my sides and a dragging-down feeling that affected me so that I could hardly walk, and I got run-down. A friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it and I have taken it with the best results. I do my housework and also some outdoor work on the farm. The Vegetable Compound has given me back my health and I cannot praise it enough. I am perfectly willing that you should use these facts if my letter will help other women who still suffer."—Mrs. DELBERT BUSH, R. F. D. 1, Massena, N. Y.

The spirit of helpfulness shown in the letters we are constantly publishing is worthy of notice.

These women know by experience what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do. Your troubles are the same as theirs.

BRYAN DWELLS ON STRENGTH OF DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

In Accepting the Nomination For Vice President by the Democratic Party, Gov. Bryan Promised the Progressive Farmers and Wage Earners That the Democratic Party Would Seek a Solution of Their Difficulties.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 18.—(By The A. P.)—Before a large and colorful gathering of long time friends and supporters and national and sectional party leaders, Governor Charles W. Bryan tonight formally accepted the nomination for vice president by the democratic party and laid down in unmistakeable terms the principles and issues upon which he will go before the people for victory at the polls.

In the center of the football field at the University of Nebraska Memorial stadium, Governor Bryan made his speech of acceptance, following the lead of his party's standard-bearer, John W. Davis, who a week ago chose the outdoors for launching the democratic campaign at Clarksburg, W. Va.

Governor Bryan definitely opened his campaign with a promise to the progressive farmers and wage earners that the democratic party would stand as a unit in seeking a solution of their difficulties, Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, who delivered the notification address, also acclaimed the democratic organization as the party to which the progressive electorate could look for direction and leadership and asserted the presidential race would be between the two major parties.

The vice presidential candidate praised his party's platform as "broad, strong, and progressive enough to justify the support of those who believe in equality before the law," and declared the democrats have presented a programme of progressive policies, "for which the party stands as a unit, without the intervention of faction, bloc, or section." He pledged his full support to Mr. Davis and declared he and the presidential candidate are in harmony with the platform upon which they will ask for electoral support.

By the selection of one from the heart of the great middle west as its candidate, the democratic party recognizes the importance of agriculture as one of the basic industries of the nation," Mr. Bryan asserted, adding that "we have the assurance that our party is in direct sympathy with the needs and advancement of the farmers of the country."

"It is unthinkable," he added, at another point, "that the great host of progressive farmers and wage earners, both organized and unorganized, who I know from active association and co-operation in service for many years, having this great party organization presented now as a fit instrument through which to work their will, should permit a division of strength and make possible the triumph of the forces of reaction and selfish interest."

He felt, he said, that it was but due to say that he was "conscious of no obligation to any interest or any individual that would embarrass me in the discharge of the duties of this office." He accepted with the solemn pledge, he added, that "every ability I can exercise and every effort I make, will be with an eye single to the material, moral and spiritual welfare of my country and my countrymen."

Honesty, efficiency and economy in government were declared by the nominee as the need of the hour.

He laid to the door of the republican administration the responsibility for the "unrest through the country," duplication of government work, unnecessary boards, and commissions, high cost of government and excessive taxation."

Woman's worth and activity, child welfare, the "democratic party's interest in and support of labor," outlining of war, water power, law enforcement, and private monpooly were other subjects discussed by Governor Bryan.

LOEB-LEOPOLD CASE ENTERS COMIC STAGE

Chicago, Aug. 18.—(By The A. P.)—The judicial hearing by which is to be determined the fate of Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard A. Loeb, confessed murderers of Robert Franks, went from the serious to the comic today and wound up in a gale of laughter.

Throughout the morning session Clarence S. Darrow, chief of defense counsel fenced adroitly with Dr. H. Douglas Singer, alienist for the state, as he tried to obtain from the expert admissions that "schizophrenic" or "split" personalities were necessarily subjects of mental disease.

This afternoon Dr. William O. Krohn, last witness for the state and probably for the hearing, recited at length the observations and reasons for declaring the defendants mentally sound and then got into a hammer and tongs exchange with Benjamin Bachrach of defense counsel, who began his cross-examination of the state's ace.

Frequently the doctor's replies to the staccato fire of questions about his qualifications as an expert brought laughter from the crowd. Once Judge Caverly admonished both to refrain from by-play.

Judge Caverly glanced at the clock which was two minutes beyond the adjournment hour, straightened up in the chair, and with a twinkle in his eye announced unexpectedly:

"We will adjourn now until 10.30 o'clock tomorrow."

The yell of merriment that followed was by far the greatest of the day and the only one that brought no rebuke from the bailiff's gavel.

The day's developments served to bring the case appreciably closer to its end. Mr. Darrow said tonight that the defense probably would conclude its cross examination of Dr. Krohn tomorrow and would offer no further testimony. Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, announced that unless there were unexpected overnight developments, Dr. Krohn would be his last witness. If this programme is carried out, closing arguments may be started at the Wednesday session.

Each side is expected to consume at least two days in presenting their summing up arguments.

Judge Caverly has given no indication as to when he would render his judgment. A fortnight ago he said he would shut himself into his study for several days to go over the entire record of the five weeks' hearing. Courses about the court room ranged from five to ten days as the time the court would take to consider the facts and theories of the state and defense.

RIVER OF MUD CARRYING BOULDERS WEIGHING TONS

Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 18—A veritable river of mud, boulders and ashes extending in width from a few hundred yards to half a mile and in some places from 10 to 20 feet deep, is flowing from the mouth of Mud Creek Canyon, eight miles above McCloud, Siskiyou County, on the slope of Mt. Shasta, into the McCloud River, says dispatch to the Sacramento Bee today.

Boulders, some of them many tons in weight, are being carried toward the river in the thick stream, the like of which has never been seen before in the McCloud section and whose origin is a mystery, the despatch adds.

SENATORS TO ATTEND THE FUNERAL OF SENATOR COLT

Washington, Aug. 18—A committee to represent the senate at the funeral of Senator Colt, of Rhode Island, was appointed by Senator Cummins, president pro-tempore of the senate today as follows:

BODY OF MATTEOTTI DEFINITELY IDENTIFIED

Rome, Aug. 18—(By the A. P.)—The body of Giacomo Matteotti, the Socialist deputy whose disappearance on June 10 stirred Italy, was definitely identified this afternoon not only by Signor Duca, a dentist who easily recognized work he had done on the deputy's teeth a year and a half ago, but by a number of relatives and acquaintances who were called by Judge Guidici, leader of the investigation into Matteotti's disappearance.

The identification was established in a small chapel at the Riano cemetery where the body was taken Saturday following its discovery underneath a roadside culvert near Scrofano, on the outskirts of Rome, where it is believed to have been for more than two months.

Besides the dentist, others who participated in the identification were the Socialist deputies Turati Tonello, Bocconi and Caonzales and a brother-in-law, Signor Steiner. Despite her repeated insistence, Matteotti's widow was not allowed to view the body because of her exhaustion from renewed grief. The identification ceremonies had been postponed until today because the widow had felt too weak to go through the ordeal yesterday.

While the body was virtually unrecognizable, the two most important means of identification relied upon by the authorities were Matteotti's dentistry and a wedding ring found on the right hand.

STAGE READY FOR THE DAWES NOTIFICATION TONIGHT

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Plans were completed and the stage set today by republican campaign managers for the ceremonies at Evanston tomorrow night formally notifying Charles G. Dawes of his nomination for the vice presidency and for one of the largest political rallies held by the party in the middle west in years.

Hundreds of republican leaders arrived in the city today to participate in the ceremonies and to head delegations taking part in the rally, and Mr. Dawes personally inspected the scene of the notification to see that all was in readiness.

The ceremonies will be held on the lawn of the Dawes home, directly facing Lake Michigan a few hundred yards away.

Arrangements have been made to take care of nearly a hundred thousand people, and party managers at national headquarters here expect that many to be present if the weather is favorable.

The ceremonies will begin at 8 o'clock, central daylight saving time, with Chairman William M. Butler as the presiding officer. Former Representative A. W. Jefferis of Nebraska, who put Mr. Dawes in nomination at the Cleveland convention, will make the address formally notifying the nominee of his selection, and then Mr. Dawes will set forth his views on the issues in the campaign.

FRENCH HORSE REACTS HEIGHT OF CONDITION

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., August 18.—Epinard, French thoroughbred, will need but little more actual track work to fit him for his three big tests against the best runners on the American turf in the opinion of Everett Hayes, Epinard's American Jockey.

Epinard took it easy today but he will probably step long five furlongs tomorrow. The jockey does not want to bring the horse along too fast, preferring that he reach his peak when he meets the field entered at Belmont, Aqueduct and Latonia.

The French horse will be shipped from Saratoga to Belmont Park on August 26 in company with Ordinance and Larkin of the Belmont stable.

It was announced today that the three special races will be covered by radio broadcasting stations.

A man can gain more practical experience from poverty in ten days than he can from riches in ten years.

TROUBLE OVER REPUBLICAN REGISTRATION IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Aug. 18.—Twenty-one hearings were held in the same number of wards today to act upon challenges made by republican registrars involving 1,000 persons who had made application to be placed on the republican caucus list.

Probably the case that created the greatest amount of interest was that of former Governor Rollin S. Woodruff, whose status as a legal voter of the ward in which he claimed he lived, was challenged. The former governor appeared at the hearing in person and was accompanied by a witness to prove his standing as an eligible voter in New Haven.

The former state executive satisfied Deputy Registrar Charles C. Merriam, and was admitted to the republican list. The republicanism of former Governor Woodruff was not questioned at the hearing, the only issue involved being his place of residence. His case produced a lengthy argument between counsel and it was necessary for the deputy registrar to halt the debate.

The big issue of the hearings, whether the presentation of affidavits would serve or whether those summoned must appear in person and establish their eligibility as legal voters, was not settled. Fully five hundred adopted the affidavit form of answering summonses and in every case of this nature the deputy registrar reserved decison.

Russell Rice, son of former Mayor Frank J. Rice, sprung a surprise in the first ward hearing when he charged Deputy Registrar Merriam, who was holding the hearing, with not living at 108 College street, or in the first district himself. He claimed that the deputy registrar was now making his home in Woodmont. Mr. Rice's status, which had been challenged, had not been settled when the hearing adjourned.

TILDEN HAS FIVE-SET GO WITH WESTERN CHAMPIONS

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 18—National lawn tennis doubles champions last year, W. T. Tilden, 2nd of Philadelphia and B. I. C. Norton of St. Louis, took on different partners in the title tourney that began on the courts of the Longwood Cricket Club today, and Norton was eliminated with his partner, while Tilden had a five set struggle ot survive with his.

Frederick Kalms of the Australian Davis cup team, and Willard Crocker, one of Canada's Davis cup players, was the combination that put out Norton and Wray Brown of St. Louis 10-8, 9-7, 6-4. It was a match between scratch teams in which Crocker was the star. The youthful Chicagoans, Emmett Pare and George oLtt, Jr., who are the western champions, pushed Tilden and oYung A. L. Wiener of Philadelphia to the limit in sets, 8-10, 8-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2, frequently breaking through oin the champion's service. Pare and Lott poked placements past Wiener and at times through Tilden.

The opening day's play of a tournament that was Olympian in its cosmopolitan aspect, with players from six countries including several Davis cup teams taking part, marked the passing of Jacques Brugnon, a member of the French Davis cup challengers who have just arrived in this country.

$25,000 FIRE LOSS IN A MATTRESS FACTORY

Danbury, Aug. 18.—The mattress factory of Hyman Londa, on Moss avenue, was partly destroyed by fire this afternoon with a loss estimated by the owner at $25,000. Two dwelling houses in the neighborhood, which is a residential section, were ignited by sparks which fell on the roofs, but none of them were seriously damaged. The fire was caused by an electric power wire which broke and fell into a machine, causing a short circuit that ignited a mattress in course of assembling. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Putnam Has Raised Money For New Bank

Applications For Stock From Out of Town Banks Were Not Considered.

Putnam, Aug. 18.—Putnam, using Liberty loan and wartime methods, has gone over the top in its campaign to secure funds to organize a new national bank to replace the First National bank, closed after shortages had been discovered by national bank examiners and after its cashier, former State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric, had attempted suicide.

The citizens' committee of twelve reported that the $150,000 necessary to establish the institution had been oversubscribed and it is expected that the new bank will be operated in the near future, as the officials from Washington have stated that no obstacles will be placed in the way.

Judge M. H. Geissler, chairman of the committee, has received from the comptroller in Washington, in compliance with a telegraphed request, the necessary papers for filing a formal application for a charter. The papers were considered at a meeting of the committee this evening.

The campaign for funds has disclosed that scores of out of town people have telegraphed and have come here in person to subscribe for stock in the new bank. A number of out of town banks also have applied for stock, but these applications have not been considered.

Dr. S. B. Overlock, the physician attending Gilpatric, said today that a second operation is not contemplated to remove the bullet from the cashier's head. It is possible for a man to go through life with a bullet in his head, he said, without causing any hardships. Gilpatric's condition today was described as unchanged. The patient, according to the doctor, has been permitted to smoke his pipe several times during the past week.

Chief Bank Examiner N. S. Bean was expected to return to Putnam today to complete his investigation of the bank's affairs, but was detained and is not expected until tomorrow. Upon completion of his investigation Mr Bean will file his report with the comptroller in Washington and will turn the assets of the bank over to the receiver, John W. Coffin, of New Haven.

Walter Gilpatric, brother of the wounded man, who returned to his office in New York tonight, had a two hour conference with Receiver Coffin today, when, it is understood, the question of the bank shortage and Mr. Gilpatric's ability to regain some of the lost money were discussed.

STATE MONEY ILLEGALLY DEPOSITED IN PUTNAM BANK

Hartford, Aug. 18—Accounts of the state treasury which were taken over today by Captain Anson T. McCook, the new state treasurer, showed that the state deposit in the First National bank, of Putnam, was increased from $90,000 to $120,000 within the past two months. The amount of the state's deposit in the bank wrecked by the defalcation of G. Harold Gilpatric, its cashier, and former state treasurer, previously had been set down as $100,000.

As state treasurer, Gilpatric made the additional deposit which put the total of the state's funds in his bank $30,000 over the legal limit, soon after his return from the republican national convention at Cleveland, in June, which he attended as a guest. Deputy State Treasurer Thomas H. Judd, of New Britain, promptly protested to Mr. Gilpatric that the additional deposit was illegal, as the state law permitted such deposits only to the extent of 30 per cent. of the capital, undivided profits and surplus of the bank which, in this case, was approximately $80,000. Gilpatric gave an explanation for his action and Judd, being his subordinate, was overruled.

Deputy Treasurer Judd tonight confirmed this information, but declined to comment. He went to Putnam the Sunday following Gilpatric's attempt at suicide, and went over the situation there with directors of the involved bank with a view to protecting the state's interests. At that time the officials entertained hopes of saving the institution and, rather than precipitate a run on the bank, Judd did not withdraw the state's deposit.

The fact that Gilpatric transferred $30,000 from the state treasury to his own bank within the past two months, which covered the period during which the federal bank examiners made an unusual number of visits to the institution, was taken to indicate that Gilpatric feared the exposure of his embezzlement and did his utmost to cover up, keeping up a cheerful front the while.

Bankers Prepairing For Loan to Germany

Loan Will Mark Only the Beginning of America's Financial Aid to Germany.

New York, Aug. 18.—With the successful conclusion of the inter-allied conference, American bankers today began speeding up the machinery for flotation of their share of the $200,000,000 international loan to Germany upon which operations of the Dawes plan will hinge.

Preparations for underwriting this huge financial transaction will be started at once, international bankers indicated, with prospects that ratification of the London protocol by France and Germany will be followed by an early sale of the loan. The offering, however, is not expected before October.

The presence of leading American bankers in Europe it was pointed out in Wall street today, would expedite arrangements for the German financing. J. P. Morgan, Thomas W. Lamont and George Whitney, all partners of J. P. Morgan & Co., who will head the American syndicate, are now in England. Other bankers expected to participate in the flotation of the loan, who are either in Europe or on their way there, are Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank and Everett B. Sweezy, vice president of the First National Bank of New York.

Offering of the international loan will mark only the beginning of America's financial aid to Germany. To the $25,000,000 credit extended earlier in the year to the German Gold Discount bank, organized by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, and a $4,000,000 credit arranged for the German sugar industry will be added numerous loans and credits for other industrial enterprises. One of the first of these will be a revolving credit of between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 for the Germans' potash industry on which the bankers now are working.

Stuart and William Armstrong were arrested. The shooting is alleged to have originated at a party at Ward's camp near Fouke Saturday night. Jim Dixon, according to witnesses, was shot by one of the Armstrong brothers after Charles Dixon had been fatally wounded. Which of the Dixon Brothers shot Walter Armstrong could not be learned.

AMERICAN ARMY WORLD FLIGHT PLANES DAMAGED

Mishap Happened on Attempted Take Off on the Long North Atlantic Hop to Fredericksdal, Near Cape Farewell, East Greenland—One of the Planes Broke its Spreader Bar the Other Broke its Propeller—The Damage Will Necessitate a Delay of at Least Three More Days.

Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 18 (By the A. P.)—Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith and Lieutenant Erik Nelson suffered another set-back in their world flight today when they attempted to start on the long-deferred hop from Reykjavik to Greenland. Both their planes were so badly damaged as to necessitate at least three more days' delay.

Carrying heavy loads of fuel, as it was the intention to fly more than 800 miles across the ice-infested north Atlantic to Fredericksdal, the machines refused to leave the water. Repeated efforts were made to rise, and the strain caused the breaking of the spreader bar of Lieutenant Smith's plane, while the propeller of Lieutenant Nelson's plane was shattered.

Already chafing under their forced stay at Reykjavik, this misfortune came as a heavy blow to the aviators, but, accustomed to the uncertainty of flying, then soon became reconciled to further delay, and are now anxiously awaiting the arrival of the cruiser Richmond, which is hurrying here with spare parts for the planes.

It is not expected, however, that the Richmond will reach here before Wednesday. As soon as the cruiser is anchored the necessary parts will be brought ashore and the Americans will set to work immediately making the repairs so as to be ready to start again as soon as the patrolling vessels report favorable flying conditions.

ALIENS ARRIVE UNDER NEW QUOTA IMMIGRATION LAW

Boston, Aug. 18.—The first aliens to arrive at the port of Boston, seeking admission under the new quota immigration law, which went into effect July 1, last, were landed here today when the Cunard liner Scythia from Liverpool and Queenstown for New York left 683 passengers here. Of these, 292 were immigrants, among them the first ever to present Irish passports—their papers having been issued by the Irish Free State government.

The bulk of the immigrants were from England, Ireland and Scotland, as a result of the provision of the new law providing for selection of immigrants in their home countries, officials at this port found their duties greatly lightened. Out of the 292 seeking admission, only ten were detained.

The new arrivals reported that the reason for the comparatively small number of immigrants to arrive was the increased activity in industry especially shipbuilding, in the British Isles, heavy orders for new tonnage, placed on the Clyde and Abbekfast are holding hundreds of skilled workers who might, a few months ago, have emigrated, they said.

MODERATION IN TONE OF PRESS IN GERMANY

Berlin, Aug. 18 (By the A. P.)—With the return of the German delegates from the London conference there is a conspicuous moderation in the tone of the editorial discussions on the outcome, and political experts are busy figuring out the party lineup in the reichstag when the government's action is up for approval or rejection.

The members of the cabinet are inclined to view the parliamentary situation with a degree of equanimity borne of the conviction that once the opposition forces are given a complete opportunity to examine the balance sheet brought back by Chancellor Marx and Foriegn Minister Stresemann and allowed to contemplate the economic and political effects involved in a disavowal of the present government they will be less inclined to maintain the intransigeant attitude reflected in the current editorials.

The chancellor entered upon a series of conferences with the reichstag party leaders this evening and will continue them for several days, or until the reichstag is convoked.

New York, Aug. 18.—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People today protested against the exclusion of negro speakers at a memorial service held yesterday for Ines Milholland at the Milholland home near Westport, N. Y., in connection with the convention of the National Women's Party.

Telegraphing to Miss Alice Paul, head of the party, the association asserted that Miss Milholland, who was an active member of that roganization, would have repudiated the action of the party officials in refusing to permit negro women to pay tribute to her memory.

"If capitulation to race prejudice is to be the price of election of women to office," the telegram said, "we sincerely hope that every one of your candidates will be defeated in the coming election."

HOW THE PRESIDENT IS SPENDING HIS VACATION

Representative Treadway, of Massachusetts, presented Mr. Coolidge with a pair of rakes this morning, suggesting they might help in getting in the crops, and John Coolidge, his father, took him for an inspection of the farm but the president left his overalls and boots untouched and spent the afternoon reading and visiting with his family. He and Mrs. Coolidge took a short walk this evening, after which Mrs. Coolidge watched a game of horseshoes which John, her son, and some of the townsfolk were playing up the road from the house.

Driving tent stakes with a sledge hammer afforded the president his usual pre-breakfast exercise. He came out of the house this morning as secret service men were putting up tents for use as shelter. While Richard Jervis of the secret service was struggling with an axe in driving the stakes, Mr. Coolidge got the sledge hammer from the barn, slipped off his coat and finished the job with some lusty blows.

As on the other days since he arrived, numerous visitors have stopped at the cross roads here, but they were kept to the main road, about 100 yards from the Coolidge home. While at the general store office this morning, the president received some of the tourists. Mr. Treadway, who presented the rakes to the president as a gift from Marshall Steadman, a rakemaker of Tyringham, Massachusetts and Mrs. Treadway visited with Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge for more than an hour in the morning.

FORD, EDISON, FIRESTONE TO VISIT PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 18.—President Coolidge will be visited tomorrow by Henry Ford, Thomas Edison and Harvey Firestone at his father's home here, where he is spending his vacation.

The party expected to come to Plymouth tomorrow and remain for only a short visit with Mr. Coolidge and family. Mr. Ford, Mr. Edison and Mr. Firestone have gone on outings together for several years and this summer are making headquarters at the Wayside inn, Sudbury, Mass., 200 miles from here. Their trip to Plymouth was arranged, it was said, after the president arrived here.

CHARGED WITH DELINQUENCY FOR DERAILING A TRAIN

Stoughton, Mass., Aug. 18.—Accused of derailing a New York, New Haven and Hartford passenger train at this place August 4, Alphia Tricinkas and Joseph Abril, both boys were arraigned in the South Norfolk district court here today on charges of delinquency. Abril was discharged when the court was informed that he was less than seven years old and therefore not subject to trial. Tricinkas was found guilty and placed on probation for two years by Judge Gerald A. Healy. His counsel appealed.

The police said that the boys told them they had placed railroad spikes on the rails shortly before the express hurdled the track, the engine plunging through the stone wall of the Stoughton station and turning over in the waiting room. Only slight injuries to railroad men resulted from the derailment.

NOT UNDER JURISDICTION OF THE SUPERIOR COURT

Hartford, Aug. 18.—Judge Avery in the superior court this afternoon decided that the superior court has no power to order Justice Frank W. Fellows, of Canton, to issue a mittimus sending Charles M. Stevens, a Canton inn-keeper to jail. Justice Fellows some time ago sentenced Stevens to fifteen days in jail on a charge of violating the liquor law. When the accused was at the jail in custody of an officer, Justice Fellows appeared and tore up the mittimus. State's Attorney H. M. Alcorn initiated proceedings in the superior court to compel Justice Fellows to issue a new mittimus. But Judge Avery decides that the superior court has no jurisdiction.

WILLIMANTIC

The special meeting of the common council was held Monday evening, at the town building, to grant the petition of over a dozen concrete sidewalk applicants for a special city meeting, to vote an additional appropriation of $10,000 for sidewalk construction this summer. The annual appropriation was for $15,000. This is now used up. There was no discussion of the vote. Included in the warning of the special city meeting will be a clause asking for an appropriation for $3,000 for repairs at the Bank street engine house occupied by Engine Co. No. 1.

In reply to a question by Alderman Jackson, Fire Committee Chairman T. J. Laramee stated that the amount, although set as low as possible, would at least place the engine house in a safe condition. The principal repairs are to replace the flooring, the stall steel supports in the cellar and overhaul the battery house. It is probable that the appropriation will so far enough to repair the tower and lighting system and install new eaves troughs. The date of the city meeting has been set for Aug. 25.

Miss Marie Anna Caisse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexis Caisse of 21 Chestnut street became the bride of Alvin Vincent Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nelson of 40 Bolivia St., Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the rectory of St. Mary's church. Miss Rose Caisse wore maize satin crepe with a lace hat and carried yellow tea roses. As a gift to her maid of honor the bride gave pearl rosary beads. The groom presented his best man an Elk's tooth. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson have gone by automobile on a honeymoon journey to northern New England and Canada. One of the most interesting events of the day was the baseball game before the field events took place, the game being won by Captain Ducharme's proteges, 5 to 4. The catching and hitting of Henry Pepin was the outstanding feature of the engagement. The umpires were M. Peloquin and Rev. H. C. Belec. The goodies were donations of Dr. Turcottee, Cyril A. Lamoureux, Woolworth's store, The Laramee Company, Z. J. Bergeran, The Willimantic Lumber & Coal Co., Mr. Labelle, Doyle & Murphy, Roderick A. At a session of Windham probate court held here Saturday forenoon in the superior court chamber, decision was reserved on the petition of Howard W. Greene of this city, for the removal of his wife, Helen E. Greene, as guardian, or joint guardian, of their four minor children: Marshall, 10, Russell and Raymond 8 and Harold 7. Green alleged in the petition to the court, that due to the temperament and habits of his wife for three months past, he had lived apart from her and that during that time the children have been improperly cared for by her. He alleged that they were in manifest danger of falling into habits of vice. He sought complete guardianship of the children. Greene alleged that trouble between himself and his wife started on the very day they were married, fifteen years ago. His spouse was making her second marital attempt. He said his wife swore and went out with other men. Half a dozen witnesses, tenants and neighbors of Greene, testified in his behalf. Mrs. Greene denied in general all the charges against her character and swearing before her children. She alleged that her husband had no real reason for leaving home and that she had supported the children since his departure. A number of witnesses also appeared for her. Judge Otto B. Robinson stated that he would reserve decision.

SAMUEL COLORADO MISSING SINCE SATURDAY MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Aug. 18.—Samuel Colorado, 66, of Mansfield avenue, owner of several desirable residential buildings on the avenue and for many years a local bricklayer, disappeared from the city Saturday morning. Although it has been hinted that the man was despondent over domestic difficulties members of the family say that he left without any apparent cause. He carried life insurance estimated at $25,000. He has been employed for some time by the American Thread company as a bricklayer, working under Brick Jordan. Saturday morning he left his home at the usual hour, carrying his dinner pail. He was attired in khaki trousers, gray coat and cap, striped shirt and working shoes. It is believed that he had $35 in his possession. He was last seen here by a local man who talked with him about 9 o'clock Saturday morning at the railroad station where Colorado went to purchase a train ticket, but found the office window closed. The matter has been reported to the authorities and a search for the missing man has extended throughout various cities in this state, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

EPWORTH LEAGUE INSTITUTE AT CAMP GROUND OPENS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic Camp Ground, Aug. 18.—The morning watch service at 7.50 yesterday opened the annual Epworth league institute, which for several years now has been held in connection with the regular camp meeting services. The general topic of these devotional services for the week is Personal Religion and the Life of Devotion.

The special topic for the Monday watch was The Hill of the Lord. Rev. A. S. Muirhead of Willimantic was the leader. A fair sized audience was present. District Superintendent Bath gave out the notices.

At 8.25 there are two periods of study, one conducted on Missions by Dr. Burgin of Chicago and the other by W. S. Athearn, dean of the Boston University School of Religious Education, whose topic for the week is The American Child and How It Grows.

At the 9.10 period Mrs. Cora Downs Stevens gives hints on pjunior league methods. At the same hour Dean Athearn speaks on Sunday school methods.

The Bible study hour at 10.20 is thrown open to the public. It was expected that Dean James A. Beebe of the Boston University School of Theology, who has had this period for the past two years, would again have charge. Special duties at the school prevented him. In his place Prof. Clelland of the Boston University School of Education is giving from day to day able lectures on The Hebrew Prophets.

His first lecture emphasized the distinction of prophecies into the earliest forms, which laid stress on miracles, a second form of high spiritual prophecy, and a third of decline into formal worship.

The final period of the morning is led by Mrs. C. D. Stevens and is in Epworth chapel. Her topic is Training in Devotional Life. In the tabernacle at the same hour Dr. Durgin has talks on The Message of the Master.

The tabernacle was about half filled at the 2 p. m. inspirational service. Rev. J. E. Duxbury of Manchester offered prayer, after the usual praise service. Rev. W. H. Bath gave several notives, after which he presented the speaker, Rev. G. L. Wells of Moosup. After reading scripture concerning Zaccheus, the publican, the preacher announced as his subject God's Relation to the Sinner. He first considered Zaccheus' attitude toward Jesus—one of curiosity and longing. Jesus' attitude toward Zaccheus was most friendly. Zaccheus was touched and became a new man.

At 3 o'clock Mrs. W. H. Bath of Norwich presided at a W. F. M. S. meeting. Scripture was rad by Mrs. C. R. Vickery of Hartford. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Cora Downs Stevens. A short business session was held by the camp ground auxiliary. Mrs. Albert Boardman of Norwich read the secretary's reports, and Miss Emma Colver of Monchester read the report of the treasurer. Over $167 was raised the past year, and during the 47 years of the existence of the auxiliary some $4,567 has been raised, over $700 of which was raised by the children in mite boxes.

Mrs. Vickery called attention to several books which are in the curriculum of the W. F. M. S. reading course for the year, including a Chinese Mother Goose.

Officers of the auxiliary were chosen for the coming year as follows: President, Mrs. Albert Boardman, Norwich; vice president, Miss Helen Dyson of East Orange, N. J.; secretary, Mrs. W. J. Stephens of Vernon; treasurer, Miss Colver of Manchester.

The Great Wall of China was the topic upon which Mrs. Vickery spoke. The 2,500 miles of this wall was built largely of small pebbles and cobbles, and was erected to keep out the hordes of barbarians from the north, which it did for years. She emphasized that the people of China and of India were not heathen, but highly cultured. She said China could teach us the beauty of filial reverence and obedience. She deprecated the fact that Americans and English capitalists were getting more than 50 per cent. profit at the expense of the lives of women and girls in the factories who work for very long hours at low wages; and also that red-light districts in the great ports of the Orient were advertised in English on great placards.

Frineds of John Wesley Rose, who for many years played his fine Prescott double-bass viol upon the choir platform, were pleased to greet him Monday. For about six years he has been in Boston, but is now living in Willimantic.

Clarence Jeffers of Plainfield has purchased from Rev. George D. Stanley of New Bedford his cottage, 71 Wesley circle.

Camp visitors are favorably impressed as they enter the grove with the fine appearance of the grounds of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Dunstan, croner of Church and Wesley circles. Shrubs and flowers decorate the well kept lawn.

Mrs. Helen M. Ferguson and her granddaughter, Miss Helen M. Grout, of Providence are at the Grout cottage on Mystic avenue.

LAUNCH JENNY T. SEIZED NEAR RUM ROW

BROUGHT TO NEW LONDON WHARF

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 17.—The launch Jenny T., owned in New York, was seized early this morning by the crew of the Revenue Cutter Seminole, after the launch had been loaded with 500 cases of rye and Scotch liquor. The craft was brought into port together with her cargo, but none of the crew of the Jenny T. was found aboard the launch, the crew having abandoned the launch and taken shelter aboard one of the big steamers lying off "Rum Row."

The Jenny T. is 58 feet in length and of 11 gross and seven net tons. She is 12 feet in width and three feet in depth. The craft was built in Nonank in 1913, but has changed ownership since that time. The Jenny T. is alleged to have been the first rum-running craft to be seized in New England waters after prohibition went into effect. The craft was first captured at Lighthouse Point, New Haven, when she arrived at the bathing place with a quantity of liquor. As the cargo was being placed on the shore a force of New Haven officers swooped down on the gang, arrested the crew and seized both the craft and the cargo. The launch was later sold to a Port Jefferson, L. I. man.

This morning about 4 o'clock and after the Seminole had resumed her activities in the vicinity of Block Island and Point Judith having received repairs at Baltimore, the crew of the cutter observed the Jenny T. lying alongside one of the several dispensing craft off Block Island. The cutter was headed for the launch and just before the cutter reached there the crew of the launch is alleged to have scrambled to the deck of the steamer. When the cutter was pulled alongside the launch none of the crew were to be found, but the 500 cases, or 6000 bottles, of English whiskey, were found aboard the craft. The launch was taken in tow and brought to this port arriving here about 5.30 o'clock. The Jenny T. was tied up at the United States Coast Guard academy dock and the liquor was placed in storage at the customs house.

The case of the state against William Schmauk, a member of the firm of Paty Schwarts, grain dealers, Bank street, charged with the misappropriation of funds of the company, with falsifying the accounts in the records of the company and with the using of Liberty bonds which did not belong to him, did not reach a hearing in the police court today though it was set down for trial. Counsel representing the accused asked for a continuance of the hearing until the 29th inst., and that was granted.

A continued case alleging breach of the peace against Edward R. Burckli, set down for a hearing this morning, was nolled, when the announcement was made that William N. Maynard, the complaining witness, had reached an agreement with Burckli as to a settlement. The case grew out of some trouble occasioned by a child of Maynard. Mr. Burckli resides near Maynard and the son of the latter is said to have annoyed Burckli. The latter went to the home of the child and there engaged in a heated dispute with the child's father with the result that Burckli is alleged to have struck Maynard. This led to the complaint.

George Hill, colored, was ordered to pay $5 and the costs of his prosecution for drunkenness. He did that little thing and then was released.

Herbert Chapman, when he was arrested put up $20 in cash for his appearance in court this morning to answer for a spree. He failed to show up and his $20 went to the court treasury. But that was less than his fine and costs would have been had he lost a day's work to attend the session of court.

Mr. Morris served as city sheriff a long time and at the election of President Cleveland his appointment as marshal for Connecticut was urged and obtained. He was the associate of the late Thomas M. Waller when the latter made his memorable campaign in New London and Windham counties and when the former governor told his celebrated story of the bull busting from a pasture yelling victory. That was one of the hottest campaigns ever known in this section of the state. Mr. Morris is survived by his son, Charles R. Morris, a daughter, Grace, the wife of Dr. Hill Warren, late of the U. S. Navy. A brother, W. H. Morris also survives. Mr. Morris was not afflicted with any disease, his death being attributed to infirmities attending his age. The hearing of Capt. James Pettigrew, master of the New London line steamer Richard Peck, charged with negligence in the performance of duty, was continued indefinitely today by the United States steamboat inspectors, the session a brief one, taking place in the office of the inspectors in the Plant building. At the conclusion of the session the inspectors refused to divulge what took place, declaring that it was against the rules of the office to reveal what occurred at the hearing.

The charges which brought about the hearing were instituted by William H. Huntley, of New Haven. Three weeks ago while the Peck was between Point Judith and Block Island, en route from Newport to New London with excursionists, John Nolan, an oiler, fell overboard and was drowned. The steamer turned about and an attempt was made to rescue Nolan, but the man sank from view just as the steamer reached the location where Nolan was foundering. Huntley, who was among the passengers, declared that Captain Pettigrew lost valuable time in adopting the course the master did in endeavoring to effect a rescue and that had different methods been pursued Nolan would undoubtedly have been saved.

HAY FEVER CONQUERED BY NEW PRESCRIPTION

Thanks to a remarkable new prescription known as Rinex Prescription, developed by a Cleveland specialist after 8 years' intensive study of Hay Fever, Mr. Charles Farmer, of 3714 Beatrice Avenue, Johnstown, Pa., reports he is entirely free of his Hay Fever tortures, and similar reports from thousands have come from all over the country.

Says Mr. Farmer: "I have tried hundreds of different remedies, but Rinex is the only thing that ever did me any good. I had Hay Fever as bad as any man in the country, but can truthfully say that I can hardly notice it since I started taking Dr. Platt's Rinex."

Only a few years ago it was discovered that Hay Fever is not a simple surface disease or irritation, but that the pollens in the air are absorbed through the inner nose membranes into the blood itself, and so cause a poisoning of the entire system. Dr. Platt's Rinex, taken internally in simple capsule form, goes direct to this pollen poisoning throughout the system and neutralizes it completely. So in 95 per cent of all cases, all the sneezing, runny eyes and nose, headache, fever, etc., disappear in 24 hours. In fact, complete relief in 24 hours is positively guaranteed, or it costs you nothing.

If you want to be satisfied that Rinex will help your case of Hay Fever, you can get a 24-hour treatment, FREE, from your druggist; or you can buy a full week's treatment for $1 on a positive money-back guarantee. Rinex Prescription may be obtained on this absolute guarantee at all good druggists.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Saturday, Aug. 30, has been set as the date for the field day event to be held at Goodyear this summer. For years past this event has been one of the interesting things of the year in the neighboring community, and the coming one is not likely to prove an exception. Athletic events will feature the field day and these will be arranged to attract the largest possible number of competitors, young and old. Details of the program of the day will be announced later.

Ballasting of the route over which new and heavier rails were put down during the early part of the season by the New Haven road continues. This area is between Putnam and a distance south of Danielson. It now rates as about the best stretch of track along the Norwich branch, running from Groton to Worcester. The heavy locomotives and trains that now run over the route ride splendidly on the new rails, set on such new ties as were found necessary in making the changes and the ballasting mentioned.

Members of the Service battery are making final preparations for going to Camp Eustis, Va., for which point they will leave Danielson tomorrow (Wednesday) evening. They will leave here in special cars attached to the boat train and will arrive in Virginia Thursday. Provisions have been made to give the company a considerable stop over in Washington, D. C., and they are looking forward to this visit with special interest.

Danielson will rejoice with Putnam over the fact that subscriptions for shares of stock of the proposed new bank were reported on Monday as oversubscribed. This is an evidence of Putnam's spirit. Less than a week has elapsed since the project of a new bank was launched, yet it is to become a reality. Putnam has had generous offers of subscriptions for stock from people of other communities. It has appreciated this, but has managed to obtain the great majority of its subscriptions from people living in Putnam or in communities of which Putnam is the banking center. Steps are now being taken to organize the new institution and make it ready for doing business in place of the wrecked First National bank.

Some building operations undertaken this season may point to the development of Danielson in a new direction—to the east. Reynolds street and out on what is known as the Providence pike seems to be the direction in which this place is likely to grow the most rapidly, outside the borough limits, in the not distant future. Localities along this road are sightly and within easy motoring distance of the center of activities here. This is not a real estate advertisement, although it may have something of that flavor, for the fact remains that the locality referred to is sightly and already is attracting the attention of home builders.

Saturday of this week will bring the big event of the summer in grange circles. On that date East Central, New London and Quinebaug Pomona granges are to hold a tri-county field day at the Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs. The program is scheduled to begin at 10 o'clock and will continue throughout the day. All grange members and their families and friends have been invited to attend. A novel plan has been adopted as to supplying lunch for the party. East Central Pomona will furnish the salads, Quinebaug the sandwiches and New London Pomona the cakes.

For the first time in several years, Dayville has hotel service again. The Dayville hotel, long established as a hostelry where travelers found a warm welcome and where many have made their homes in years gone by, has been missed during the period that it has been closed. James Sullivan, recently of Central Village, has reopened the house, with a view to meeting the hotel needs of the northern section of the town of Killingly especially and the traveling public as a whole. The hotel was conducted for many years by Frank S. Kennedy, who sold it a few years ago to William and Christopher Campbell of Dayville, present owners of the property, though they have not operated it for a long time.

The Captain Put pumper of the fire department is to have a thorough overhauling. The work to be done will take from two to three days. The work to be done will be the first of any account on the machine since it was acquired by the borough several years ago. When the work to be done, by a representative of the builders of the apparatus, it will be like a new machine, mechanically. All worn working parts will be replaced, the machine tuned up to its highest point of efficiency and put in condition for the cold weather period of the year. Members of the department have taken excellent care of the big pumper since it was first added to the department, but it has been subjected to considerable use and needs the general overhauling it is to receive. Such replacements of parts as will be required are really minor.

During the days when the machine is out of service Chief A. P. Woodward of the department will be prepared to use other apparatus and equipment for any such calls as the department may be called upon to answer.

PUTNAM

Relatives of Rev. David Phillips Hatch of Woodbury, who died suddenly Sunday while preaching a sermon in the Congregational church of Woodstock, of which his son, Rev. David P. Hatch, Jr., is pastor, have decided not to take the body to Woodbury to hold a funeral service as was at first planned, but to hold the service in the church where he died. This is because the family burial lot is in Marshfield, Mass., where burial will take place, and is a considerable distance from Woodstock and a much greater distance from Woodbury.

The church was well filled Sunday morning and the aged clergyman was about midway in his sermon when he was seen to grasp the pulpit, and was heard, by those in the front pews, to ask feebly for a glass of water. The son was the first to realize what was happening. He knew that his father had had one or two heart attacks, the most recent being last week Wednesday while on a motor trip to Oxford, Mass. The trip was abandoned, as Mr. Hatch's condition was so serious at that time. When the son reached his father the father had eased himself into a chair behind the pulpit.

Dr. George T. Spicer of Providence, who is spending the month in Woodstock, and who was a member of the congregation, went to the assistance of father and son. He advised removal, and the minister was taken by the doctor, son and others to the parsonage next door to the church. While being carried the short distance to the parsonage he lost consciousness and never recovered, the end coming just as he was being placed on a couch in the house.

Mr. Hatch was visiting his son in Woodstock for a week. The son was graduated from the Hartford Theological seminary last June. He had assisted his father in the opening of the morning service and then left the pulpit and took a front pew. Knowing of the recent heart attack, the son was a little uneasy and was watching his father closely, and noted in a moment the first signs of the older man's distress.

A family row in the Manhasset section of the city was the cause of complaint to the police, who went to the house and allege that a man was rough-handling his wife. The husband was arrested and taken to the police station. A bond of $50 was furnished and he will be given a hearing at a session of the city court Monday morning, Aug. 25th.

LOCAL CONFIDENCE INCREASES AS BANK SHARES ARE PLEDGED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Aug. 18.—Still trying to forget the tragedy of the closing of the First National bank that has brought about a crisis in the business affairs of Putnam, the people began the new week with a resolution to look forward to a brighter future. The most cheering news of the day was that the subscription for shares in the proposed new national bank was about to go over the top. It was stated early in the morning that a total of $136,000 had been subscribed for, and that there had been a number of reservations of shares telephoned in since the total was figured. Late Monday night it was given out that the total had reached $145,000 and that all canvassers had not been heard from. This was pleasing news to the business men of Putnam, for they are thereby assured that Putnam will have a new bank, owned by the people of this banking community, and will not have a banking institution owned and controlled by outside interests.

The opportunity to subscribe for shares in the proposed new bank has appealed to the people both as one of sound investment and as loyalty to Putnam and its surrounding towns. Never have the people of this section so loyally rallied to the assistance of a project in a financial way, since the sale of Liberty bonds was placed before them as a patriotic duty. The first money was pledged Thursday afternoon of last week, just one week after Gilpatric had made his attempt at suicide, and in but four secular days the $150,000 was pledged.

This loyalty will not only have an immediate effect in clearing up the tangled financial situation but it will have a far-reaching effect in the years to come and will inculcate a degree of confidence in Putnam's future as nothing else could.

The atmosphere of depression has somewhat cleared. Rumors of financial failures to follow in the wake of the bank failure have not materialized. While there may be some business enterprises hard hit, to whom the closing of the bank and the necessity for calling in loans may be an immediate hardship, it is now believed that all local business establishments will be able to weather the storm.

Putnam is, and has a right to be, proud of its citizens. The banking community, including the nearby town s of Thompson, Pomfret and Woodstock, has acknowledgedly been of great assistance in the crisis. In his address in the Victory theatre, State's Attorney Charles E. Searls, in alluding to the catastrophe, said: "There may be something back of it all." He was right, and that something has now been discovered, in a people united as never before by passing through the shadow of financial disaster; through the storm of the greatest business depression that this city has ever known, to the brink of a new day, for which all signs portend sunshine and prosperity to this united people.

The cause of it all lies at the Day Kimball hospital in a critical condition. Unless something unforeseen happens, the doctors say, G. Harold Gilpatric will get well. He has thus far, it is understood, been uncommunicative and only speaks when spoken to. Some of his answers to questions denote that his mind is not functioning altogether clearly at times. As far as can be learned he has not yet been able to afford any definite assistance in untangling any financial affairs for which he has been responsible. It is not known whether or not he realizes that if he recovers he will never see again. His relatives visit him daily, but are uncommunicative after such visits. His brother, Attorney Walter H. Gilpatric, who has done a great deal in assisting in arranging papers and memoranda of the former state treasurer and bank cashier for use of the bank's receiver, to whom an assignment of all G. Harold Gilpatric's property was made last week, left on the night train Monday for his summer home at Mount Desret, Maine, for a short rest. The office of State Attorney Charles E. Searls, who is acting as attorney for the receiver, has been a busy place and all day Monday there was a stream of people climbing the stairs to the state attorney's office.

At the First National bank there has been the usual crowd of people, larger if anything than on previous days, calling for statements, arranging to meet obligations and checking up their affairs. During the day many statements were mailed to depositors who have not called at the bank for them.

NORWICH BANK OFFERS AID TO AMOUNT OF $10,000

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Aug. 18.—Purely as a neighborly act, President Charles R. Butts and Vice President C. D. Noyes of the Norwich Savings society came here Monday and, in the name of the bank which they represent, and with the approval of its governing board, offered to subscribe for $10,000 worth of the shares of the new national bank to be formed in this city. Messrs. Butts and Noyes stressed the fact that the only interest of the bank they represent was to be of assistance to Putnam in quickly forming its new banking institution, and with no view other than that. They explained their mission to J. J. Whitehead, Jr., representing the new committee, and he in turn presented their statement at a conference of the committee held Monday evening.

It happened that the capital of the new bank had been oversubscribed a few hours before the arrival here of Messrs. Butts and Noyes, but Mr. Whitehead thanked them in the name of the committee and assured them of Putnam's appreciation of what the Norwich bank stands ready to do.

Possibly no part of the subscription so generously tendered by the Norwich gentlemen will be required, but in case it is, it is available up to $10,000.

The Norwich Savings society is one of eastern Connecticut's oldest banks, having been established more than 100 years.

WESTERLY

J. Herbert Macomber, in charge of district stores in New York with office at the Grand Central Station store, Mrs. Macomber and child have been guests of relatives and friends in Westerly. Mr. Macomber has just undergone an operation for acute appendicitis at St. Luke's hospital, New York, and is recuperating. Mr. and Mrs. Macomber left Westerly by automobile for Providence Monday and they will pass the remainder of a short vacation in Kittery, Me., before returning to their home in New York.

A sudden and severe thunderstorm broke in Westerly Sunday night about 10 o'clock with sharp, blinding flashes of lightning with cannon-like cracks of thunder. Electric lights in buildings and on streets were extinguished for a few minutes, following a sharp flash of lightning. In Ashaway a high tension wire was struck near the garage of John Giocum, the bolt followed into the meter, wrecking it and starting a blaze in the adjoining woodwork, which was seen by Alfred Partelo as he passed the building about 12 o'clock. Officer Frank Brown attempted to give a fire alarm on the mill bell but was prevented from doing so by a broken rope. A few buckets of water extinguished the blaze and little damage was done.

Frank Chioda of Norwich, who has driven automobile N-6520 Conn.; Louis Scirelli, reported to have on the James Mayo farm, Camp Sawmill road, a gravel road in the town of Charlestown leading off of the Carolina-Cross Mills road, and raided by federal men Saturday morning, with a seizure of $2,000 worth of new whiskey; Arthur Vendetta, alias Mercer, alias Messer, of New London; Frank Sena, 92 Jackson avenue, Long Island City, N. Y.; Tony Santo, 1172 Columbus avenue, Springfield, Mass.; and Ernest Simentto of 213 North Seventh street, Brooklyn, N. Y., were taken on the noon train from Westerly to Providence. Monday, in charge of federal agents James M. Kent, Frank Lewis and Charles Littlefield of Boston, from the Westerly police station where they have been lodged since Saturday morning. The men were presented before a United States commissioner in Providence on Monday afternoon. The liquors seized and the two automobiles have been turned over to federal authorities in Providence. James Mayo, said to have been released on account of the illness of his mother, is reported to be among those scheduled to appear before the commissioner.

STONINGTON

Fred Helmrich of Hartford and Manuel King of Stonington were before Judge William A. Wilcox Saturday morning in the Stonington town court on the charge of transportation of liquor. They were found guilty and each was fined $200 and costs, amounting in all to $256.78, and sentenced to 30 days in jail. King appealed his case. He was released under a $2,000 bond furnished by J. Piearra of Stonington. Helmrich was allowed until Saturday night to pay his fine.

The two men were arrested early Sunday morning on the Mystic road at Captain Jimmie's inn by Patrolman Christopher Ledwith of Stonington and five assistants. The capture yielded 78 cases of whiskey. The liquor included Hilltop Scotch and Old Mill rye whiskey, rye and gin.

Patrolman Ledwith had received a tip earlier in the evening that a truck load of booze would be taken from Lord's Point. He secured the assistance of five men from Stonington. As soon as the truck came out on the state highway from the road leading to Lord's Point Patrolman Ledwith commanded the driver to stop. As this produced no results, a shot was fired and the truck stopped. It was a White truck with Connecticut registration No. 37,000. An investigation showed that the machine was registered in the name of Archibald Gourly of Thompson, Conn. It is thought that the liquors were unloaded from a boat at Lord's Point. A search failed to establish this as a fact, however.

Many yachts were in the harbor over the week end, among them the Fawnee and Idalia, both of New York.

A group of Davey tree surgeons arrived in the borough Saturday. They will supervise the cement work around the roots of the trees bordering the new Water street road. Many of the trees project into the street several inches and expert care will be exercised at these points. Should the cementing be done improperly or the roots of the trees damaged it would result in the death of the trees in a short time. Local people remember the excellent work the Davey tree people did in the village last spring.

Another week's work was completed Saturday on the Water street road. The excavation has been finished as far as Grand street. Although extremely hot, the work continued at a rapid rate throughout the latter part of the week.

Two cases of reckless driving were presented in the Stonington town court Monday morning at 9 o'clock. The defendant in the first case was Noyes Martin, proprietor of the Eagle Bakery, Stonington. This case had been carried over from Aug. 4. Martin was under a bond furnished by Antonio Gonzales of Stonington. The defendant had first been charged with driving when under the influence of liquor but Dr. Hillard, examining him at the time, would not swear to this. The complaint was changed to that of reckless driving. It charged Martin with running into another machine on the Westerly road near Wequetequock and not stopping. The other automobile as a result of being hit by Martin's car swerved from the road and hit a telephone pole. Martin claimed that he was not aware of the fact that he had hit another car. He claimed that he was not aware of the fact that he had hit another car. He was represented by Attorney Gallazer of Westerly who stated that Martin's machine merely grazed the other with the bub-can and urged a light fine.

Judge William A. Wilcox imposed a fine of $25 and costs. The costs amounted to $32.39, making a total of $57.39. Martin paid.

The second case to be brought before the court was that of John Rice of Pawcatuck, charged by Prosecuting Attorney McKenna with operating an automobile recklessly on the North road, Aug. 17th. Rice pleaded guilty to the charge. It was brought out that he collided with another machine and his car was ditched. The defendant admitted that he had been drinking but Dr. M. H. Scanlon at the time could not declare him to be under the illegal influence of liquor. Rice was fined $50 and the costs of court.

The members of the Woman's Relief corps are to hold their annual picnic outing Wednesday at Lantern Hill. The party will leave at 10 a. m. from the Community House. Edmond Hyde is to transport the picnickers.

Mrs. George W. Robinson has received notification of the death of her cousin, George Soule of East Greenwich, R. I., Saturday morning. He was the son of the late George Soule a native of Jewett City, and was born in 1880. He was often a visitor in Jewett City. His wife and one son survive him. William O. Soule of this place is his cousin.

Mrs. Fred Smith, comes in for the blue ribbon for strange flowers. At her home she has in bloom a Brazilian plume plant. The bulb came from the Amazon section of South America and was received through a friend in Ohio. The plant stands 18 inches high, and is growing in a 6 inch pot. There is a dozen leaves on the stem, the composite blossom, like a pom-pom or plume, is red in color, made up of between 200 and 300 small flowers. Mrs. Smith also has a Mexican flag plant, which when in bloom has a flower resembling a fire-cracker, with a long curved pistol, which it is easy to liken to the fuse.

Assistant Postmaster Thomas Barnett is off duty on account of illness. Edwin M. Gray a former assistant postmaster, under another administration, is helping at the office. Gilbert Miner was acting postmaster Monday.

Sunday at the Main street crossing of the state road, the only public railroad crossing within the borough limits, a New York and New Haven traffic police officer was on duty all day.

This arrangement is new, and is in accord with the policy of the railroad to cut down Sunday grade crossing accidents.

A local man, just returned from an automobile trip to Falmouth, Mass., down on the Cape, is telling of a roadside sign, he saw, which to him seemed pertinent. "Danger Ahead; Hot Dogs Fried in Butter."

The rapidly thinning ranks of Griswold's G. A. R. was emphasized during the recent convention in Boston. When the first convention was held in Washington, a little over 50 years ago, this town had a representation of around 70. Hale hearty stalwart men, fresh from the battles of the Civil war. Today Comrades Hugh McLaughlin and Lewis A. Thornton, alone survive of Griswold's gallant quota.

This town is pretty well relegated to the suspenderless class. It looks now as if a change was due to occur, for the papers are announcing and the local banks have been notified, that the one time "cartwheel" silver dollar is to be coined again and put into circulation. When the local swain, slips in with her and has a "coupia" ice cream sodas, and gets nine cart wheels in change for his ten spot, it will be either suspenders or a dangerously low waist line.

The potato growers on the Belvidere lots, in the north part of the town, have this season come into their own. With the potato crop in other parts of Griswold damaged several thousands of dollars by the July drouth, Belvidere raisers will get an extra large crop. Their land is black and wet, and in seasons like 1923 their crop is small on account of too much water.

THE WORLD FLIERS.

However much it may have seemed that the American round-the-world fliers were destined to halt at Iceland because of the ice conditions in the harbors on the east coast of Greenland, it becomes evident from the latest arrangement that they are not going to be balked by such a situation. That is, they are not going to sit idly by and accept the Greenland handicap as insurmountable. Instead they are prepared to substitute a longer hop for the shorter one and fix their next landing place on the west coast of Greenland where conditions are favorable for finding open water. They are thus planning to do in one hop what had previously been slated for two. The distance will be the longest that they have covered in a single hop since setting out on their trip around the world but it is much shorter than single hops which have been made by other fliers, and for that reason there is no fear but what they will successfully negotiate it.

There will be the strain of the long period of continuous flight. It will be a test for men as well as the machines but with confidence in the ability of both there is good reason for believing that the distance will be safely covered and a serious obstacle overcome.

The conditions which are being found in the crossing of the two oceans do not lend encouragement to the belief that the round-the-world fliers are going to be extremely popular. The Pacific has revenged its rangers in unmistakable fashion. The north Atlantic is now doing its best to discourage the airmen. There is uncertainty until the distance has been covered, but sufficient is already known to impress those who desire to go from one continent to the other that while the quickest might be by way of the air the probabilities are that it will continue to be through the medium of steamships for some time to come, and when comforts are considered there will be no comparison.

The people of this country will watch with anxiety for the successful completion of the flight from Iceland to Greenland, and after that is accomplished will regard the rest of the trip as a foregone conclusion.

CART WHEELS AGAIN.

Not for a number of years have you had a chance to carry a pocketful of silver dollars about with you. Probably you have had no such inclination, but it would have been difficult to gratify it if you had, for the silver dollars have been out of circulation. Having resumed the coinage of these coins the government finds that it had something like 70,000,000 of them over and above the number that must be kept in government vault for the redemption of the silver certificates and notes, and it has begun to put them into circulation again. This may be welcomed by those who insist upon having hard money, but it can hardly be regarded as a move for their convenience by those who have become accustomed to the advantage of paper money when backed by the security of Uncle Sam. Few there are who would think of carrying about the same sum in silver dollars that they do in the form of a roll of bank notes, and yet there are sections where gold is used almost entirely and where paper money is as unusual as gold, or as a silver dollar, has been in the east.

Because there are 70,000,000 silver dollars available for circulation doesn't mean that all will be put out. It is doubted whether there would be a demand for as many, and it is not improbable that the 30,000,000 which it is proposed for distribution will be more than is actually demanded in the channels of trade. In that case the return of the cart wheels to the treasury can be expected.

In connection with the placing of the silver dollars in circulation again it is pointed out that they involve less expense through depreciation than do the paper dollars, the renewal of which at frequent intervals because of dirty condition and torn corners entailing considerable expense from the time they are made until they are officially destroyed. Nevertheless that doesn't make the weighty silver dollars any more acceptable as pocketbook fillers. It is safe to say that the silver dollars that are put into circulation will be kept moving.

GETTING TOGETHER.

Progress is being made in the conference at London. There are points which are requiring time in order to settle but that nevertheless brings satisfaction as long as adjustments are made.

The latest seems to be the agreement upon the date for the withdrawal of the French troops from the Ruhr. That was a hard matter to settle. France demanded a year in order to get its forces out of that territory which is not included under the Versailles treaty, while Germany believed it should be done in a much shorter time. Germany has accepted the French terms and a year from the 15th of August there should be no French forces in the Ruhr.

The Ruhr has been one of the sore points in connection with all negotiations. It was the territory which France took possession of in order to enforce the reparations demand when Germany balked at payments. It was the region where Germany's valuable industries were located and it desired early control once more. Whether France will require the full year to get its men out of the Ruhr will undoubtedly depend to a great extent upon the manner in which Germany responds to the new situation following the acceptance of the Dawes recommendations, which it now seems most likely to do.

Germany did its best to get more favorable terms. It has nevertheless done the sane thing in accepting the best it could get. Now comes the struggle to get a ratification of the action of the representatives assembled at London by the respective countries. It is time for the countries to realize that their representatives have zealously guarded their interests. Where there has been a yielding it has been found necessary in order to prevent a deadlock. It becomes necessary to convince the respective countries of this, but where divisions have been so marked it must be evident that there must be some compromise if progress is to be made and relief obtained from the present situation.

A DESERVED VACATION.

Stories that come from Plymouth, Vt., declare that President Coolidge has gone to his father's home for a rest. He is to take two weeks' vacation in the hills of Vermont and there is none but what will agree that he is entitled to that brief respite from the arduous duties of the chief executive at Washington.

President Coolidge has been giving close attention to the affairs of the nation at Washington since the death of Warren G. Harding. His time has been fully occupied and his work was not made any easier by the recalcitrant congress. There has been a strenuous period during the months since he assumed the new responsibilities, but it has been a period that has been characterized by devotion to duty on the part of the president. The adjournment of congress relieved it but it did not end it for this is election year and there was the nominating convention and the many details connected therewith in addition to the routine business.

Added thereto was the serious strain caused by the illness and death of Calvin Coolidge Jr. The president, in recognition of his responsibilities, had declared he would remain in Washington during the summer. He did not favor the idea of establishing a summer capital elsewhere.

That he should feel the need of a complete rest, a getting away from the daily grind, even though he takes with him some matters for consideration, is quite natural. The wonder is that he feels that two weeks will suffice but the hope must be that the vacation brings to the president all there is expected from it.

FATAL ACCIDENT SIGNS.

If you have ever passed a point in the highway marked "Dangerous curve. A fatal accident occurred here" perhaps you have been more impressed by the necessity of slowing down than would otherwise be the case. Perhaps that warning brought a shudder than would otherwise not have been experienced had it simply called attention to a dangerous curve. The idea of the sign was adopted for that very reason. It strikes home. Someone had possibly disregarded the requirements of safety and others, following a similar course, might experience the same results.

Perhaps that would not be a bad idea to adopt at railroad crossings in addition to the other warnings which are maintained at such points. There cannot be many crossings where no fatalities have occurred, and that list of those which have escaped is rapidly being depleted.

At Mt. Kisco, N. Y., Sunday, there were five lives snuffed out when a machine was struck by an express, and near New Bedford two others were killed when an auto struck a locomotive. The drivers of both of these cars must have known that railroad crossings are dangerous places. They must have been warned to "Stop, Look and Listen." It is possible they disregarded other signals maintained for the protection of the users of the highways and would have paid no attention to a sign directing attention to the fact that fatalities had occurred at those points. Perhaps they would have maintained that they were immune to danger at crossings, but be it curve or crossing there are few instances when most of those in an automobile are not brought to a deeper realization of the peril when someone reads to the rest of the occupants "A fatal accident occurred here." It does no harm to the careful, and it may save some of the lives that are in the hands of the careless or the reckless.

UNEXPECTED BLOW

"I should think that Mrs. Bluefinch would be downright exasperated with Chlorine," declare disinterested lady who liked to go around the neighborhood. "Every time she thinks it is all settled and begins planning who's to be invited to the wedding and all that Chlorine lets the line slip and there's a vacant place in the front living room! Why, that girl acts as though she was Mary Pickford and Pola Negri combined. Some day she is going to be left high and dry, and she deserves it!

"It would wring tears from a bill collector to listen to Mrs. Bluefinch as I have just been doing! Poor woman! It seemed to do her so much good to have somebody real sympathetic to talk to! Whenever she tries to remonstrate with her daughter and point out the future all Chlorine does is laugh at her and turn down another beau.

"Somehow men always like Chlorine. They are attracted to her the minute they lay eyes on her and there always is one hanging around to give atmosphere to the scene. This last one was a man from New Jersey whom Chlorine met at a wedding down east and he has written her every day since and cluttered up the mails with candy and things. When he wrote that he had to go to Milwaukee on business and could just as easily as not stop in Chicago Mrs. Bluefinch was terribly excited. She said she always had wanted a place down east to visit, and New Jersey was so handy to New York, and it sounded so much better to say 'Yes, my daughter lives in the east' instead of having to admit she lived three floors up on a side street in Chicago—and anyhow Chlorine was 26, even though nobody ever would dream it. But Chlorine has no enthusiasm, however, and of the six nights that poor man spent in town Chlorine had other engagements for the last five.

"One evening in his company was enough—his ties swore at his eyes, she couldn't stand his teeth because she was sure they stuck out a trifle, and anyhow he bored her. Chlorine always is crazy about her beaus as long as they woo her by parcel post and the mails, but the minute she gets a chance to look them over she finds they are seconds and all is off.

"Freddy Warbler was devoted to Chlorine for several months and everyone knows what the Warbler fortune is. But she would have naught of it from the start. She said even a million in hand would not compensate for walking down the aisle with a man a head shorter than herself and hearing the girls giggle. The only way that Fred looked at all handsome was when he was in his racing car.

"Then there was Charley Rabbin, who had such a marvelous voice that the grand opera people were always after him. Mrs. Bluefinch took great hope after watching the entranced manner in which Chlorine would sit and listen to him sing and she was always showing her daughter clippings telling of the large sums the singers made, and Chlorine ended by being just as rude to Charley as though he was merely ordinary. She said it wasn't humanly possible for a man to sing twenty-four hours out of the day, and he had a roll of fat on the back of his neck, and anyhow she got tired of reading the notes from admiring girls that he was always passing over to her.

"There is a perfect string of occurrences like these samples, going way back into the dark ages of early high school, and Mrs. Bluefinch is about ready to give up and try to get interested in something else for the rest of her life."

"Well," said the son who stepped about a bit and knew a lot of things, "I've noticed lately that Chlorine is much attracted by Artie Sparrow, who is undersized, dull, has never earned over $30 a week and never will, and is entirely inexplicable and unsatisfactory as a possible husband, so I have not the least doubt that Chlorine will fall in love with him and marry him most any time now!"

"You don't say!" gasped the woman who kept track of neighborhood affairs. "Well, I'll bet Mrs. Bluefinch will be good and surprised!"

"I'll say she will!" declared the son, who stepped about a bit. — Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mobilization Day.

Mr. Editor: I would like to reply to T. H. Bacheler's defense of "Mobilization Day." I realize perfectly well that he is sincere and speaks directly from the heart, but I believe that he is laboring under a delusion. I am a pacifist because I do not think that all the horrors produced by modern warfare can be justified on any grounds whatsoever. There is no real excuse why millions of mothers should sacrifice sons they reared from birth, why young men in the prime of life should emerge from the war crippled and maimed for the rest of their days, and why children should early in life become acquainted with the pain and suffering of losing their parents. All the cruelties and miseries that war causes should be too well known to be now dwelt upon. Therefore I am an uncompromising pacifist, and any plans that tend to display military pomp are obnoxious to me.

Before the World war began Germany had one of the most powerful military machines on the face of the globe. In other words, she was well prepared. Did that help her? We condemned Prussian militarism, but is there any difference between Prussian militarism or any other kind of militarism? This defense day test is merely a show of American militarism and as militarism it should be condemned.

T. H. Bacheler brings out that our lack of preparedness in the last war resulted in greater losses in blood and treasure and broken hearts than were necessary. How so? Does he mean to imply that if we had been well prepared and had entered the war sooner, the minute our soldiers reached the "other side," the Germans would have dropped their guns and would have refused to shoot? Does he not know that the reason we suffered so heavily for the comparatively short time we were in the war was because the other allies put our men in the most dangerous positions and sent them into the midst of the most devilish fire?

I contend that war can be gotten rid of by educating the masses of the people (who are the real sufferers when war comes), against military propaganda of all kinds, and teaching them the fundamental causes of war. Electing the right kind of men to the nation's most important positions would also help. For to me it is inconceivable for any nation with a prime minister like Ramsay MacDonald to go to war with any nation with a president like Robert LaFollette.

Let us do away with our foolish prattlings about peace and do something constructive towards that end.

W. HOROWITZ.

Acheson's Reverses Came Fast

When Edward G. Acheson was taken from the academy at Bellfonte, Pa., at 17 and out to work after three years of schooling, his trouble looked big, but it was only a mild harbinger.

Son of an iron manufacturer in Washington, Pa., he went to the district school then to boarding school until the panic of 1873 forced his father to send for him.

Made timekeeper at the furnace, he studied at night. His father died, the business went into bankruptcy, and the boy plated watches and sold them, worked in a civil engineering corps, and then clerked in a store.

Borrowing $500, he bough territorial rights to a device to regulate the water supply in boilers, opened a combination office-bedroom in Pittsburgh, but finally had to turn over everything to pay for his meals, and became ticket agent at Parker for the Allegheny Valley Railroad. A railroad strike made him engineer on a construction crew.

Next a tank gauger at Bradford for a pipeline company, he was "caught" while making a set of gauger's tables, and was "fired" by the supervisor, was reinstated and proved the supervisor's figures incorrect.

Starting in the Edison plant at Menlo Park at $7.50 a week, he was sent to help with an exhibit in Paris, at $150 a month, and later accepted an offer of $300 a month from an Italian company. The company got into a dispute, Acheson resigned and then, falling ill, became penniless in London. Edison paid his way home and Acheson worked for him until told to take a position he thought he was not fitted for.

Next in Brooklyn, earning $15 a week, he married. Continuing to study and experiment, he sold a patent for $7,000 and was given a position paying $2,000 a year.

At 35, while working on another idea, he discovered carborundum. After forming a company to manufacture it, he found the cost of production too high to make it profitable, and he had to experiment to reduce the cost. Then carborundum became a success. Acheson invented many other products, accumulated riches and today at 68, is lauded by the world for his achievements.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Francis E. Warren, who is unopposed for renomination as United States senator in today's republican primaries in Wyoming, has a record of public service that is almost without parallel in American political annals. Now past his 80th year and completing his sixth term in the senate, he is the oldest member of the national lawmaking body in years and one of the oldest in point of service. For more than half a century he has been active in Wyoming politics. He was the first governor of that state and also the first United States senator. His first office in the territory was as mayor of Cheyenne. He was a member of the Wyoming territory. Senator Warren was born in Hinsdale, Mass., and educated in the academy of that town. After serving in the Union army he went to Wyoming at the close of the civil war and started in the cattle-raising business, in which he has accumulated a large fortune.

Stories That Recall Others

His Reason.

Two strangers on a train got into conversation. The windows had just been let down and the desultory chatter consequently turned to the subject of ventilation.

"I make it," said one of the two, "an invariable practice to advise people to sleep with their bedroom window open all the year round."

"Ha, ha!" laughed the other. "I perceive that you are a doctor!"

"Not at all!" was the reply. "To tell you the truth, strictly between ourselves, I'm a burglar!"

What Money Says.

Jim, a rather cynical young man, has been paying his bills and sending some money home. Presently he yawned and stretched and remarked:

"Well, if money talks, it always says, 'good by to me.'"

Fred who has a family to keep came right back with: "To me it always says, 'How-do-you-do-without me?'"

Billie Knew.

Billie was sent to a store for an egg beater. Running toward home a friend accosted him.

"What have you got there, Billie?"

"An egg beater," and he ran swiftly on.

"Where are you going?" the friend questioned.

"Going to beat it?" chirped Billie.

HOW GEOGRAPHY LURED JOSEPH CONRAD

What geography and exploration, and the sea meant for him, the late Joseph Conrad told recently in some personal memoirs which he wrote for the National Geographic Magazine.

"Of all the sciences," he wrote, "geography finds its origin in action, and what is more in adventurous action, of the kind that appeals to sedentary people, who like to dream of arduous adventure in the manner of prisoners dreaming [illegible] their bars of all the hardships and hazards of liberty, dear to the heart of man.

"Descriptive geography, like any other kind of science, has been built on the experience of certain phenomena and on experiments prompted by that unappeasable curiosity of men which their intelligence has elevated into a quite respectable passion for acquiring knowledge. Like other sciences, it has fought its way to truth through a long series of errors. It has suffered from the love or me marvelous, from our credulity, from rash and unwarrantable assumption, from the play of unbridled fancy."

Speaking of a book describing the tragic fate of Sir John Franklin, lost in the Arctic in the early part of the nineteenth century, he said: "The great spirit of the realities of the story sent me off on the romantic explorations of my inner self: to the discovery of the taste for poring over land and sea maps: revealed to me the existence of a latent devotion to geography which interfered with my devotion (such as it was) to my other school work.

"Unfortunately, the marks awarded for that subject were almost as few as the hours apportioned to it in the school curriculum by persons of no romantic sense for the real, ignorant of the great possibilities of active life; with no desire for struggle no notion of the wide spaces of the world—mere bored professors, in fact, who were not only middle-aged, but looked to me as if they had never been young.

"And their geography was very much like themselves, a bloodless thing, with a dry skin covering a repulsive armature of uninteresting bones.

"The geography which I had discovered for myself was the geography of open spaces and wide horizons, built up on men's devoted work in the open air, the geography still militant, but already conscious of its approaching end with the death of the last great explorer. The antagonism was radical.

"Thus it happened that I got no marks at all for my first and only paper on Arctic geography, which I wrote at the age of thirteen. I still think that for my tender years it was an erudite performance.

"I have no doubt that star-gazing is a fine occupation for it leads you within the borders of the unattainable. But map-gazing, to which I became addicted so early, brings the problems of the great spaces of the earth into stimulating and directive contact with gone curiosity and gives an honest precision to one's imaginative faculty.

"And the honest maps of the nineteenth century nourished in me a passionate interest in the truth of geographical facts and a desire for precise knowledge which was extended later to other subjects.

"For a change had come over the spirit of cartographers. From the middle of the eighteenth century on, the business of map-making had been growing into an honest occupation, registering the hard-won knowledge, but also, in a scientific spirit, recording the geographical ignorance of its time.

"And it was Africa, the continent out of which the Romans used to say some new thing was always coming, that got cleared of the dull imaginary wonders of the Dark Ages, which were replaced by exciting spaces of white paper. Regions unknown! My imagination could depict to itself there worthy, adventurous, and devoted men nibbling at the edges, attacking from north and south and east and west, conquering a bit of truth here and a bit there, and sometimes swallowed up by the mystery their hearts was so persistently set on unveiling.

"I stand here confessed as a contemporary of the Great Lakes of Africa. Yes, I could have heard of their discovery in my cradle, and it was only right that, grown to a boy's estate, I should have in the later sixties done my first bit of map-drawing and paid my first homage to the prestige of their first explorers. It consisted in entering laboriously in pencil the outline of Tanganyika on my beloved old atlas, which having been published in 1852, knew nothing, of course, of the Great Lakes. The heart of its Africa was white and big.

"Surely it could have been nothing but a romantic impulse which prompted the idea of bringing it up to date with all the accuracy of which I was capable. Thus I could imagine myself stepping in the very footprints of geographical discovery.

"Not the less interesting part in the study of geographical discovery lies in the insight it gives one into the characters of that special kind of men who devoted the best part of their lives to the exploration of land and sea.

"In the world of mentality and imagination which I was entering, it was they, and not the characters of famous fiction, who were my first friends. Of some of them I had soon formed for myself an image indissolubly connected with certain parts of the world.

"I have smoked a pipe of peace at midnight in the very heart of the African continent, and felt very lonely there. But never so at sea. There I never felt lonely, because there I never lacked company—the company of great navigators, the first grown-up friends of my early boyhood. The unchangeable sea preserves for one the sense of its past, the memory of things accomplished by wisdom and daring among its restless waves.

"It was those things that commanded my profoundest loyalty, and perhaps it is by the professional favor of the great navigators, ever present to my memory, that, neither explorer nor scientific navigator, I have been permitted to sail through the very heart of the old Pacific mystery; a region which even in my time remained very imperfectly charted and still remote from the knowledge of men.

"Thus the sea has been for a hallowed ground, thanks to those books of travel and discovery which had peopled it for me with unforgettable shades of the masters in the calling which in a humble way was to me mine, too—men great in their endeavor and in hard-won successes of militant geography; men who went forth, each according to his lights and with varied motives, laudable or sinful, but each bearing in his breast a spark of the sacred fire."

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Before the King of the Mountain

Now let me see what happened after the little King of the Mountain asked his four trusty little men why they had brought Little Jack Rabbit to his palace underneath the great high mountain.

"This little rabbit is a traveler, Your Highness," answered the torch man, waving his flaming torch. "As he promised not to tell any of our secrets, we brought him along."

Strange flowers grow in many places

"Ah, is that so?" replied the little King with a smile, for he admired bravery.

"I am seeking adventure," explained Little Jack Rabbit hopping forward. "My uncle, Mr. Lucky Lefthindfoot is well known throughout all the world."

"Ha, ha!" laughed the little mountain king. "So you would seek adventure, eh?"

"Yes, Your Highness," answered the bunny boy bravely.

"Well, then, my pretty rabbit, you shall see the Underworld," answered the little King of the Big Mountain, and stepping down from his throne he reached out his hand. "Come with me."

Maybe you don't think it was a strange country, this land underneath the great high mountain.

Why there were all sorts of wonderful things. The roof of the great cavern was as blue as our everyday sky and the diamonds shone like little electric lights. Strange flowers grew in many places, and all the little people worked in gold and silver shops where they made beautiful things, the kind you see in the shop windows.

There were streets and houses and queer looking trees, with moss for leaves, and little rivers with bridges over them, and creaky old mill wheels with turning machinery that made all sorts of toys and dolls. And if Santa Claus had only known about this place, I guess he wouldn't have to work so hard up at the North Pole to get Christmas presents ready every year for all the little boys and girls who hang up their stockings or who wait until the Christmas Tree is lighted.

After the little rabbit had seen everything there was to be seen, he said he must be going, so the little King of the Mountain told the little man with the big bag to fill it full of presents. Then the little man with the big whistle blew a shrill blast and up ran a pretty little pony for Little Jack Rabbit. And after that the little man with the ax cut down a peppermint tree, giving the wondering bunny boy a lot of peppermint twigs to eat when he had the time. When all this was over, the little torch-man lighted the way out to the world of Fairy Land, and in the next story you shall hear what Little Jack Rabbit did after that.

IMBRIE URGED RESPECT FOR RELIGIOUS TABUS

The fact that Major Robert W. Imbrie, American consul at Teheran, had full knowledge of the prejudices of Oriental people against intrusion upon their religious ceremonies and counselled the strict observance of such scruples by travelers in eastern lands was brought out in a letter made public by the National Geographi Society.

The letter, signed by John Oliver LaGorce, vice-president of the National Geographic Society, was addressed to Wilbur J. Carr, Assistant Secretary of state, and said:

"In reading the despatches describing in part the tragedy itself, and suggesting that Major Imbrie was careless in taking photographs or disturbing a religious gathering, it has recalled to my mind my conversation with Mr Imbrie touching on this very subject and I beg the priviledge of placing it on record with you.

"Major Imbrie was describing some of his experiences in Oriental countries, and he said, if not in these exact words, in substance:

"I have a very healthy respect for the religious beliefs of the Oriental and feel that he is in every way entitled to the practice of his own religious convictions as he sees fit. Such being the case, I have always made it a point to keep out of mosques or holy places in those countries where the intrusion or view of Christians were objectionable; and, further, I do not feel it is proper to make photographs or religious ceremonies or what they construe as shrines or holy places where there is any evidence of a feeling of trepass in such action."

This subject was brought up by my remarking that there had been sent to us from a German source actual photographs of the inner shrine and the Holy Carpet at Mecca, and I questioned the advisability of publishing such pictures because it would certainly tend to outrage the feelings of the Broadway's regular prices.

BLACK HANDERS ACTING IN THIS CITY?

"Black Handers" in Norwich evidently took a night off Monday to watch the fireworks, a part of the Italian celebration, thereby giving a well known bell boy in a local hotel one more week of life.

About a week ago this popular bell boy received a letter, signed with the usual black hand, threatening terrible things scheduled to happen to him on Monday night, with midnight as the time limit. Not knowing what to make of the letter the copy was taken to the police and protection requested, but the police were inclined to look upon the letter as the work of someone who wanted to have a little fun.

As the fateful day drew nearer the man who received the letter grew more and more frightened, wanting to believe it all a joke, yet having a feeling that possibly some Black Hander was after him for reasons unknown.

When there were less than 12 hours to go, a second letter, sealed in a plain envelope, arrived at the home of the bell boy, and upon being opened was found to contain a message somewhat as follows: "Everything postponed for one week on account of the Italian celebration."

This letter cheered the bell hop considerably for it became apparent that the letters were the work of some acquaintance who wanted to throw a scare into him.

It is generally felt, however, that the joke is being carried too far.

TRUCK HITS CEMENT POST AT CEMETERY ENTRANCE

The Ford truck owned and driven by H. Rosenberg of Jewett City, was badly damaged and Mrs. Rosenberg and small child, who were passengers of the truck, suffered cuts and bruises, Monday afternoon about 4.30 o'clock, when the truck struck a cement post at an entrance to St. Joseph's cemetery in Greeneville, when Mr. Rosenberg turned sharply to the left to avoid striking another automobile.

Mr. Rosenberg claimed the car ahead of him made a turn to head into St. Joseph's cemetery and that the driver failed to indicate that the machine was to make the turn. He swung to the left to avoid the accident and applied the brakes but could not stop in time to avoid the accident.

The Ford truck slid a distance of about 25 feet, struck the cobble and cement post at the gateway to the cemetery, breaking an axle and windshield, the flying glass inflicting cuts about the face of Mrs. Rosenberg and scalp wounds and bruises about the body of the child who was with them in the truck. The Jewett City people were taken to the office of Dr. George Thompson where their injuries were dressed, after which they returned to their home in Jewett City.

Maria Trumbla, of Willimantic, driver of the other car in the accident, claimed that she had put out her hand before starting to turn into the cemetery. Her car was but slightly damaged at the rear.

PARADES, CONCERT, FIRE-WORKS MARK CELEBRATION

Italian residents of Norwich celebrated the Feast of the Assumption, as is the custom in their homeland, Monday, a salute of aerial bombs starting off the celebration in the morning. Shortly before 9 o'clock the Italian-American Band, Inc., gave a short street parade, leading the procession of Italian residents to St. Patrick's church for the religious portion of the observance of the day. Here there was a congregation of good proportions, including many others, as well as those of Italian birth or descent. The three altars were beautifully decorated and the music accorded with the festal character of the services.

In the solemn high mass, Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero was celebrant, Rev. Myles P. Galvin, deacon and the rector, Rev. Michael H. May was sub-deacon. Father Guerriero delivered an eloquent sermon on the Feast of the Assumption, speaking of how dear to the hearts of devout Italian Catholics in their beloved native land and in this, the equally loved land of their adoption, is the blessed virgin Mary, mother of the Divine Saviour.

As Organist Frank L. Farrell is on his vacation, the acting organist was one of his pupils, George Farrell, who had prepared an inspiring program for the services. At the offertory Mrs. Morgan Cronin sang the beautiful Ave Maria by Rosewig.

Throughout the day the celebration continued and many fine musical numbers were rendered by the Italian-American band. In the evening shortly before 8 o'clock the band gave another short parade and then marched to the brilliantly lighted stand at the Franklin Street park, where, for over two hours, a delightful and entertaining concert was provided, under the personal supervision of Prof. Pasqua[illegible], leader of the band.

The scene at the park was one of beauty. Hundreds of various colored electric lights cast their glow out over the park and the many booths, gaily decorated, added considerably to the holiday appearance of the park. Several thousand people gathered in the park or at convenient places and heard the musical program, hundreds coming in automobiles, which lined the streets and square as far as the eye could see.

Shortly after 10 o'clock, headed by the general committee, the band paraded to Burnham Street where dismissal took place. At this time the feature event of the evening took place and for about three-quarters of an hour the heavens were lighted almost continually with bursting bombs of from one to five breaks, or constantly changing set pieces, without doubt one of the prettiest displays of fireworks seen in Norwich in many a day.

An exceptional beauty was the set piece of the American and Italian national colors with silver star, another being Niagara Falls, always a pretty piece. Bombs of several breaks and colors ending with tremendous explosions interspersed numerous fine set pieces and the entire display came to a close with a magnificent display of aerial bombs, the sky being lighted for several minutes with dozens of bursts, bombs and streamers, closing with a roar of tremendous explosions, this piece, the Bombardment of Port Arthur, bringing an end to one of the most successful celebrations ever held by the Italian residents of this city.

GOVERNOR DETERMINED TO APPOINT OUTSIDE AUDITORS

Notwithstanding protests by certified public accountants and others throughout the state, Governor Templeton remained determined Monday to appoint outside auditors to go over the accounts of the state treasurer's office. It is expected that the appointment will be made at Wednesday's meeting of the state board of control, the members of which are the governor, Captain McCook, Attorney General Frank E. Healy and Comptroller Frederick M. Salmon.

Two of the outside auditing firms under consideration for the work are Price, Waterhouse & company and Ernst & Ernst of New York, with representatives of both of which the governor has conferred within the past few days. It is estimated that the independent audit will cost about $10,000, at the rate of $25 to $30 a day for each of five certified public accountants required for the work. The money will have to be provided by the state board of control.

Leonard Troub, ex-president of the Connecticut Society of Certified Public Accountants, was reported to be favorable to the lodging of an official protest by the society against the awarding of the audit to accountants not residents of Connecticut.

A. Vito, who is in charge of a state highway contract at New Hartford, issued a statement emphatically denying that former State Treasurer Gilpatric was in any way interested in state highway department contracts awarded to him, except in his (Gilpatric's) capacity as cashier of the First National bank of Putnam, where Vito arranged the financing of his project.

NOANK SHIPYARD LAUNCHES AN 80 FOOT TANKER

After several months work, interrupted by the recent fire which razed almost the entire plant the Noank Shipyard, Inc., has launched an 80 foot tank barge built for the U. S. Engineers department at Philadelphia.

The barge itself was undamaged by the fire but the equipment with which the shipyard did its iron work was destroyed. The result is that the uncompleted barge will be finished at the New London Ship and Engine Co. plant where it was towed following the launching.

The barge which bears no name, is 80 feet long, 26 feet wide with a hold depth of eight feet. Her capacity in oil, for which she is constructed, is 200 tons. Approximately 30 more days will be required to do the iron work on the barge and then she will be delivered to the Philadelphia engineers.

The Noank shipyard is rapidly recovering from the effects of the fire of a few months ago. While there are no facilities at the present time for iron work, the concern is doing all manner of work in wood.

At present the yard is putting out small sailing sloops of a single design at the average rate of one a week. There are two sizes of vessels, known as Wee Scots and Great Scots. The former are but 15 feet in length and th slatter 21.

They are being delivered to many parts of the coast including Bar Harbor, New Haven, Fishers Island.

The same sort of boat is becoming popular for lake use and some of the craft have already been delivered to Worcester. They are all strictly of one design with Marconi rigging.

HOW FASHION DEFIES GEOGRAPHY

"Another pet theory must be consigned to the rag-bag along with grandmother's black bombazine. Just because Chicago's winter slush originated the untastened goldshes, or the water-logged marches of Holland made Fritzie Dutchman take to wooden shoes, not all clothes arose from the necessity of protection against the weather," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"In fact, fashion has nearly always defied geography, and the flappers of F street or Broadway, in their chiffon hose and satin pumps in the midst of a January blast, or those who brave the arctic rays of a July sun in furs, are simply displaying atavistic tendencies, for clothes were first worn in warm semi-tropical countries.

"Man first adorned himself in garments to parade his position or rank before less fortunate individuals, who were content and thoroughly modest in a G-string or a headband. Conceptions of modesty came along later with more highly civilized conditions.

"With the donning of many garments to show rank there also grew up the idea of adapting the garments to the materials readily available. The Turkoman, for instance, probably likes his tall, shaggy, sheepskin shako, but he also wears this variety of hat because it is one which the great plains of Russian Central Asia easily afford.

"Current history nearly always has influenced the ornamentation of the boy or of the costume, as typified by the sphinx-caps worn by the later Egyptians and the Tutankhamen and mah-jong dresses in vogue within the last year or two.

"From a scientific standpoint, however, clothing and ornamentation of the body were the same in the beginning and through climate, during civilized times, has had a marked influence on determining the weight and warmth of the clothing worn in various localities, we have one marked example today of the fact that climate and geography were not the determining factors in the evolution of dress. The Arabs, who live within or on the immediate vicinity of the Torrid zone, swath themselves in heavy flowing garments while the inhabitants of Tierra del Fuego, where the climate is cold, rainy and disagreeable, attach by cord across their bodies the skin of one animal which they shift from one side to the other with the direction of the wind.

"In the early days when quantity of clothes meant rank and style, the desire to keep up with the Joneses' wear so many garments that they were weakening and deteriorating, for Croesus, who was the Rockefeller of his day, dissertated at length on the vice which was overtaking some of his acquaintances in a letter to his friend Cyrus the Great of Persia.

"One student of costumes of all ages has cleverly divided the development of clothing into two classes —the tropical, based on the girdle, and the Arctic, based on the trouser, but even these divisions have their complexities, for the trouser may have been a downward development of the waistband. The Greeks and Romans got a 'kick' out of the fact that the northern barbarians against whom they fought fore trousers. It immediately became a new item which they added to their fashion notes.

"But the girdle-trouser classification has some other confusing points —both the men and women wore them. This is still exemplified in the Eskimo and Chinese trousered women of today.

"As countries developed and boundary lines became fixed, the national character of the peoples got busy on their costumes, and we find the Spaniard with a stiff ruff about his neck and broad wings on his doublet, the German with bizarre slashings on his coat and sleeves, the Dutchman in somber black, and the Venetian in long flowing garments. Out of such human frailties and foibles, mixed with national pride, spiced with climate, and steamed with the imagination of modern modistes, were cooked up the varie and picturesque costumes of the world today.

"And even the men of America, who profess to dress comfortably to suit the weather, still show one lingering trace of the age-old heedlessness of climate. Though the sun is shining down with its sometime autumn relentlessness and the good straw which has served faithfully is still in its prime, September 15 is Felt-Hat Day. The Japanese men are just as bad. Summer comes in Japan on June 1, and on that day regardless of the temperature the Tokyo policeman bursts forth in all the glory of white coat and hat.

"The Vlach, of the Balkans, also shows a similar disregard for climate in another way. In January, February, June and July, he wears his heavy homespun garments, nor does he discard them at night. He shuts his windows to keep out the 'dangerous' night air and rolls himself, clothes and all, in heavy blankets and sleeps. But he manifests a contrariness probably unexcelled by men of any other clime. When caught away from home, this same salamander will sleep in the open on the side of one of his beloved mountains with only a rug to cover him."

WARRANT SWORN OUT FOR FIRPO'S ARREST ON A CHARGE OF PERJURY

New York, August 18.—The Rev. William Sheafe Chase president of the New York civic league which has been investigating the circumstances surrounding Luis Angel Firpo's admission to the country, today swore to a warrant for the Argentine boxer's arrest on a charge of perjury, according to an announcement by the clergyman's attorney, Bernard H. Sandler. Mr. Sandler said the warrant would be served tomorrow.

The request for a warrant was made after a four week's investigation which disclosed, Mr. Sandler said, that Firpo failed to tell the truth in regard to Elianca Lourdes Picart, with whom he arrived last July on the Steamship American Legion.

Mr. Sandler said an effort will be made to have Firpo deported before his scheduled bout with Harry Wills in Jersey City, Sept. 11.

Canon Chase issued the following statement at his attorney's office tonight:

"Firpo is to be arrested for committing perjury to immigration officials. I regret I, as a private citizen, had to act in this manner, but the neglect of the United States commissioner at Ellis Island has made it imperative. He refused to allow my attorney Bernard Sandler to examine records of the case. He declared that the New York civic league had no evidence to justify my demand for further investigation concerning the truthfulness of Firpo's statements when examined at Ellis Island. The bad administration of the law was evidenced to the eyes of the world as Commissioner Curran refused to act and Washington could do nothing to remedy the situation.

"We have to act in the interests of public justice. We have no desire to have Firpo imprisoned or injured but merely to secure the enforcement of the immigration laws to show the citizens of the United States and of the world that no individual, humble or great, no matter how powerful or influential the political interests which are backing him may be, can circumvent the immigration act.

GRIMES STOPS WINNING STREAK OF PIRATES

Pittsburgh, Aug. 18.—After winning nine straight games, four of them from the New York Giants, the Pirates went down to defeat today before the masterful pitching of Grimes of Brooklyn, the score being 7 to 4. It was Grimes' 25th complete game this season. Traynor led the Pirate attack with two singles and a double. Score:

REDS DOWN GIANTS IN SEVENTEEN-INNING BATTLE

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 18—Cincinnati defeated New York today in the longest game of the National League season to date, 8 to 7, in 17 innings. Carl Mays, who was in an automobile accident on his way to the ball park, was knocked out of the box in two innings. Sheehan pitched magnificently for nearly 16 innings.

Coming into the seventh six runs behind, the Reds batted Dean out of the box, scoring four runs on three hits and two passes and tied it up off Nehf in the ninth on three hits and a pass.

Neither side scored again until the 17th when a wild throw to Daubert in an attempt to force Kelly and a sacrifice fly by Snyder gave the Giants a run. In the last half of the round Sheehan led off with a single and reached third on two outs. Roush singled to right, scoring him with the tying run, and came home himself with the winning run by fast base running on Burns' double to left center.

It was the fifth straight defeat for the champions since coming west. The score:

FIRPO PUTS DIXIE KID AWAY IN WORKOUT

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Luis Firpo, training for his heavyweight bout with Harry Wills, teamed in a knockout act today with Dixie Kid, well-known Panama light heavyweight song and dance man of the ring.

The kid arrived in camp, ate two breakfasts and went into action with instruction to speed up the workout. He opened with a one-step and glide into a left to the face; shifted to a buck-and-wing and met another left to the jaw; broke into song and was jared loose from his act by a right to the chin, which sent him to the floor as the bell rang.

GOSLIN INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT IN WASHINGTON

Wishington, Aug. 18.—Leon Goslin, left fielder and leading batter of the Washington team of the American league, was slightly injured in an automobile accident today while on his way to the baseball park. His injuries did not prevent him playing in the game today. Goslin suffered only bruises and scratches, it was said.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Fordham Flash of the Giants

The team in the field has a six run lead. There is a runner on second base. Te batter hits a fly to center.

How should the center fielder play the ball?

Some young players seem to think that a center fielder should drop such a ball and try to catch the runner on second going to third, in rder to break up o possible rally, but with a six run lead the center-fielder should make sure of catching the fly even if the runner does advance to third. He is not much more dangerous on third than on second. It is poor baseball to fumble such a fly and take a chance on man on second being caught at third. Even if the play does work, the batter is almost sure to reach second, so there is nothing gained by it.

MIXED BOUTS TO BE BANNED IN CANADA

Ottawa, Aug. 18.—A recent ruling by the Ontario Athletic commission which prevents white and negro boxers from being matched, and which caused local promoters to call off a bout between Fred Snell, Toronto light-heavyweight, and Denis Crichelow, Ottawa Negro, has evoked a protest from the local branch of the Great War Veterans' Association on behalf of Critchelow, who is a former service man.

In the telegram sent today to J. P. Fitzgerald, secretary of the Ontario boxing commission, F. G. Forster, president against the ruling, pointing out that dent of the local was veterans, protest Critchelow had a good war record and a clean sporting record.

"There was no color for active service and there should be none in sport," the telegram said.

KACEYS MAY SEW UP N. L. TWILIGHT TONIGHT

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, August 18—The winner of the City league may be decided this (Tuesday) evening, when the Knights of Columbus nine meets the Fort Trumbull Stars. The Kaceys, requiring but one more victory to clinch the title to the league will no doubt strive harder to win this game than those that were won before. So much rests on this game that unusual precautions are being taken by managers of both teams, to have the best combination possible on hand so as to take the field full of confidence to win.

This game is a postponed game, and knights have one more deferred contest to play and this with the Trumbull Stars also. The Stars have a chance to win the league pennant but in order to do so must take two from the Knights, one from the Corticelli silk and another from the Tabs.

SECOND GAME OF MARRIED AND SINGLE MEN'S SERIES TONIGHT ON EAST SIDE

The second game of the little world series of the East Side will be played tonight when the Married Men and Single Men will battle again to break the ice and win the first game. Last Friday night these two teams battled for six innings and when the dust and settled the score was tie all around with nine runs apiece still leaving the large crowd interested in these games in doubt as to which team is really the fastest and stands the best chance of copping the series.

Both rival managers, Cook of the Henpecks and Peface of the Single Men, claim that their team has found the other team's weak points and will use them to advantage in tonight's game. When asked if he would start his recently imported star from China again tonight, Manager Cook made the following statement: "Of course I'll start Coleman tonight, he pitched a great game last Friday night and if the men behind him had acted like ball-players and not selves we would have won. He has the makings of a star twirler and it will be his work in the box that will help us run through the series and cop our second pennant."

Coleman really did pitch a sterling brand of baseball and deserved to wig last Friday night and should prove a menace to the Single Men stickers during the rest of the series although Manager Pedace in a statement last night remarked that his men with the exception of "Trickfoot" Ilisley, who swung madly at the atmosphere, last Friday night for three consecutive strikeouts were only kidding "Toda" Coleman and that he never was, or never will be a pitcher and that after his wrecking crew get through pounding the ball tonight Coleman will feel homesick for China. Although the Married Men are favored to win tonights game, the odds are against them on the series as it is rumored that Colonel Fowler one of the stars of last year will positively play Friday night and that Berger Goldberg, the real shining light of last year's series will be on hand next week to twirl the remaining games of the series.

An added feature to the series a large loving cup standing two feet high will be presented to the team winning the series which will be on display in Madden's Cigar Store and also a surprise package which shall go to the losing team and which will not be opened until after the final game and the contents presented to the manager of the losing team.

Both managers have refused to publish their lineups for tonight's game but it is known that many new faces will be seen tonight when the game starts.

NEW LONDON ANXIOUS FOR SERIES WITH NORWICH

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, August 18—With the city league expecting to declare its valedictory next week, it is about time that a series between New London and Norwich baseball teams is started. With the Norwich twilight season at an end, and with the East Ends on the top, the city league in this city has yet to wind up its affairs. The winner is far from being certain, but it is certain that either the Kacey's the teams at present at the head of the league, or the Fort Trumbull Stars will eventually win out in this twilight organization.

The attitude the local fans are taking toward the winner of the twilight league of New London and Norwich promises that there should be keen rivalry expected from the Whaling City athletes at least, if Norwich does not provide any keener rivalry there will be more than one fan disappointed. A series between the winners of each circuit can be easily arranged, with either New London playing at Norwich in the opening game or Norwich coming to New London for the opening contest.

A proposed best four game winner out of seven be declared the winner, and this little world series is bound to bring in the shekels into the coffers of the two league treasurers. There is no reason why a series of this nature cannot be arranged for the players of the league are highly in favor of such a series taking place, after the finale is sounded. The city league is the only circuit in the city that is considered the twilight league of the city, and the Industrial league will not wind up its affairs for at least three weeks more. So in matching up the winner of the Norwich twilight league with the winner of the local twilight league, the rival cities will be represented by athletes who are not imported from populating cities who, would be hired for the purpose of playing in this series only. Only those would be eligible to represent the teams of either city have played with the team all season and this would be doing away with ringers.

Norwich and New oLndon have always been rivals—and keen ones at that—in all sports and there is no reason why a series between the winning combinations of each twilight organization cannot be matched. Each team has a big following and this proposed series if it takes place may be the beginning of a looked forward to post season games for each team in the future. There is enough rivalry manifested by fans in this city to make the proposed series a success. The Indian summer is leaving us rapidly and officials of the Norwich twilight should act quickly and have a conference with the New London twilight president regarding this proposed series. It will no doubt meet with instant approval by both parties concerned, and it is hoped that it does.

SINGLE G SHOWS HEELS TO FAST FIELD AT RANDALL

North Randall, Cleveland, O., Aug. 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—Coming back after his winning heat of Saturday, when rain caused a halt in the Grand Circuit program, Single G., W. B. Barefoot's 14-year-old world's champion pacer, showed his superiority by defeating three of the best pacers in training here today. E. Allen, the Indianapolis reinsman, took Single G. into the lead at the start today and he was never headed. Pacing the first quarter in 29 4-5 seconds, the half in 1:00 2-5, three quarters in 1:31 4-5 and the mile 2:01 4-5.

Only once has Single G., met defeat on this track in nine years he has appeared here once or twice a year. That was last year when it is alleged he was given a drug the night before the race by a band of men who are accused to have doped him and several other horses in several other grand circuit cities. Several arrests were made

The second division of the 2:15 trot, also unfinished from Saturday, went to Rose R., which won both heats raced today. Saturday's mile went to Zoulou Man, which was never prominent today.

The first division of the 2:15 trot was declared finished and Hollywood Frisco, winner of the two heats Saturday, declared the victor.

INDIANS MASSACRE ATHLETICS IN HARD HITTING GAME

As usual, the 29th annual outing of the Ponemah Wheel Club was a huge success. The boys 150 strong left their rooms on Norwich Avenue at 9 a. m. headed by an escort of two state policemen from the Danielson Barracks, Swahn's Military Band in a large bus, and 26 machines decorated with balloons, streamers and American flags, started on their way for their good time the boys usually look forward to every year. After doing the principal streets of the village, they left by way of Lisbon, through Jewett City, Plainfield, Central Village, Moosup, thence to Moosup Pond, where "King" George Jacques was waiting for the boys with his usual appetizing menu, which was as follows, 10 a. m. lunch, 12, noon, clam chowder, crackers, tomatoes, cucumbers, sweet and sour pickles. Bake 4 p. m., steamed clams, fried eels, baked blue fish, brown and white bread, drawn butter, sausage, sweet and white potatoes, clam-fritters, sweet corn, tomatoes, cucumbers, beets, sweet and sour pickles, lobsters, dessert, watermelon, soda and cigars.

Everything went on in the usual good manner, with Swahn's Band rendering their usual fine program during the day, and Harry Schwartz, Frank Steinke, Peter Devito, John Thoma and Lou Gainor's "Hollywood Quartet" also entertained the boys with their fine singing, and witty sayings.

The Athletic program was also a big attraction with the following events and winners. Fat man's race, "Bill" Wohlleben, first, Fred Holdsworth second. 100 yard dash, A. Leupold. Three legged race, won by Pat Donohue and Herman Krauss. Three men relay won by "Bob" Pilling, A. Leupold, and Dan Perkins. Standing High jump, won by Oscar Bjork. Chowder eating contest, won by "Bill" Wohlleben, record of 12 large bowls, in one hour. "Bill" left his nearest competitor "Jewett City Joe" at the post who could only down 5 bowls of the "King's" fine chowder.

The committee who had charge of the outing and who deserve much praise, was William Enos, chairman, Fred Holdsworth, Jake Troeger, A. Leupold, N. Raymond, and Hop Donahue.

The attendance was the largest in some years, 165 out of 200 being present. A number of improvements to the beach, etc., were voted by the meeting. This year there are 150 cottages on the camp grounds. During the past year the association acquired a new fire engine, a pumper, and a new house has been constructed to keep it in.

The annual report of the treasurer, F. E. Tracy, of Hartford, for the year ending September 24, 1923, was heard and accepted. Committees such as transportation committee, roads and lights, music and entertainment, appraisals and sales, speakers and reception, printing, beach, fire engine, etc., will be appointed at the annual meeting of the board of management which will be held shortly at Niantic.

CAN'T STOP DRIVERS TO INSPECT LICENSES

No figures are available in the motor vehicle department of Connecticut for the purpose of comparison with the figures given out by Registrar Frank A. Goodwin of Massachusetts, showing that at least 20,000 persons in the Bay State are operating automobiles without a license.

Motor Vehicle Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel was unwilling to hazard a guess of the number who might be operating automobiles in this state without a license. He pointed out that in Massachusetts the law permits policemen to stop all cars to find out whether the drivers have a license, whereas in Connecticut it does not unless the driver is wanted for a violation of traffic laws or figures in an accident.

Therefore, while it is possible that there may be a correspondingly large number of motorists who drive without licenses in this state, there is at present no way of correcting the violation. The practice of stopping automobiles under the law, was discontinued in 1919 by acts of the legislature upon the protests of outraged citizens.

The only possible way to establish an approximate figure, said Mr. Stoeckel, would be to find out the number of drivers convicted for operating without a license, and multiplying it by a ratio which the department could establish from other figures available.

HAS BEEN SECOND HAND FOR 25 YEARS

Odilon Rousseau, for the last 25 years a second hand in the weaving department of the Dartmouth Mills at New Bedford, is leaving that corporation. He went to New Bedford nearly 29 years ago from Taftville, and was working at the Dartmouth when the first looms were set up there, about 27 years ago. He earned promotion to second hand and for many years had direct supervision of one of the jacquard weaving sections. He was one of the mill's oldest employes in point of service.

Rev. Thomas Tyrie Injured

Rev. Thomas Tyrie, recently pastor of the Methodist church at Warehouse Point and a member of the Norwich district but now in Springfield, Mass., was badly injured Friday night when he was struck by a one-man trolley car while trying to avoid passing automobiles on Main street there. POULTRY RAISERS TO PUSH CO-OPERATIVE ORGANIZATION

Although lacking 14,000 of the 100,000 birds required for the co-operative marketing contract of the proposed Connecticut Poultry Producers, Inc., the sponsors of the movement have decided to go through with the formation of the co-operative organization.

The contract contains a clause which calls for a minimum of 100,000 hens by the middle of August. Several weeks of campaigning for the members have thus far brought together for the proposed marketing association 86,000 birds. A number of contracts are still in the hands of producers in different counties, and the total of birds may be brought to 100,000 when these are heard from.

The members of the organization committee, of which L. A. Grouten of Farmington is chairman, and which represents one-fifth of the birds already secured, have unanimously voted to waive the 100,000 minimum clause. The committee will send a letter to the producers who have already signed contracts explaining the situation to them and requesting them to sign a waiver of the clause which will accompany the letter. Many of these producers at the outset of the campaign indicated that they would waive the clause in the event the organization was 10,000 or so short of the required total hens by the middle of August.

The members of the organization committee will continue the campaign for members. They will visit producers in the six counties to be represented in the association with a view to securing their signatures to contracts.

The committee has been empowered to advertise for a manager of the enterprise, and it will submit the names of applicants at a meeting of the member producers in Meriden on September 2. At this meeting the directors will be elected who in turn will elect the association's officers.

Seventeen thousand of the 86,000 hens secured for the proposed cooperative come from the co-operative in the western part of the state which has been operating for some time. The latter association has been maintaining a candling station for the handling of the eggs at Torrington, and when the new organization begins to function this station will be transferred to Waterbury, according to present plans. The headquarters will probably be in New Haven with candling stations in two other cities.

INCREASE IN NUMBER OF AUTO ACCIDENTS

The motor vehicle situation in Connecticut is getting worse so far as the number of accidents is concerned." This is a statement by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel in the August bulletin of the department, just published, which deals with bad driving practices. It is shown by the bulletin that recklessness of automobile operators is responsible for the continued increase in accidents in this state.

Examination of statistics of the department shows that 10,264 motor vehicle accidents were reported up to August 1. More than one-half of these are found to be due to carelessness of drivers. Other causes are carelessness of child pedestrians in crossing streets or playing in the roadways, negligence on the part of adult pedestrians in crossing streets and stepping from behind parked cars, intoxication, carelessness of bicyclists, motormen of trolley cars, etc., and defective equipment, such as defective steering apparatus and brakes, glaring headlights and insufficient light.

The only remedies available, the commissioner points out, are those which have been suggested time and again, namely more caution and care on the part of all concerned, more knowledge of traffic hazards and finally insistence by the police upon reasonable rates of speed, especially in cities.

Analysis of traffic reports throughout the country intimate that motor vehicle accidents are receding, but, taken by yearly periods this is not apparently the case in Connecticut, the bulletin says.

"Publicity, education and discipline are having the same effect in Connecticut as everywhere else," it is stated. "The public is becoming better warned of the perils with which they have to cope; children are better able to take care of themselves; parents are exercising more care over them, the schools are teaching the dangers of traffic, and in general the public is becoming wide awake to traffic dangers.

"Accordingly, the tide of motor fatalities may be from now on somewhat changed, but it can hardly be expected that the consequences of those accidents can be kept down and that serious accidents may be diminished in number."

Discussing the practice on the part of drivers of "cutting in," the bulletin says that in modern traffic in this state there is no excuse under any circumstances for cutting in and out of traffic. This practice must be stopped, Commissioner Stoeckel warns, and there must be no attempt made to pass any vehicle whatever where there is not ample sight line, especially as regards traffic coming from the opposite direction.

The bulletin also warns drivers to be cautious of their use of the horn, stating that it ought never to be used for other purposes than warning. Its unnecessary use cheapens it and makes it less distinctive, it is pointed out, and consequently it is not relied upon by the persons, it is intended to warn.

NORWICH TOWN

Sunday morning at the First Congregational church the sermon was by Rev. Theodore Bacheler, pastor of the Union Congregational church, of Providence. Rev. Mr. Bacheler, who has relatives in Norwich, representatives of the families of both his father and mother, expressed pleasure in being privileged to occupy the pulpit at this church, which he had attended during his boyhood.

"The Beatitudes" was the subject of the very interesting sermon, in which the speaker especially emphasized the meek and the poor in spirit.

The Beatitudes, by Thompson, was the anthem given by the choir, under direction of Organist Herbert L. Yerrington. Miss Marjorie Merry was the appointed leader for the Young People's Christian Endeavor service, when the topic assigned was, What I Find in Romans 12.

Owing to Camp Meeting being in session, there was no service at the First Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday. The pastor, Rev. James B. Aldrich and family are spending two weeks at the camp ground. Others who left Saturday to remain for about a week were Mrs. Albert G. Miner and granddaughter, little Miss Virginia Ward, Miss Florence Brown and Miss Hazel Cruthers.

A musical entertainment, cake, ice cream and home-made candy sale, held at the First M. E. church Friday evening netted $12. The arrangements were by the social committee of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society. Miss Florence M. Brown chairman, the proceeds are for the benefit of the Sunday school. Those who provided the entertainment were: Vocal solo, Mrs. Lewis Irish, Miss Brown accompanying at the piano; monologue, Miss Hazel Cruthers; vocal solo, Lewis Aldrich, Miss Brown at the piano; duet, violin, Miss Gladys Cruthers, piano, Miss Hazel Cruthers; piano solo, Mark Aldrich.

Juanita was given in chorus as the opening number. A feature of the programme which followed was the piano solo, Pussy Cat, by little Miss Mildred Carter, who gave as an encore, The Jolly Sailors.

Mrs. Richard Carter was in charge of the cake table, Miss Hazel Cruthers and Le Roy Miner dispensed ice cream and Lewis Aldrich was at the candy table.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington have returned to their home at Peck's Corner, following two weeks' motor trip through Connecticut and Massachusetts. The first several days they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. Avery Ray of Springfield. For about a week or more they visited at the home of Mr. Yerrington's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Yerrington of Northfield.

Miss Elizabeth Coffee returned to the Yerrington home Friday following ten days' stay at Niantic.

Mrs. Harriet Brainerd, her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Gremley, of Mystic, motored to Norwich Town recently, where they were joined by Mrs. Brainerd's brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb, in a delightful motor trip to South Coventry and Coventry Lake. A visit was made to the birthplace and homestead of Nathan Hale. A life size statue of Hale in seen when approaching the house, which is filled with antique furniture and curious. Many tourists avail themselves of the opportunity especially during the summer, of inspecting the collection, many things having been used by Hale. There is a fireplace in each room and in one room is the bed in which it was said Hale was born. Noticeable are an old square piano and a small cabinet organ, as well as an old style saddle which it was said was used by Hale.

The party visited the cemetery where a tall shaft has been erected to Hale's memory. The cemetery and the homestead overlook Coventry Lake.

George F. Hyde and his sister, Miss Jessie E. Hyde, returned Friday to their home on Washington street, after spending a fortnight at Niantic.

Alexander Kilroy, R. N., of Bellevue hospital, New York, is having two months' rest at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William Brosofske of Town street. Mr. Kilroy was obliged to give up nursing for a time due to illness.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. House and Mrs. Elizabeth R. Kinney motored to Atlantic Beach Sunday and spent the day.

Former Norwich Town residents Mr. and Mrs. Olmsted S. Peck (Jessie Balfour Browning) of Andover, had as guests Sunday Mr. Peck's cousin, George A. Peck and Mrs. Peck and son Crosby, also James Kiess.

POETRY

SEAWEED.

When descends on the Atlantic
The gigantic
Storm-wind of the equinox,
Landward in his wrath he scourges
The toiling surges,
Laden with seaweed from the rocks:

From Bermuda's reefs; from edges
Of sunken ledges,
In some far-off, bright Azore;
From Bahama, and the dashing,
Silver-flashing
Surges of San Salvador;

From the tumbling surf that buries
The Orkneyan skerries,
Answering the hoarse Hebrides;
And from wrecks of ships, and drifting spars, uplifting
On the desolate, rainy seas,—

Ever drifting, drifting, drifting,
On the shifting
Currents of the restless main;
Till in sheltered coves, and reaches
Of the sandy beaches,
All have found repose again.

So when storms of wild emotion
Strike the ocean
Of the poet's soul, ere long
From each cave and rocky fastness
In its vastness,
Floats some fragment of a song:

From the far-off isles enchanted
Heaven has planted
With the golden fruit of Truth;
From the flashing surf, whose vision
Gleams Elysian
In the tropic clime of Youth:

From the strong Will, and the Endeavor
That forever
Wrestles with the tides of Fate;
From the wreck of Hopes far-scattered,
Tempest-shattered,
Floating waste and desolate:—

Ever drifting, drifting, drifting,
On the shifting
Currents of the restless heart;
Till at length in books recorded,
They, like hoarded
Household words, no more depart.

—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

THE CLIPPERS.

What names the old time clippers had!
They spoke of mystery,
And wild romance, and all the stern
Salt magic of the sea.
When gallantly the fleets of yore
Went storming 'round the Horn.
With canvas towering in the clouds
And burgess tempest torn!

The Morning Light, the Evening Star,
The Sea Wolf, Albatross,
The Triton, Mermaid, Water Witch,
Valkyrie, Southern Cross,
The Amazon, the Flying Fish,
The Condor and the Foam,
(Some never crossed the bar again,
But more came racing home).

Tall spars and snowy sails and ropes
Like lace against the sky,
And forefoots buried in the brine,
And scuppers never dry.
Great wooden ships that made the hearts
Of deep sea sailors glad;
The Typhoon, Titan, Lorelei—
What glorious names they had.

—Minna Irving, in New York Sun.

An electric bricklaying machine has been invented that is said to lay 1,200 bricks an hour, as compared with 300 a day for the average workman. The laying wheel of the apparatus rotates, taking two bricks from the carrier, while another wheel spreads mortar as the carrier moves along the boom.

In tearing down an old store building in Rutland, Vt., the wrecker found, among other things, a copper cent dated 1801, several small empty kegs once used for beer, a great number of hand wrought nails and about 3,000 feet of seasoned spruce, 150 years old, that is to be sold for use in the making of violin backs.

At Clarence, Okla., W. E. Sunday, a business man found jury service unprofitable. He went to the courthouse to collect his fee for two days' service, amounting to $6, but was informed he had been late both days, and that the judge fined him $5 for each offense. So, instead of having something coming to him, he owed the country $4.

DAWES FOR A CAMPAIGN OF BRASS TACKS-NOT BOMBAST

Republican Vice Presidential Nominee Warns Against the Attack Being Made on the Principles of the Constitution by the Lafollette Movement—Declares That the Presidential Campaign is a Contest Between "Progressive Conservatism" and "Untried and Dangerous Radicalism."—Is Against Entrance Into the League of Nations—Advocates Permanent Court of International Justice—In the Matter of Taxes, Mr. Dawes Quotes a Reduction in Federal Assessments, While Most of the States, Cities and Towns Show an Increase.

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 19.—(By The A. P.)—The national campaign of 1924 was declared by Charles G. Dawes, in accepting the republican vice presidential nomination tonight, to be a contest between "progressive conservatism" and "untried and dangerous radicalism."

The nominee, speaking to several thousand gathered on the lawn of his home here, asserted the former position to be that represented by President Coolidge, the latter to be exemplified by the LaFollette independent candidacy, and, "interposed, the democratic party, with one conservative and one radical candidate on its ticket, hoping to get votes by avoiding the issue."

Contending that "a formidable attack has been launched on the fundamental principles of the constitution," Mr. Dawes characterized the LaFollette movement as the "chief opponent," of the republican national ticket and said he considered adherance to the principle fundamentals of the constitution the foremost issue in the November election.

This issue was stressed by the nominee in his address, but he also discussed two other questions at equal length—the League of Nations and the world court.

He announced his stand on the republican platform declaration against any entrance into the league and assailed the democratic position, as "an invitation to again enter that fog of debate in a public referendum." He commended the proposal of the present administration for adherence to the permanent court of international justice, declaring "it is to our national interests and the interests of the world."

Mr. Dawes also broke his silence in acceptance by the allies and Germany of the reparations plan bearing his name, declaring the credit belonged to President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes.

"With the experts' plan inaugurated," he asserted, "France, England, Germany, Italy, Belgium and all of Europe turn toward a new and peaceful life, with hope and happiness, rather than despair, in their hearts and prosperity ahead. The United States will be saved from the depths of an inevitable and great depression in industry and agriculture, which the continued chaos and misery of Europe would entail. Indeed, the whole world enters upon a period of peace and prosperity."

Attacking the LaFollette movement with the vigor and fire that made him a nationally known figure throughout the post-war investigations and the inauguration of the budget system, Mr. Dawes described the country's new political group as "a heterogeneous collection of those opposing the existing order of things, the greatest section of which, the socialists, flies the red flag."

"In this situation, for which the American people alone are responsible," he said, "the democratic party, as a party, instead of recruiting itself from the two battle lines, will suffer only the fate which befalls those who try to straddle in a real fight."

Mr. Dawes was notified of his nomination by A. W. Jefferis, former representative from Nebraska, who placed him in nomination at the Cleveland convention, and his response was heard by a large outpouring of republicans from the middle west and by thousands of his neighbors and friends in Evanston, and by delegations from nearby Chicago. They turned out despite a rain that had fallen most of the day drenching the lawn of the Dawes home which stretches away to a park fronting on Lake Michigan.

Many of the leading figures of the republican party were present at the ceremonies and participated in the old time parade and rally that preceded the exercises. William M. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee, presided; Frank W. Stearns, of Boston, close personal friend of President Coolidge, and Edward T. Clark, the president's personal secretary, were present as representatives of the executive and a dozen senators, and many national committee women were in the gathering.

The ceremonies in themselves were comparatively brief. The Rev. John Thompson, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Chicago, one of Mr. Dawes' neighbors, offered an invocation; Chairman Butler introduced Mr. Jefferis, who in a short address formally apprised Mr. Dawes of his nomination, and then the nominee made his response. The ceremonies then closed with a benediction by the Reverand Hugh Patrick Smyth, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church, of Evanston.

The nominee will plunge immediately into the campaign, leaving tomorrow for Maine where he will deliver an address at Augusta, Saturday.

Abstracts from Dawes' Address.

Three issues, "the fundamental principles of our constitution, the league of Nations and the world court, were the principal subjects in the address of acceptance by General Charles G. Dawes of the republican vice presidential nomination.

In discussing the constitution, General Dawes attacked the LaFollette movement, socialism and what he called "radicalism" in the LaFollette movement and in one section of the democratic party. He termed the LaFollette movement the chief opponent of the republican party.

He prefaced the address with figures on economy in public expense effected by the republican administration.

"This," said Mr. Dawes, "is a campaign of brass tacks—not bombast."

"This administration reduced the cost of governmental operation, and it was not by accident."

By this saving, he said, "approximately six million dollars per day less, for national purposse, will be collected in 1925 from taxpayers than for the fiscal year of 1921."

In the last pre-budget year after debt payments federal expenditures were 59 per cent. and those of cities, states and towns 41 per cent., while in 1923,he said, the federal government took 41 per cent. of the taxes compared with 73 per cent. by the other three.

Mr. Dawes said President Coolidge was "uninfluenced by motives of political expediency."

The republican party, he said, stands firmly on the constitution.

"Opposed to it," he said, "though the result may be to deadlock the presidency and make Bryanism succeed the Coolidge policy, is a movement of untried and dangerous radicalism." He said this movement had a platform drawn by one man, designed to soften "apprehension as to what the movement really means."

"A man is known by the company he keeps," said Mr. Dawes, and quoted from Associated Press dispatches concerning the Cleveland convention. He read a statement that "the socialist party formally enrolled under the LaFollette banner" and another, quoting Eugene V. Debs as thinking it "wise for our party to make no nomination" and "to keep the red flag flying."

Between these two armies of "progressive conservatism and of radicalism," Mr. Dawes named the democratic party "with one conservative and one radical candidate, hoping to get votes by avoiding the issue." He predicted the democrats would "suffer the fate which befalls those who try to straddle in a real fight."

"We are face to face with an abnormal condition in this country. The American citizen has seen men advocating in the same state, at the same time, irrespective of their inconsistencies, increased wages for railroad labor and decreased railroad rates, and higher prices for beef on the hoof and lower prices for beef on the table. From the average candidate, in either party, he must accept either evasion or a doctrine designed to please him, whether or not it tends to plunge the whole country into disaster.

"Robert M. LaFollette, leading the army of extreme radicalism, has a platform demanding public ownership of railroads and attacking our courts.

"Our nation is asked to follow an attack upon them (our constitutional principles) massed behind an aggressive personality, a heterogenous collection of those opposing the existing order of things, the greatest section of which, the socialists, flies the red flag, and into what? Into reopening of war upon those fundamental principles of human liberty and inalienable rights of men which are giving in this country safe opportunity to the humblest."

Mr. Dawes said the League of Nations was not approved by the people of the United States because it did not make clear to their minds that it did not encroach on the sovereignty of the United States.

"Perhaps," he said, "if those who drew the league plan had felt it incumbent to make its exact meaning as clear to the average man as those who drew it, the United States might have been spared immersion for five years in the immense fog bank of debate on the league."

The democratic platform declaration on the league he characterised as "an invitation to again enter that fog of debate in a public referendum."

He thought that the people of the United States have settled on "two great fundamental principles," first that the country's sovereignty and independence must always be preserved, and second that the country should meet its international duties unflinchingly. Taking these principles, he said, the Harding-Coolidge administration inaugurated a constructive policy, with important steps instanced in the four-pact naval treaty and the expert committee on reparations.

"With the experts' plan inaugurated," he said, "all Europe turns toward a new and peaceful life. The United States will be saved from the depths of an inevitable and great depression in industry and agriculture which the continued chaos and misery in Europe would entail. Indeed, the whole world enters upon a period of peace and prosperity."

"In the propositions of President Coolidge in connection with the world court there is safeguarded the sovereignty of the United States and its interests."

Likening the world court to a courthouse, Mr. Dawes said:

"Because we help build the courthouse, we do not have to try cases in it, unless we desire to. But we must remember that sometimes when a house is built it may be a very convenient thing to go into to avoid rain and lightning. Yes, and probably avoid the thunderbolts of war."

Asserting that American citizenship will trust its representatives to uphold as ably and fearlessly the honor of the country and the flag in any conflict of peace as it trusts "its youth behind the flag in war," Mr. Dawes said:

"The republican platform on foreign relations outlines a policy which, carried out with the common sense, clear vision and courage of Calvin Coolidge, offers the American people a constructive course of honor, safety and progress. It offers the only policy which at this time means the possibility of accomplishment."

Mr. Dawes said that in his speech at Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 29 he would discuss "the non-partisan and economic agricultural question."

BUSSES REDUCING THE EARNINGS OF RAILROADS

Meriden, Aug. 19.—Railroad passenger service soon will be seriously impaired if motor busses continue to increase in numbers, it was declared here today by C. L. Bardo, general manager of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, in an address before the Rotary club.

"Running passenger busses on highways parallel with our lines and on pavements paid largely by us, does not appear to be fair treatment," he said. "Every cent taken in by passenger busses is so much taken away from the railroad. It costs us $3 a mile to operate a passenger train, and we must get at least $2 in return."

He also said that local freight service is improving, indicating increased industrial activity, and that the New Haven road is now better equipped than ever before in its history, having 77 locomotives doing nothing waiting for business to come.

"I predict a return of New Haven securities to their former value," he continued. "If no obstacles are placed in our way, we will succeed in rebuilding and re-establishing this railroad. Better policies and better facilities have made the New Haven a safe and efficient transportation system. Since 1916 we have carried 739,000,000 persons without a loss of a passenger. Our trains traveled in this period a distance equal to 630,000 times around the world at its equator."

Speaking of railroad finances, Mr. Bardo said that the New Haven road should be able to take 25 cents out of every dollar received for interest, dividends, etc. Not more than 75 cents he said, should go back into the road.

Not only this is not the case, however, he said, but the company has been spending as high as $1.60 in expenses for every dollar taken in through the American Express company.

The speaker divulged the fact that as a result of the road's attempt to get a fair revenue by raising commutation rates around Boston it since has lost 225,000 commuters a month.

THE HERRESHOFF PLANT IS TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION

Providence, R. I., Aug. 19.—The famous Herreshoff boat building plant at Bristol, where every defender of the America's cup has been designed and constructed since 1893, will be sold at auction at a voluntary liquidation sale commencing at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, it was announced here today. The yards with full equipment will be sold as a whole or in seven parcels.

Lack of orders and diversion of business to stock job plants is said to be the reason that the Herreshoff Manufacturing Co., Inc., which owns the property, is to discontinue business. The Herreshoff yards have always been known as a specialty plant, and demand for specialty work is decreasing.

The Vigilante, Defender, Columbia, Constitution, Reliance and the Resolute were built by the Herreshiffs. The estimated value of the Herreshoff plant, which employs 300 workers, is $1,000,000.

Gilpatric Kept After Service of Warrant

Defaulting Cashier Was in a Semi-Conscious Condition After the Conference.

Putnam, Aug. 19.—United States Marshal Jacob D. Walter, of Cheshire, Conn., served a federal warrant on G. Harold Gilpatric, cashier of the wrecked First National bank of Putnam and former state treasurer, late today charging embezzlement of the nominal sum of $100,000. Gilpatric wept bitterly and was in a semi-unconscious condition after the conference.

Gilpatric whose peculations to date amount to $262,000 had been warned that the warrant would be served today but it appeared that he did not fully understand just what action was to be taken. It was necessary for Attorney William A. King of Willimantic, who has been retained as counsel for the cashier, to explain the procedure.

The former state treasurer took the serving of the warrant very hard and broke down and wept bitterly. "This ought never to have happened," he said to the marshal, and then told the United States official to go ahead and do his full duty.

The conference lasted more than an hour and it left Gilpatric a crushed man. He did not completely collapse, according to his physician, but was in a semi-conscious state, dazed and broken. His condition was being watched closely tonight.

Those present at the conference were Gilpatric's surgeon, Dr. S. B. Overlock, Attorney King, Attorney Ernest C. Morse, general counsel for the Gilpatric family and Marshal Walter.

No bond was demanded by Marshal Walter as Gilpatric was placed in the custody of his physician, Dr. Overlock and his attorney, Mr. King, who assumed the responsibility of bringing Gilpatric before a court when demanded.

Receiver Coffin, who will take over the assets of the First National bank as soon as the federal bank examiners complete their work and make their report, is preparing to mail out notices to the 1500 depositors of the bank, ordering them to bring in their bankbooks to be written up and verified.

Subscriptions to the new bank to replace the one wrecked continue to be received by the citizens' committee of 12 despite the fact that the $150,000 goal set has been oversubscribed by more than $10,000.

It is proposed to name the new bank the Citizens' National bank.

THIEVES CAME NEAR WRECKING CLAM BAKE

Brookfield, Mass., Aug. 19—Thieves came near wrecking the preparation of plans for Brookfield's big annual clambake and gala day today by stealing the town's equipment of platforms, booths, flags and vari-colored bunting decorations from storage.

As great preparations had been made to entertain a crowd of 5,000 people, there was great excitement when the theft became known, and hundreds of citizens flooded to the aid of the committee and worked all night to procure and set up new equipment, and when the hour for opening the festivities arrived at 10 a. m. today the grounds were fully equipped.

It is expected that repairs to the two planes, which were damaged in an attempted start for Fredericksdal yesterday, will require only about two hours when the Cruiser Richmond arrives with the spare parts.

If there is any further delay owing to the weather, and if ice conditions become better at Angmagsalik, the fliers may decide to make for that landing point in Greenland, as originally intended, instead of attempting the longer jump to Fredericksdal.

THREE MEN ON RUM RUNNER WERE SERIOUSLY BURNED

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19.—Five men brought here on a power boat from Block Island on Sunday, three of them so severely burned that they were taken to a hospital, said today that they were members of the crew of a British schooner running rum under a German charter. The injuries were sustained, they said, when a quantity of gasoline exploded Saturday night on a fishing boat which was lying alongside the schooner. They had previously asserted that they were fishermen from Sag Harbor, Long Island, and that they were burned after an explosion on the fishing boat Jennie B, which was abandoned.

The rum runner, their story ran, was the 450-ton British schooner Tom August, which had taken aboard 16,000 cases of whiskey and champagne at Bremen and sailed ostensibly for Halifax. The seamen said the captain told them he was going to land his cargo at Bermuda, but when the vessel arrived there he refused them shore leave and the schooner came north.

They told of transferring part of the liquor to vessels on the rum row off the New Jersey coast and the rest to boats that put out from Rhode Island and Long Island points. A boat from Sag Harbor, on which the explosions occurred, took the three injured men, Curtis Harrington, George Morino and Hans Boyer to Block Island.

RUM RUNNER WOUNDED DURING CHASE AT SEA

New York, Aug. 19—A rum runner was wounded by the customs marine patrol off Rockaway Beach, today during a chase in which scores of gun bullets were fired at the "Man O' War III" a former submarine chaser. The boat was captured with 700 cases of champagne and other liquors aboard. Six men on the craft were arrested.

William Rosen, of Brooklyn, a supercargo, was shot in the knee by a machine gun bullet. The hat of one member of the crew was shot from his head.

The Man O' War III, 69 feet long and armored from stem to stern with steel plates, was signed at Dawson by revenue scout boat H. R. M. which was searching for the "floating cabaret" off Fire Island. The former submarine chaser immediately made a run for the open sea and the government boat opened with fire with her machine gun. Many of the shots glanced harmlessly against the armor plate of the liquor craft but after a brisk run she shove to and the customs men boarded her. One of the ventilators was shot away.

The captured craft was in charge of Captain Edward Wilson of Greenport. He did not know to whom the liquor belonged.

GOV. MORGAN BECOMES MILITANT IN UTTERANCES

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 19—A call to arms to fight "dangerous doctrines" of pacifists and certain politicians threatening to destroy the principles on which the government was founded, was sounded by Governor Morgan in an address today before the state convention of the American legion.

"There are three candidates for president," he continued. "One of them seeks destruction of the supreme court. I do not need to call his name, but he is a man who, while you are in the trenches fighting for the life of your country, was in the senate and around the country preaching sedition."

REDISCOUNT RATES LOWERED BY FEDERAL FARM LOAN BOARD

Washington, Aug. 19—Reduction of rediscount rates was authorized today for the intermediate credit banks by the federal farm loan board. The new rate to financial institutions is 5 per cent. and to cooperative marketing associations 4 1-2 per cent.

The rates heretofore have ranged up to six per cent on some classes of paper. The authorized cut in the rates is in line with the easier money market throughout the country. The board, in an official statement, said the reductions were due largely to the lower interest rates which it has had to pay on debentures of the intermediate credit system.

EDISON, FORD AND FIRESTONE FRATERNIZE WITH COOLIDGE

Distinguished Trio Visited With the Family on the Front Porch at the Home of the Father of the President—Each of the Visitors Assured the President of His Support and Predicted Success For Mr. Coolidge in the Election—President Coolidge Conducted the Party About the Premises.

For an hour the distinguished party stopped at the home of John Coolidge, father of the president, visiting with the family on the front porch, inspecting the grounds and town and good-humoredly posing for pictures. They were also on a vacation, driving through en route to Montreal, Canada.

Calling principally to pay their respects, the visitors gave little time during the stop for a discussion of politics or business but each assured the president of his support and predicted success for Mr. Coolidge in the election. All lauded the present administration and gave enthusiastic reports on business conditions as well as on political affairs in brief interviews. The party enrolled in the home town Coolidge club at Ludlow where they stayed last night and each wore the club button on his lapel.

The President hearing of their approach went up to the sugar lot on the farm early this morning and brought down a sap bucket, made for and used by his great-great grandfather, an original settler of Plymouth, which he presented to Mr. Ford. The bucket was used also by Mr. Coolidge as a boy in collecting maple sap and the party listened with interest as he told of its history.

Handing it over to Mr. Edison for inspection, Mr. Ford remarked he appreciated the gift "more than any since I got Mrs. Ford."

The tiny porch of the Coolidge home was crowded and after sitting in the canvas swing and straight back chairs there for a while, the party moved to the front lawn, Mrs. Coolidge going with Mr. Edison to inspect the flower garden in front.

The party then walked up the road to the cheese factory, Plymouth's lone industrial plant, and after touring the building, returned to their automobiles and continued the journey north.

The visit was marked by laughe and friendly exchanges between the guests and their hosts.

Mr. Ford personally assured C. Bascom Slemp, secretary of the president of his support of the president. He said, however, he did not expect to take an active part in the campaign. Likewise, he expressed the opinion the candidacy of Senator LaFollette would aid rather than hurt Mr. Coolidge.

"It is useless to discuss the possible effect on a change in administration," Mr. Ford said, "because the people are for Coolidge and his election to me seems certain."

Mr. Firestone declared business conditions most satisfactory and he added that settlement of the reparations problem was bound to further improve the situation.

Later in the day, Gov. and Mrs. Fletcher D. Proctor, of Vermont, called and visited for a short while. This evening Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge went for a ride through some of the neighboring villages.

ARGUMENTS BEGUN IN LOEB-LEOPOLD CASE

Chicago, Aug. 19.—(By the A. P.)—Unqualified demand for the death penalty for Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, co-murderers of 14-year-old Robert Franks, was made of Judge John R. Caverly, today when the state, through Thomas Marshall, assistant state's attorney, began final arguments in the long legal battle.

"If this case does not deserve punishment by death, then no case in the history of Illinois has deserved that punishment," declared Mr. Marshall.

The arguments were reached after Benjamin Bachrach, backed by his brother, Walter and Clarence S. Darrow, his assistants in the defense, had finished pounding at the testimony given yesterday by Dr. William O. Krohn, fifth alienist and final rebuttal witness for the state.

All attempts by the defense to win from the expert a modification of his conclusion that Leopold and Loeb are mentally sound, failed. Neither would he acknowledge that his opportunities for observing them might have been improved. The battle of wits closed with an hour's recital of the court record of Dr. Krohn in which it was brought out that he had acted as an expert for three successive state's attorneys and had testified frequently in civil hearings in which mentality was involved.

TWO LIQUOR RAIDS BY POLICE IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Aug. 19.—Two raids by the police, one in New Haven and one in Fair Haven, this afternoon, resulted in two arrests and the seizure of a quantity of alleged liquor in both places.

Police raiding the restaurant of Antonio Mortoro, 88 State street, found a unique plan for concealing alleged liquor. Behind a coat-hanger on the wall, the officers discovered a small cork. Finding that the walls sounded hollow, they pulled away the plaster and discovered two tanks, one holding five gallons and the other ten. Alleged whiskey was found in both tanks. Running from these tanks along a bannister and down a flight of stairs to the cellar was a small pipe. A faucet was placed on the end of this pipe where liquid placed in the tanks above could be drawn off. Mortoro was arrested charged with violation of the liquor laws and his bail was placed at $1,000, it being the second time he has been placed under arrest.

In the garage of Michael Emons, 49 Clinton avenue, Fair Haven, the police found six cases of alleged whiskey. Emons was placed under arrest and his bond was fixed at $500.

CANADIAN EXCHANGE AT PAR FOR FIRST TIME THIS YEAR

New York, Aug. 19—Canadian exchange today touched par for the first time this year. The demand for Canadian dollars is said in banking circles to be due, in large measure, to the transfer of surplus funds from New York to Montreal and other Canadian cities for temporary employment there because of the higher interest rates across the border. Heavy purchases of high grade Canadian securities by American investors also has been a contributing factor.

Wall street also hears unconfirmed reports that persons engaged in illicit liquor traffic have been active purchasers of Canadian dollars.

The year's low in Montreal exchange was established on March 11 when the Canadian dollar was at discount of 3 1-2 cents in the local market.

COOLEST AUGUST 19 IN NEW YORK SINCE 1896

New York, Aug. 19—The weather just missed another New York record today when the thermometer registered 56 degrees, making this the coldest August 19 in twenty-eight years.

The coolest August 19 was registered in 1896, with the thermometer at 51. Rising temperature was predicted for tomorrow.

KID M'COY INDICTED FOR MURDER AND ROBBERY

Los Angeles, Aug. 19.—The grand jury late today indicted Kid McCoy ex-pugilist, for the murder of Mrs Theresa W. Mora, here Aug. 12, last. He also was indicted for assault with intent to commit murder and robbery.

The indictment for robbery followed presentation of evidence of McCoy's shooting orgy in the fashionable Westlake shopping district last Wednesday when he was accused of having held up several persons in the Mora antique shop and with having shot and wounded Sam Schapp, and his wife, Ann, and W. G. Ross.

There were four counts on the robbery indictment. A third indictment against the ex-pugilist charged him on three counts of assault with intent to commit murder.

McCoy started the day in his cell with a demonstration of what police observers termed unbalanced mind, and what alienists characterized as an attempt to sham insanity. Two alienists yesterday declared McCoy sane. Today he started to paste bits of paper about his cell, pacing nervously about and mumbling that he was making a trap "for that rat, Mora."

District Attorney Asa Keyes rushed his three alienists back to the ex-pugilist's cell when he heard of McCoy's actions. After observing the prisoner two of the alienists declared "The Kid" was feigning insanity.

While alienists and police were trying to determine whether McCoy was normal or insane, Mrs. Iva Martin was telling the grand jury that one of the two men she saw running from Mrs. Mora' apartment the night the woman died was Boy Kid McCoy, but Albert A. Mora, wealthy antique dealer and divorced husband of the dead woman. The second man she could not identify or describe.

Mora, who under Mrs. Mora' will made in New York in 1921, inherits her $125,000 estate and also is beneficiary of her $30,000 life insurance, had preceded Mrs. Martin on the stand, tracing his movements the night his wife was shot and establishing what investigators said was a perfect alibi. Mora testified that McCoy had threatened his life repeatedly.

WILLIMANTIC

John M. Kean, who took Horace Greeley's advice, left Willimantic and went West in the summer of 1872, is paying his first visit to this city in over fifty years. Mr. Kean has lived in Nebraska, Washington state and California since leaving the east. Some time ago she decided to take a trip around the world, intending to circle the United States first and visit his birthplace at Warren, R. I., also Old Windham where he attended the First district school under the well known principal, John D. Wheeler. Mr. Kean is staying at the Y. M. C. A., and in a few days will cross the continent and sail from San Francisco for his round-the-world tour. He started his trip by sailing down the Pacific and through the Panama canal, then to New York. Mr. Kean recalls many of the former landmarks in the city, especially the old wooden buildings on Main street with quaint picket fences in front and numerous hitching posts, now nearly all gone and replaced by up-to-date buildings. Mr. Kean lived in this city for seven years from 1865 to 1872. His father, John Maxwell Kean, was the first man to make gas in Willimantic.

At St. Joseph's rectory Tuesday morning at 8.30 o'clock, Arthur Ryan, son of the late Daniel J. Ryan of No. 169 Chapman street, and Miss Pauline Swanson, daughter of Mrs. O. Swanson of No. 53 Lewiston avenue, were united in marriage by Rev. John E. Clark. The best man was Thomas O'Brien, and the maid of honor was Miss Louise Swanson, sister of the bride. The bride was attired in a powder blue georgette gown with a hat to match and she carried a showers bouquet. Her maid of honor wore black satin trimmed with bronze, with a hat to match and carried tea roses. Following the ceremony, the bridal party left for Providence where they had breakfast at the Hotel Biltmore. Mr. and Mrs. Ryan will spend his honeymoon in Boston and other places of interest in the east. Upon their return they will reside at No. 53 Lewiston avenue. The groom is in the employ of the American Thread company while the bride has also been employed by that concern.

Several times the steeple of the local Methodist Episcopal church has been examined and found to be in excellent condition, in spite of the fact that many believe that the structure is not safe. However, the spire and bell deck have to be repainted every so often and this is a costly proposition in these days of high prices and wages. In view of this fact the trustees of the church have decided to have the steeple taken down and the work was begun Tuesday by men in the employ of Contractor Frederick P. Davoll. The trustees decided that the cost would be no more to take the spire down than to repaint it, which would have to be done again before many years.

The church is 74 years old, having been built in 1850. The conical-shaped steeple rises several feet above the bell deck. The latter is in two sections the one sustaining the steeple being 12 feet square and the under deck 18 feet above the roof.

It is planned to make the bell deck more attractive and it is possible that a cross may be erected on the top of the bell deck so that it can be electrically illuminated at night. If the cost is not found to be prohibitive, this will probably be done.

Monica McKeon, Miss Catherine Dillon and Miss Margella Curran sang Abide With Me. Miss McKeon sang Pie Jesu at the offertory and for a waiting hymn, Some Sweet Day. A large delegation from San Jose Council, No. 14, Knights of Columbus, attended the funeral. The bearers were Joseph Riley, John E. Shea, Arthur E. Welch, John Ryan, Jeremiah Donohue and L. The boy was sentenced to the state reform school at Meriden, judgment being suspended and he was placed on probation for six months.

With only a few short of 500 fishermen's licenses issued by the town clerk, there comes the report Tuesday of a three-pound large mouth bass being taken at Pachaug, by a man using helgramite for bait. The one time method of still fishing for bass seems to have been pretty well supplanted by the throw and haul methods, with artificial painted plugs or buck-tail spinners. The opening of a new local industry is made apparent when it comes to helgramites. A local man knows of a firm in Reading, Pa., that sells thousands of this sort of black bass bait, to the Maine lakes fishing resorts. In Boston, "dobson" (so-called) are retailed for from 5 to 10 cents each. A local man with a net made of screen cloth and a barrel hoop, visited the eel weir, near the old Calvin Wilcox mill, on the Quinebaug, about 100 feet below the lower railroad bridge, one morning a few days ago. The river was at low stage, it being before the water from the mills up the stream had reached Jewett City. "Talk about dobson" he said, "I got 50 big ones in 25 minutes." There are more than a dozen of these eel weirs in the Quinebaug, built by the fishermen of another age, all between Jewett City and the tunnel. At the time of low water in the morning, 95 per cent of the hundreds of thousands of stones in these great weirs that are found in their herrow shaped, angular fashion across the stream, are the river homes, of helgramite, until they quit them for the air. With the market today at 5 cents each, a fortune awaits the hunter, between Jewett City and the tunnel.

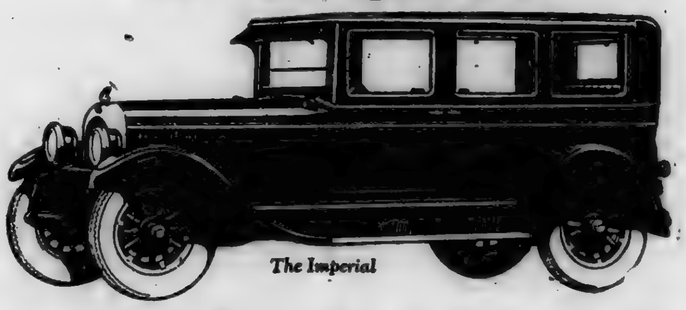
Whether or not the city of New Haven has the power to regulate the nature of trolley cars to be operated here by Connecticut company will be decided in the near future following introduction at a special meeting of the board of aldermen of a proposed ordinance dealing with this issue.

Unequaled Driving Ease At All Speeds



The Imperial

The four-wheel brakes—Chrysler-Lockheed hydraulic type—we believe to be the simplest and most efficient in existence today. They are automatically and permanently equalized. Each individual wheel receives precisely the same braking pressure each time the brakes are applied. These brakes require no lubrication. There is not a single rod or strut to rattle. Also among the numerous Chrysler Six features are the centrifugal air-cleaner which purges the air taken in by the carburetor; and an oil-filter which thoroughly cleans all the oil in the crankcase every 25 miles, promoting economy and long life.

The Chrysler Six

Pronounced as though spelled Crysler

With a touring car weight, ready for the road, of 2705 pounds, the Chrysler Six can be driven in comfort at 60 miles and upwards over rutted roads and cobbled streets.

Its Chrome-Molybdenum tubular front axle and pivotal steering, with ball thrust bearing king pins, make it as easy to handle at speeds of 60 to 65 as at 30 to 35.

A new type of spring mounting, with springs close to the hubs and parallel to the wheels, makes it possible to drive the Chrysler Six around turns at 50 miles an hour. Side-sway and road weaving are eliminated.

We invite you to study at first hand the new standard of performance established by its scientific design and engineering.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan.

Baby Peggy stars in a gripping story of domestic tangles, jealousies and infatuations, in "The Law Forbids," her latest Universal Jewel release, with an exceptional cast, which comes Thursday to the Broadway theatre. Of course the Baby Bernhardt is an innocent figure in the tangle—but she repairs a wrecked romance charmingly. The notable cast, including Robert Ellis, Elinor Fair, Joseph Dowling, Winifred Bryson and other standard artists, support her. Jess Robbins directed from an original story by Bernard McConville.

The first efforts of film producers to picturize unusual screen material will be witnessed in the showing of "After Six Days," featuring Moses and the Ten Commandments, which starts an engagement at the Broadway theatre Sunday. This film is a complete version of the Old Testament of the Bible from Adam and Eve to the Songs of Solomon. Due to the immensity of the subject, the picture is understood to have been five years in the making and involved the expenditure of $3,000,000. The picture embraces the most important episodes of the Old Testament including Adam and Eve, The Deluge, Cain and Abel, Moses and the Ten Commandments, The Tower of Babel, Sodom and Gomorrah, Joseph and His Brethren and the Imortal Songs of Solomon.

Palace Theater

Last time today, Elaine Hammerstein in Daring Love with Huntley Gordon, Gertrude Astor and others, Our Gang comedy The Cobbler and Pathe News.

Tomorrow, one day only, The Marriage Chance.

What is the solution to the mystery in The Marriage Chance, the new picture at the Palace theater Tomorrow? Why do things happen as they do, and what is the meaning of them? It was predicted by New York critics, when this comedy with a dramatic shock was shown there, that not one person in half a hundred could put his finger on the one thing that would explain it all.

There have been mystery pictures galore but it is safe to say there never has been one like this played by Alta Allen, Tully Marshall, Irene Rich and Mitchell Lewis.

The solution, however, lies in a single word. If you know what word when the picture begins nothing will astonish you although you will be vastly entertained by the strange happenings that befall the heroine and everybody else.

Added attractions, educational comedy The New Sheriff and Pathe Review. Don't fail to see this program, tomorrow, one day only.

Palace Theater

Old Man Minick is a refreshingly different comedy. This is not unusual when one considers that two authors who have long been noted for their originality collaborated in its writing, George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber, and it is based upon a short story by Miss Ferber.

Kaufman, of course, has been coauthor with Marc Connelly of several of the most conspicuous and novel comedy successes of the past few seasons including "Beggar On Horseback, Dulcy and Merton of the Movies. Miss Ferber is better known as a novelist than as a dramatist, although she too has had tramatic experience, having written Ethel Barrymore's erstwhile offering, Our Mrs. McChesney.

Old Man Minick will be presented by Winthrop Ames at the Palace theater for two days beginning Friday, with a matinee Saturday. The title-role will be played by O. P. Heggie, one of the finest character actors in our theater today.

Lyceum Theater, New London

Richard Martin, who plays the role of Paul Thomas, the handsome Moving Picture Leading man, in Izzy, the new comedy which George Broadhurst will present here for three performances on August 22nd and 23rd at the Lyceum theater, New London, made his professional stage debut as a dancer.

It was during the dance craze and Mr. Martin was attending Harvard Law school, that he discovered his talent. Or rather, Mrs. Vernon Castle discovered it for him. She offered him the chance to tour throughout the country as her dancing partner, and he, seeing a career more exciting than any the Bar could offer, accepted.

After the engagement with Mrs. Castle, Mr. Martin danced for a season with Mae Murry, then the Great France. After the armistice was signed Sergeant Martin joined the A. E. F. Stock Company in Paris and when he was finally discharged he went into pictures.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Julius Rainville of North Main St., has good sight. He can see stars in the daytime, but when he has, of a quiet evening of late, mentioned the fact to his friends they have been inclined to be impressed that he was spoofing them. But Mr. Rainville was not doing anything of the kind. He proved it Tuesday morning when he invited scoffers to step right out in the brilliant sunlight with him and take a look at the planet Mars. He not only knew exactly where it was, but could and did point it out so that any interested person with a pair of eyes of average keeness could see it also. If you doubt it and it is clear this morning, you can find it yourself, not distant from the sun.

Killingly owners of dogs that are unlicensed or that are running about without tags have had one warning recently that representatives of the commissioner of domestic animals are working in Eastern Windham county and that Killingly is not excepted from the towns that are due for a cleanup. There are unlicensed dogs in Killingly. There are other dogs that go about without tags. Excuses will not be accepted for this when their owners are called to account. Chief Special Deputy Howard A. Elliott continued to work in this territory on Tuesday, giving attention to Killingly and other nearby towns.

There is a possibility that the supreme court of the state eventually will have a chance to pass upon the legal points at issue in the case developing from the arrest of John E. Collett of Providence, operator of the big motor bus put into service last week to run an express service between Providence and Hartford, over the Danielson pike and thence from this place to Willimantic and on to Hartford.

Collett was ordered into court in this town last Friday afternoon on the return trip to Hartford. He posted a cash bond of $50 for his later appearance in the town court of Killingly—and the next day took up the run again and made trips on Sunday and Monday. On his latest appearance in the town court here a total of eight charges were filed against him, six of these growing out of his operating the bus after his first arrest. He would not plead to any of the charges, on advice of counsel, it is understood, so was placed under bonds of $500 for a hearing next Monday.

The case is especially interesting, because it sets up an opportunity for a person so inclined and with much at stake to question the right of the state of Connecticut to control interstate express traffic such as Collett's line has established. The fact that the bus line in question takes no passengers en route, but receives its complement of riders in Providence, a Rhode Island point, for the direct express trip to Hartford, a Connecticut point, appears, in the opinion of many, to represent a problem for the interstate commerce commission, the registration requirements of Connecticut and Rhode Island having been complied with, something Connecticut says has not been done as yet.

Louis Chevrette, after presentation in a justice's court in the town of Plainfield Tuesday morning, was sentenced to serve 30 days in the county jail at Brooklyn. Chevrette is the father of a young man who was in the superior court in this county early in the year to face a charge of robbing poor boxes in the Catholic churches in eastern Connecticut. For a similar offence Chevrette was sentenced to serve a long term in the New London county jail at Norwich. He was arrested by State Officer Comstock when released from that institution Tuesday morning and immediately was brought to Plainfield and presented in court.

It is not apparent yet that numbers of Killingly men who are going to vote for LaFolette for president are interested in other than republican and democratic candidates-to-be for state and local offices. What they appear to be after is a change in the national administration and such a change as will penalize both the republican and democratic organizations. In state and town affairs they appear, as the individual case may be, well enough satisfied with such tickets as the old parties may name. That is as things stand here today.

The funeral of Edmond Champagne was held from his home Tuesday morning with solemn high mass of requiem at St. James church. Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S., was celebrant, Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., deacon and Rev. James McCarthy, M. S., sub-deacon. Burial was in the Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Moses Meunier, Napoleon Dube, John Benjamin, Napoleon Duquette, Alfred Champaigne and Joseph Robeau. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

A pair of nifty little fire trucks, motor-driven, intended for the department at Southington, were run through Danielson Tuesday morning on their way from the builders to the town that will take them over. They were of interest when they stopped at a filling station here to take on gas.

Territory horseabouts has been quite liberally placarded with notices of the danger of causing forest fires by the carelessness of persons who happen to be roaming through woodland territory these summer days or who motor along country highways seeking recreation. It is indicated that these placards have been of value inasmuch as they have impressed people with the need of being carful with matches and smokers materials.

In the eastern section of the town crews are engaged in cutting brush that has grown at the sides of the highways and so choked them as to make it difficult in some cases for machines to pass without being marred and without their occupants being slapped by some unruly bush or limb.

Arthur Rainville, Ira A. Warren Henry Wolcott, Clarence Reed, Joseph Burton, Almoure Grennon, Herbert Hopkins and John F. Reardon, Jr., are delegates from this section to the state convention that the Volstures of the state are to hold in Torrington on the 20th, when the American legion also will hold its state session in that city.

These are great days for the carp fishermen. The water in the Quinebaug river is at a low level and seeking the fish in the shallow coves near the old icehouse and at other places a mile or more above the bridge is interesting sport.

In view of the fact that the members of the Service battery are leaving tonight for their annual tour of duty in the north, it will be of interest for the public to know that mail for members of the command will reach them if addressed to the Service Battery, 102d F. A., C. N. G., Fort Eustis, Va.

At this evening's meeting (Wednesday) of McGregor, W. R. C., Miss Lillian Bailey, who attended the National convention of the organization in Boston the past week, will make a report on the event.

W. S. Brown, who has a herd of pure bred Holstein cattle at his Shepard Hill farm near Wauregan, has entered 14 head for exhibition at the New London county fair.

PUTNAM

In New York forty children of the East Side tenement districts are being ticketed and tagged preparatory to a journey to Putnam Thursday. At this end all arrangements have been made to meet the youngsters and to distribute them to their final destinations—various homes in the outlying districts and in neighboring towns. Owners of automobiles have volunteered this service of distribution. After their five-hour ride on the train the children will be served cold milk and sandwiches before the final lap of their journey.

It is later in the season than ever before for the coming of the "Fresh Airs." This will afford them an opportunity to see the ripened fruit on thetrees and berries on the vines. Sweet corn also is just ripening and there is a variety of vegetables now in every garden.

A representative of the New York Tribune Fresh Air fund will accompany the children to Putnam, where they will be taken in charge by Mrs. W. J. Bartlett, chairman, and her associates no the committee. When it comes time to return home, after two weeks' outing, the children will be assembled at the Putnam railroad station, where they will be met again by the representative of the fund.

The Congregational church on Woodstock Hill was well filled Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock when funeral services were held for Rev. David Phillips Hatch, who was stricken with a heart attack while preaching the Sunday morning sermon, and died shortly after he had been carried to the parsonage next door. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Howard A. Bridgman, D. D., of Groton, a former editor of the Congregationalist and a classmate of Mr. Hatch at Amherst college. There was singing of some of the favorite hymns of Mr. Hatch and the front of the church was banked with floral pieces.

The body of Mr. Hatch was taken by automobile hearse to Marshfield, Mass., this (Wednesday) morning. Marshfield is the birthplace of Mr. Hatch. No funeral service is to be held there, but a short committal service at the grave is planned.

Miss Frances Cutler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Cutler of Oak Hill, entertained a number of little friends Tuesday afternoon on her fifth birthday. Games were played and refreshments, including a birthday cake and ice cream, were served.

THE BANK SITUATION IN ITS LATEST DEVELOPMENTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Aug. 19.—The stockholders of the First National bank made the first mvoe to protect their interests Tuesday afternoon by calling a stockholders' meeting for Friday evening in Odd Fellows' hall. The following notice was sent t oall stockholders:

"Putnam, Conn., Aug. 19, 1924.

"Stockholders owning more than 250 shares of the stock of the First National bank of Putnam have decided that it is best to call the stockholders together, to see if they deem it wise to appoint a committee to protect the interests of the stockholders in every possible way, perhaps especially by rendering some assistance to the receiver in the proper realization upon the assets of the bank.

"Therefore, at the request of stockholders owning more than 10 per cent. of the capital stock of the bank, you are requested to meet at Odd Fellows' hall in Putnam, Friday, Aug. 22, at half past 7 o'clock in the evening, to discuss the present situation, and, if thought best, to appoint a protective committee of the stockholders to confer with the receiver and take any proper action for the benefit of the stockholders, and

"To take such further action as may be determined by the stockholders so assembled.

(Signed)

Following a meeting of the citizens' committee authorized at a meeting last Thursday to go ahead with such steps as necessary to form a new banking organization, which was held Monday evening, a formal application for a ational bank charter was mailed to the comptroller of the currency at Washington. In this application a request was made to reserve the name "Citizens' National Bank" for the proposed new institution.

While nothing further was given out as a result of this meeting, it is understood that the details of organization and other matters in a tentative form were generally discussed.

Subscriptions to the stock of the proposed bank continued to come in all day Tuesday and at last reports had passed the $175,000 mark. The bank is to be capitalized for $100,000, with a surplus of $50,000, if the first plan is adhered to. This is the minimum at which a national bank may be incorporated. Whether or not, in view of the large oversubscription, there will be any change in the original plan of finnacing has not been stated or suggested.

Although it was intimated that a statement of some sort might be issued at the bank Tuesday, the statement was as elusive as it has been since it was first anticipated a week ago. It was admitted, however, that an inventory of the bank's assets had been made by Bank Examiner Carolyn and that the examiner and the receiver, Charles H. Coffin, were engaged during a greater part of Tuesday in checking it up with the view of having the receiver formally take over the assets.

The receiver also had several conferences with his attorney, State Attorney Charles E. Searls, during the day. As far as Gilpatric's personal assets and liabilities are concerned, they are, especially the liabilities, in as tangled a mass as ever.

For the past two or three days there has been a steady stream of both men and women entering the bank making inquiries as to money and negotiable securities placed in Gilpatric's hands for safe keeping or investment. They want to know if they are safe, and where they are. In many instances those who call have absolutely nothing to show for what they turned over to the defaulting cashier of the bank. It is understood that even jewels have been left with Gilpatric as security for a loan, and no receipt for these valuable ornaments taken. In view of this situation, and it continues as more and more come to the bank seeking such information, those in charge hold up their hands when asked for a statement along this line and admit that it can't be done—at least, not at this time.

There is considerable speculation as to where the new bank will find a location. A statement was made to one of the citizens' meetings that Chief Bank Examiner Bean had said that the First National bank building could be vacated in six days. However, the building, as carried in the bank's assets, stands at $100,000, which, if rented, would call for a rental at from seven to ten thousand a year. A conservative business man, interested in the formation of the new bank, expressed the opinion that the new bank would not be in a position to take over such an elaborate bank building at the start unless some special financing arrangement could be made. There are the vacant rooms occupied by the First National bank on Union street during the period that the bank building was being rebuilt. This room contains a vault and is well equipped for the conduct of a banking business unless there is superstition among the stockholders of the new banking institution. It was in the rooms on Union street that was situated the Thompson Savings bank. The bank was removed from the neighboring town whose name it bore, and after a short period of poor business was forced to close its doors.

The rooms remained empty until taken over by the late E. M. Arnold, who, as a private banker or broker, started a business in which he sought loans, guaranteeing his clientele 6 per cent. Not only did he pay the 6 per cent. to some of his first customers, but it began to be rumored that he was paying as high as 25 and 50 per cent. The money began to pour into Arnold's insittution and he became the local Wizard of Finance. Then came the crash and the depositors of over a million dollars did not realize a penny.

A number of merchants on Main street, when asked if business had fallen off since the trouble at the First National bank, stated that they noticed a considerable difference in business before, which was poor owing to mills being closed, and business at present, which is still poorer. People are conserving their cash and buying only what they actually need. The business men are optimistic. Most of them feel that if they can pay expenses during the present period of depression they will be satisfied. The season is one of advantage, as the outlying summer colonies are populated and come to Putnam to do their shopping. This source of revenue will vanish in the next two weeks.

While the situation of the bank and the proposed new bank continue to be the chief topic of discussion, Gilpatric is being slowly forgotten. Requests for news of his condition are becoming fewer and fewer and only half-heartedly attended. Possibly the most wonderful thing about it all is the lack of evidence of vindictiveness. While it is seldom now that he is alluded to directly, when it does occur it is without rancorous words. This may be due, in part, to his former personality and part to the knowledge that he will never see the light of day again. This latter God-given punishment softens the hearts of his fellow men.

PLAINFIELD

George Hutchinson when at the bad curve on Hopkins Hill Monday afternoon, was coming up the hill when a car was coming down at a rate of speed which made it skid around the corner and into the Hutchinson machine. The damages to both cars will be settled by the driver of the other car, it was reported. It is hoped that this corner will be eliminated when the new road is laid.

During the afternoon and evening Sunday there was three accidents on that corner, one of the worst places between Putnam and Norwich. There is a thirty foot embankment flanking the road on the right (going north), making it impossible to see beyond the corner. There is a rough section in the road at the corner and strangers not acquainted with the road find it very hard to make the corner with ease. The danger in the day time is greater than at night as there is no way of getting any warning around the corner.

All are awaiting the opening of the Plainfield Community club field day, which is but two weeks off.

Every Labor Day an annual field day is promoted by the officials and many useful gifts donated. For the past few years hundreds have witnessed these events with interest.

Miss Marion Cleland will be in the employ of the Lawton Mills Corp. in the office for the next two weeks.

The Lawton Mills have employed Torrance Construction Co. to make and improve some roads and lawns in the New Village.

Frederick Higgins has returned to New Bedford after completing his work in the Lawton Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sever and family motored to Fall River and New Bedford, Mass., Sunday.

Word has been received by friends of Mr. and Mrs. John Newton that they will arrive in Plainfield some time this week after a tour through Canada and Nova Scotia. They were detained as a result of the illness of Mrs. Newton for two weeks in Nova Scotia.

Miss Henrietta Burby and William Asol spent the week end in Providence.

The Plainfield band will give another public concert Wednesday evening in the Old Village at 8 o'clock (standard time).

Walter Herbert came home Monday evening and found that somebody had stolen his prize bull dog. Later in the evening the dog returned home. The thief must have got frightened or else the dog broke lose. Neighbors had seen two prowlers around about eight o'clock in the evening, but could not identify them.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Connell motored to New Haven and Saybrook Monday.

Alfred La Bene and a party of friends spent the week end with Ovila Charron.

Mr. and Mrs Rudolph Swanson and family spent the week end with Baltic relatives.

Mrs. Clara Eastman and daughter Blanche spent Tuesday with Danielson friends.

Recent news from friends in New Bedford to relatives of Harvey Gauvin stated that he was in a New Bedford Hospital and has been on the danger list for the past eight weeks. Mr. Gauvin has been ill with throat consumption for the past few years.

George "Kid" Levigne, a noted pugilist ten years ago, of Baltimore, Md., is the guest of Jacob Wechsler.

The Putnam Bank crisis is causing inconvenience to its Plainfield patrons.

Recently, it was decided, at a shop committee of the Lawton Mills, to petition the town officials to station a "silent cop" at the corner of Main street and Railroad avenue, but no action has resulted so far.

That corner is not any more dangerous than the corner of Main and Babcock avenue and another silent cop might be placed there, should the officials decided to do anything for Plainfield. A "No Parking" sign needs to be placed on the post at the end of Babcock avenue on Main Street. When a car is parked there it makes it difficult for automobiles coming on to Main street from Babcock avenue.

The M. M. Girls' Club had a party at the home of Mrs. Phillips on the Canterbury Road. Monday evening. All joined in a whist game during the evening. The party was given jointly by Mrs. John Bradford and Mrs. Phillips. Lunch was served by the two hostesses.

Mrs. Robert Sykes and daughter Clara have returned after spending three months with relatives and friends in England. Mrs. Sykes was met in Boston by her family and intimate friends. A party in her honor was held at the home of friends in New Bedford, the night she arrived.

TWO IVY POISONING CASES REPORTED TO BE SMALL POX

(Special to the Bulletin)

Plainfield, August 19—It was reported early Tuesday that two more cases of small pox had broken out. The patients are Christopher Dean of Flat Rock and Daniel Shea of the same place.

Both patients have been treated for the past week for poison ivy. The Dean Homestead has been put under quarantine by a representative of the state board of health.

The whole town was astir when the report circulated that Mr. Shea was somewhere about town and could not be located. Mr. Dean having the disease, it is thought that Mr. Shea is also liable to it, as both were treated for the same malady. Nothing official could be learned of Mr. Shea's whereabouts.

A WORD TO WOMEN.

A hundred and twenty-one thousand women would comprise a vast army. Yet a canvass was recently made among more than that number of women who had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for feminine ailments. The result proved that ninety-eight out of every hundred reported benefit from its use. This is most remarkable evidence of the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the ills of womankind, and should influence every sick and ailing woman to try it.

TREASURER M'COOK.

In view of the circumstances it was inevitable, that there should be the resignation on the part of G. Harold Gilpatric as treasurer of the state. That formality having been carried out and the resignation promptly accepted, it will be recognized throughout the state that an able, efficient and trustworthy individual has been named as treasurer by Governor Templeton in the person of his executive secretary, Anson T. McCook.

In connection with the state treasurer's office it is a strange criticism which is offered by Chairman Yeomans of the democratic state central committee when he decries the action of the government in arranging for a complete audit of the state funds by a firm of accountants in addition to the work that has been performed by the state auditors. Full confidence is placed upon the state auditors, their competency and their work. There is no belief that the funds of the state have been impaired, but it can be appreciated that this is the time for knowing the facts and knowing them from a source which will not permit of the claim being made at some later date that reliance was placed upon the report of political appointees.

The fact is that instead of criticising the course that has been followed it would appear that Mr. Yeomans would have had ground for criticism had the very thing which he complains of not been done. There is no implication of distrust because there is a desire to make doubly sure. It may be regarded as unnecessary that a second audit should be made. Apparently Mr. Yeomans feels satisfied with the work that has been done by the state auditors. Probably Connecticut in general feels the same way but under the situation which exists the governor is eliminating any possibility of negligence on his part by the action which he has decided upon. Mr. Yeomans has resorted to a bit of weak and needless criticism. It gives the impression that it is done chiefly for political effect.

WASTING HUMAN LIFE.

It doesn't require any great effort to understand the great losses that are experienced in war. We are appalled by the slaughter and yet we think little or nothing of the way in which even greater numbers are killed because of the toleration of peace time conditions. We are horrified at war but we give slight heed to that which claims more lives.

In connection with the arrest of automobile drivers charged with being under the influence of liquor attention is called to the fact that there were 48,000 American lives snuffed out in the recent World war during a period of 18 months, but during the last 18 months in this country there have been 96,000 persons slain, and of that number 25,000 were children.

Not all deaths from automobiles can be charged to drunken drivers, but the menace which they are to the users of the highways cannot be disregarded. They stand as a potential danger and with regret must it be said that their number is increasing instead of decreasing.

Should there be such a monthly death rate from war as there is from automobile accidents, or even from those where life is ended by drunken drivers, there would be no greater protest and cry for its stoppage than would be justified, but it is deplorable that there is no such concerted demand for the ending of the unjustified deaths in the highways.

The wasting of human life during times of peace is no more justified than during times of war. There is just as much reason for preventing it, and it is believed that with the right display of public sentiment, and the proper cooperation it is much easier to stop the great drain upon humanity than it is to cut the losses in war. There may be certain highway accidents for which others than automobile drivers are responsible, but there can be no excuse for the toleration of the drunken drivers, who endanger not only themselves and those with them but all others using public thoroughfares.

TRADING WITH MEXICO.

Better business relationship is desired by Mexico between that country and this. There has been a much needed improvement in diplomatic relations and it is quite natural that there should be the same progress made businesswise.

The method decided upon by the Mexican government to bring this about is to have captains of industry in the United States rub shoulders with Mexican leaders. Agents and correspondence may do much but they do not take the place of a real get together. There is need of meeting, getting the views and statements of the individuals first handed and establishing a cordial relationship which comes through personal contact.

In furtherance of this plan the Mexican government has extended an invitation to a score of American manufacturers to visit Mexico on an industrial mission. There is no question but what that invitation will be quickly accepted and next month will find them talking business and credits with leaders in our neighboring country.

The United States has always done much business with Mexico. Considering the location of the two countries it is only natural that we should get many goods from Mexico and Mexico should draw heavily from us. There have been obstacles in the way of as great a development as might have been expected, but for the same reason that we have within a few years come to realise that we ought to be doing a greater business with the South American countries we should be experiencing better trade relations with Mexico.

While we have reason to feel that the trade between the countries should be greater there is no little gratification arising from the fact that Mexico has sought to coming conference. It opens the way not only for an outlet for manufacturers of this countries as represented by those attending the conference but should serve as an inspiration for many others who will be gratified by the things accomplished and the reports brought back.

BRYAN'S ACCEPTANCE.

Some weeks ago Charles W. Bryan was nominated for vice president by the democratic convention. He has now been notified of that nomination and in acceptance of that great honor he has taken occasion to give expression to some of his views. In spite of the fact that it was his brother William Jennings Bryan, who declared that the democratic party would make a colossal mistake if it ever nominated John W. Davis for its party leader, Charles W. Bryan found it necessary to set forth that it was through his connection with his brother and The Commoner that he got his training which fitted him for the honor which has been conferred upon him.

Probably those who have read his speech have not overlooked the fact that according to his claim that the great need now is for "honesty, efficiency and economy in governmental affairs." That will likewise be recognized as an endorsement of the policies which have been persistently insisted upon and so admirably obtained by President Coolidge. He might well have said that there was no need of a change in order to insure their continuance.

Mr. Bryan recognizes that he was selected for the purpose of making an appeal within the party to the people in the agricultural region, set forth his ideas regarding certain legislation, pledged himself to adhere to certain policies and gives the impression that he governs the panaceas for all ills.

Those who had figured that he would indulge in a lot of political fireworks were disappointed. He gives indication that he is about as conservative as they make them though laying strong claim to progressiveism. That, however, may not stand the test any better than his claim that the democratic party enters the campaign with harmony and unity rarely found in a presidential contest.

SENATOR COLT.

By the death of Senator Colt of Rhode Island there is removed another of the older members of the upper house of congress. Senator Colt has been referred to as one of the old school. As to the accuracy of that there can be little question. During the dozen years that he has represented Rhode Island in the senate there has been no opportunity to question the sincerity of his position. He hasn't always followed the leadership, and that was notable in connection with the league of nations, which he supported with reservations, and in his refusal to approve the action in behalf of Japanese exclusion.

Senator Colt was for many years a jurist of prominence, and he carried a judicial mind to his deliberations in the senate. He was one of the hard working, but infrequent speaking senators. For that reason all the more heed was given to him when he did speak. He became an authority on the question of immigration through his long service on that committee and at its head.

Death cuts short his service and removes a man of ability from the national law making body after a conspicuous career. It likewise comes at a time when much interest is centered upon the political situation within his state, and not a little within his own party there. Whether it will result in a bringing together of the factions and the solidifying of the republican forces in a republican state awaits developments. Certainly our neighboring state deserves the continuance of that efficiency which it has been receiving under Senator Colt.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There are many things harder than detours to find.

The man on the corner says: How funny it would seem if all laws were obeyed?

There is one knockout to which Kid McCoy is apparently not anxious to lay claim.

The hay fever season has opened but the signal of its approach has been heard for a number of days.

When Henry Ford says he is going to live to be a hundred he believes at least in taking a cheerful view of the question.

Are the complaints about the coolness of August coming from those who were recently wailing over the extreme heat?

President Coolidge speaks from administrative experience. Others are speaking because they have a desire to get in and therefore are willing to promise anything.

Parking regulations do not amount to very much in Washington when it was found by actual count that several thousand cars were being parked in violation of the rules.

It is hard work for some people to understand when their right of way is blocked that they have no business to push in and take away the right of way of the fellow going in the opposite direction.

GREAT LITTLE WOMEN

"I think that Mr. Clabberhorn is the loveliest man!" gurgled the hopelessly sentimental woman. "His devotion to his wife is simply beautiful! He is always quoting her!"

"He is," agreed the girl who likes to talk. "Quoting her, I mean! There are two kinds of men on this earth that I cannot endure—one is the sort who always is talking cheerfully about his wife and the other is the husband who refers to his unfortunate spouse as 'the little woman.' Because generally this sort of a man is big and fat and lazy and when he calls his wife in public 'the little woman,' he feels that it has squared him with himself for letting her shovel the snow off the front walk before he was up.

"All the listening ladies' eyes fill with pleased tears and the men cough seriously and there is a general atmosphere of sanctity and soul and the gentleman feels so satisfied with himself that he lets her blacken his shoes when he gets home and suggests that if she likes she may run the lawnmower over the front yard and split up some kindling while he reads the paper.

"'Yes, boys,' he will say over his glass of ginger ale, 'she is a great little woman, my wife, great!' And he will shake his head solemnly and all the fellows will tell each other that Tom certainly will be good to his wife.

"I had an uncle who did this sort of thing. He always had all the family connections to Thanksgiving dinner because he said he had no use for a man who failed to uphold the bonds of family relationship, and when any one remonstrated that it was too much work for his wife, Arnica, he said severely that she shouldn't dream of depriving Arnica of the sentimental pleasure she took in preparing for the feast with her own hands. "Why," he would boom, 'she simply wouldn't stand for it! She spends days, happy days, getting ready for all of you!' And on the day itself after the dinner, when the men were lighting cigars and everybody else hoped she wouldn't be expected to wipe dishes and Aunt Arnica looked pale and ready to drop, my uncle would clap one of his huge hands on to her bony shoulder and tell her that she was a great little woman, yes, she was!

"I was a mere child, but Aunt Arnica's facial expression at these times intrigued me greatly. I always felt that something exciting was on the point of happening, but it never did. The folks all remarked on how devoted my uncle was to Arnica and wasn't she a fortunate woman! But Arnica never added her voice to the chorus, perhaps because she was busy in the kitchen.

"And your friend Mr. Clabberhorn, who is always quoting his wife as though filled with admiration for her skill and cleverness—don't you know that it is against nature for any man to defer to his wife's opinion? Something is decidedly out of kilter in the situation when he does. Nine women out of ten are to be heard warbling to the world about how George likes or dislikes this and won't have that, how George says so-and-so is no good and that such-and-such a thing is splendid and how he does have the cleverest ideas—just listen to this! And everybody listens in an amused understanding sympathy and doesn't fling banners to the wind either telling the world how devoted she is to her matrimonial partner!

"But when the Clabberhorns begin painstakingly quoting their wives as bright or admirable, witty or ingenious you may be sure they've either beaten up the lady before leaving their happy domicile or just naturally told her for Pete's sake to shut up her chatter and let a man read in peace! Their outside adulation is a sort of soothing salve they apply to their consciences and it always works. Their wives may be great little women but they are fine fellows, by love, not like the goofs who fail to appreciate their wives! So prattle not to me of the illustrious Clabberhorn because—"

"Well, I must say!" blinked the hopelessly sentimental woman. "You are most unjust to poor Mr. Clabberhorn! Just this morning he told me I had such a sympathetic nature that it was a pleasure to talk to me. You don't understand him at all!"—Exchange.

Burroughs Went Back to the Country

Born on a farm, John Burroughs, whose devotion to nature was the passion of his life, was compelled for many years to remain away from the open spaces he loved, but not until he returned to them did he find his greatest happiness.

Little Roxbury, N. Y., was his birthplace, and he spent his boyhood days happily in the fields and forests and near the streams. After attending the country school nearby, he entered Ashland Seminary for a term, then he spent a season at the Cooperstown Seminary.

Next he was a teacher in a country school house for nearly nine years. He then decided to go to the city, and at 26 accepted an appointment in the Treasury Department at Washington.

First he was a vault-keeper and afterward was chief of an organization division in the bureau of national banks. Later he was appointed receiver of a national bank in Middletown, N. Y., and shortly afterward was made national bank examiner, a position which he held ten years, during which time he frequently was traveling.

While in Washington, he had taken an interest in literature. There he wrote Waiting, one of his best known poems. Soon afterward he met Walt Whitman and becoming enthusiastic over the poet's works, wrote and published Notes on Walt Whitman as Poet and Person, at his own expense. Wake Robin followed four years later.

At 37 he purchased a fruit farm at West Park, on the Hudson, built Riverby, his home, and after giving up his duties as bank examiner, spent practically all his life near to nature, cultivating his trees in summer and writing in winter. His poetry and books on nature brought him fame. He built Slabsides, a retreat, and Woodchuck Lodge, on the farm where he had spent his childhood.

Leaders of the nation visited him and he made many tours, including a journey to Alaska, to Yellowstone Park with E. H. Harriman, one to Yellowstone Park with Ex-president Roosevelt and was on many camping trips with Edison, Ford and Firestone.

And when he was buried on the farm in the Catskills the country mourned him as the one American who had done most to acquaint the masses with nature.

Stories That Recall Others

Flowers for Mother

Six-year-old George, ever thoughtful of his mother brought to their north side home on returning from school one day shortly before the summer vacation a beautiful bouquet.

"Here are some flowers for you, mother," said George.

"They are very fine," said the mother. "But where did you get them?"

"Oh, over on Smith street."

"Yes, George, but just where on Smith street?"

"Oh, on a house where the people were through with them. They had hung them out on the front door."

He Had Heard It.

In the course of the conversation at the dinner table, following a sermon which he had just preached, a minister's daughter complimented her father on the way in which he had preached. His son, who is younger than the daughter heard the conversation and suddenly rushed forth from an unseen listening post exclaiming: "'But,' 'fat'her, that was a stale story, I'd heard that before."

TREES GET THIRSTY IN THE DOG DAYS

Thirsty trees, suffering from lack of moisture in the dog days of August and September may be saved from stunted growth, premature shedding of foliage and possible death in many instances, by proper watering.

When it is remembered that an ordinary tree requires about thirty barrels of water daily, which it must take from the ground, it is not surprising, the Davey Institution of Tree Surgery points out, that even though lawns are sprinkled constantly, many otherwise flourishing trees are parched with thirst. The results are retarded growth in late summer, premature loss of leaves and often death.

Using a garden fork spade up the ground around shade trees whose diameter is not over six inches. The spading should be in a circle of about four feet in diameter, and should form a slight basin by banking the edges and hollowing out the center to contain water. Then with the fork drive holes in the basin so that the ground is perforated with holes the depth of the fork tines.

Turn on the garden hose and let the basin fill with water. When it soaks away repeat the process of filling once or twice. Next rake the ground, loosely covering the basin and perforations with a dust mulch to prevent rapid evaporation, and baking of the surface. Be careful not to pack the dirt down.

Repeat the process every ten days during August and September, and, should a heavy rain occur between waterings, set the date for the next watering ahead ten days.

For trees whose diameter is over six inches holes should be perforated in the turf in a swath from two to four feet wide, circling the tree from the outer edge of the tips of its branches. This will reach the outstretched drinking roots beyond the drip. Turn on the water and let the hose give this area a good soaking for several hours, repeating the operation every ten days as in the case of smaller trees.

By DAVID CORY

The Yellow Bird's Secret

Well, as soon as Little Jack Rabbit on his little pony had ridden out of the Mountain Palace, as I mentioned in the last story, he followed a narrow path that wound about the foot of the great high mountain, and by and by, not so very far, he came to a great acorn lying on the ground. All of a sudden, he heard that little Yellow Bird sing very softly:

"Open the chestnut and you will find
A gift of wondrous worth.
Then bury the empty chestnut shell
Deep in the kindly earth."

Taking off the little cap, the bunny boy found safely hidden inside the acorn a tiny white purse. As soon as he took it in his paw it grew larger, and when he opened it, it was full of gold coins. But he didn't know of course, that it was a magic purse, and would never be empty, and that whenever he looked inside there always would be plenty of money.

"I have found my fortune," he laughed, and away he galloped until after a while his pony stopped to rest under a great spreading elm tree. Jumping off his pony, the little rabbit sat down on a bed of moss, when, all of a sudden, a poor beggar came by. He was very poorly clad and his long white hair hung down over his shoulders and his ragged coat was full of holes. On seeing the bunny boy he put out his hand to beg. Pulling out his purse the little rabbit gave him a handful of gold coins, and then placed the purse back in his pocket. As he did so he noticed that it was as heavy as before. And when he curiously opened it again, sure enough it was just as full of coins as ever.

All of a sudden that strange little yellow bird sang:

"Keep the secret of your purse
Free from prying ear.
Or you'll find the golden coins
Will quickly disappear."

"Thank you, little bird," he answered, looking about to find his feathered friend, but all he saw was a yellow flash in the leaves overhead.

"What did that little bird say?" asked the poor beggar man, not understanding the bird language, you know.

"He told me a secret," replied Little Jack Rabbit, "and I may not tell it to any one." So the old man went upon his way and pretty soon the bunny boy mounted his pony and rode off, and by and by he met a large toad. His eyes were red as rubies and his legs were green and yellow, but that did not keep them from hopping away. Pretty soon the pony overtook this strange looking toad who was now seated under a large mushroom.

"Why do you run after me?" he asked.

"Because you have such wonderful ruby eyes," answered the little rabbit and what happened after that you must wait to hear in the next story.

HOW TRAGEDIES MAY BE AVOIDED

Summer's greatest danger

Health Authorities Everywhere Urge Quick Attention to Minor Injuries

THE skin has become soft and tender during the winter. Hard vacation play brings blisters, tiny scratches by the score and sores of a dozen causes. A bit of venomous dirt lodges in the broken skin.

If neglected—then that terrifying possibility—blood poisoning. Prompt antiseptic cleansing is the safeguard.

A clean injury rarely becomes infected.

Use Lifebuoy, the Health Soap

A prick from a fish hook; a cut from a tin can, nail or bit of broken shell; scratches from thorns or twigs; broken blisters—all should be bathed promptly and often with Lifebuoy. Don't take a chance by waiting. Don't take a chance by using any kind of soap. Every doctor will tell you that the tiniest break in the skin is really dangerous—an open door to infection.

The lather of Lifebuoy with its mild, antiseptic health ingredient, penetrates into cuts and removes dirt and germs.

An added precaution that the wise will take is to apply a strong antiseptic, like iodine, too.

How to guard children

Children rarely pay much attention to little scratches and bruises. That is why habitual washing of hands, knees and feet with Lifebuoy is so necessary. Forgotten cuts and scratches are kept antiseptically clean and at the same time the skin benefits because Lifebuoy is so pure and gentle.

Lifebuoy is not for the medicine cabinet. It is for the wash basin and bath tub, for every-day family protection. You will like it better than any other soap after you have used it a week. Add a dozen of Lifebuoy to your grocery order today, and never be without it. Make this summer one of health-building—not of danger.

FORMER BAY STATE HORSE TAKES FEATURE AT RANDALL

North Randall, Cleveland, Aug. 19.—(By the A. P.)—Under a masterful drive by Harry Stokes, Springfield, O., Col. Bidwell surprised the talent by capturing the Cleveland, $3,000 purse, feature of today's grand circuit program here in straight heats from a field of 11, 2:07 pacers.

The Colonel Forest-Dolly Bicknell Spalding was forced to step the last half of the second heat in :59 1-5 seconds and the final quarter in :29 1-5 seconds to win the second heat from Thomas W. Murphy's Baron Worthy, heavily played favorite, which led until the stretch turn.

Ribbon Cne, pace maker in the first, also was unable to withstand Colonel Bidwell's challenge in the stretch.

Ruby Hall made it two victories out of three starts when she captured the 2:17 trot in which she was favorite. She never left the issue in doubt, winning in straight heats.

It also was the second win of the meeting for Jakie O'Connor, which took the 2:05 pace in single heats. He was an outsider in the betting.

New York, Aug. 19.—The professional golfers' association has decided to open its annual tournament at French Lick, Ind., September 15-20, with a 36-hole medal test to determine 32 players who will contine at match play for the championship.

Previously the tourney has been entirely match play but the change was made to avoid first round byes in the event that any of the sixty-four players to be selected in sectional qualifying tests failed to appear.

Sixteen players already have been chosen in various parts of the country to compete for the title Gene Sarazen has held for the past two years. The metropolitan section will hold its qualifying tourney August 25.

Convey my sympathy to the vestry and parish generally.

Organist Hall returned to Norwich for the service and the following hymns were sung by the vested choir: "For All the Saints" and "The Day of Resurrection." The opening sentences were read by Rev. There were many members of the clergy seated in the congregation. Floral tributes were most beautiful, a fitting tribute to one, whom to know was to admire.

Interment will be in Forest Hills cemetery, Boston, Mass., today (Wednesday). Rev. William F. Williams officiating.

Mrs. Elizabeth C. Sleight.

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Clark Sleight, a widely known soprano and successful teacher of voice culture, formerly of Norwich, but for years past located in New York city, were held Tuesday night at 8 o'clock from her residence at 137 East 66th street.

Mrs. Sleight who was the widow of Cornelius Sleight, a Sag Harbor native, died Saturday evening at her home in New York following an illness of some length. She was a daughter of Stephen and Mary Clark and was born in Warren, R. I., in May, 1855, making her 69 years of age.

During her residence in Norwich she was the gifted and very much admired soprano in the choir of the Broadway Congregational church, owning and residing in the Washington street house, now owned and occupied by William M. Eastwood and family. With a remarkable voice and charming personality she was much sought in musical circles, and, having the ability to impart her knowledge to others, she became widely known as a teacher of voice culture. After leaving Norwich she opened a studio in New York city, where she continued her profession with success until health compelled her to give it up. Among the older residents of this city she counted many friends, who learned with regret of her death.

Miss Effie E. Messinger.

Following an illness of about two weeks the life of Effie E. Messinger came to a close Tuesday evening at the Backus hospital, where she had been a patient for about one week. She was born in this city the daughter of Robert and Johanna Burger Messinger and had made Norwich her home during her entire life. She received her early education in the public schools and also attended the Norwich Free Academy.

Miss Messinger was a member of Trinity Episcopal church and took an active interest in all church affairs, and was also a member of the Women's society of that parish. Of a kind and loving disposition, she leaves a host of friends in Norwich to mourn her loss.

Surviving are four brothers, Fred C. of New York, Frank B., of Worcester, Mass., Edward Y., and Clarence B. Messinger of Norwich. There are also nephews and nieces.

Many are called, but few choose to get up when the alarm clock rings.

CENTRAL LABOR UNION ACCEPTS REPORT ON REORGANIZATION

The Norwich Central Labor Union, at a meeting Tuesday evening at Carpenter's hall, accepted the special committee's report on the proposed reorganization of the central body. The report has been accepted as a basis for the re-organization. The special committee will submit its plans to the several local unions for their approval and it is expected that on the 26th of this month the final reports will be submitted and the actual re-organization take place.

The chairman of the meeting announced that notices to this effect will be published in the press prior to the date of the meeting. Fred P. Boss of the mounders union was elected a delegate to the annual convention of the Connecticut State Branch of the Federation of Lbor to be held in Hartford, starting September 2nd.

The delegates from the local unions to the central body are looking forward with considerable interest to the proposed re-organization of the central organization. The movement for the proposed re-organization got its start two weeks ago. At that time the Central Labor Union heard and accepted a recommendation by Ira M. Ornburn, of New Haven, secretary and treasurer of the state branch of the American Federation of Labor, that a special committee of five be appointed to formulate some plans for the re-organization of the Central Labor Union into a strong central body. It is this committee's report which the meeting of Tuesday night accepted and which will now go to the local unions for action.

JAIL RATHER THAN FINES FOR LIQUOR VIOLATORS

Jail rather than fines will be imposed on rum smugglers according to a decision reached in Washington by the department of justice, to the effect that the violator would be dealt with under the tariff act instead of the Volstead act.

The decision is regarded in Washington as a drastic step by the administration to enforce prohibition in a business like manner. The reason assigned for this change in procedure against rum smugglings is that the Volstead law is regarded as "toothless."

Under section 593 of the tariff act, smugglers of goods are liable to imprisonment in the penitentiary and a fine of $5,000, which is a much heavier penalty than is provided in the national prohibition act.

Coming at the time when the coast guard service has been many times multiplied to cope with illicit rum traffic this movement means much. Where convicted smugglers have heretofore been given fines, readily paid with the profits of the game on hand, they now may be given jail sentences as the penalty.

The announcement by the department of justice says:

"Two such prosecutions under the tariff act have just resulted in a victory for the government in the southern district of Texas, United States vs. John L. Nounes, arising out of the seizure of the ship Cherokee, and the United States vs. Ben S. Granger. Sentences in these cases ranged around 18 months in the penitentiary and fines of $5,000.

FINED FOR REFUSING TO PAY THEIR FARES

Careless automobile drivers furnished the greater part of the business for the city court Tuesday morning, most of them being in court for going to the left of flashing beacons or parking on crosswalks.

Thomas DePolita, Bernard Pearlham and Charles Taylor, who had parked their cars on cross-walks paid $3 apiece for the violation. George Clendennin, charged with going through the streets of Norwich with the cut-out of his car open and not having his operators license with him when stopped by an officer, paid $3 on each count.

Janett Steinman and Malirina Friedman of New York and Herminie Bierman of this city were in court charged with refusing to pay their fare on the Norwich-New London trolley Monday afternoon. Conductor Henry E. Savage testified that the women refused to pay him and that he had them arrested upon arrival at Norwich. The women disputed the testimony of the conductor and claimed that they had been short changed.

After a lengthy argument Judge Libby read the law to the accused, relative to paying trolley fares, and, after advising them to be more careful in the future, and, seeing that there was a misunderstanding, fined them $3 flat.

BELL ALARM FOR FIRE IN WEST MAIN STREET HOUSE

Old oil rags and a quantity of paint in a can which took fire from spontaneous combusion in the cellar of the house at No. 197 West Main street resulted in a bell alarm from box 115, West Main and Forest streets, at 3.53 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The fire department made a quick run to the house and the blaze was immediately extinguished. It was necessary to chop some of the partitions as the flames had started to spread up through the house. There was very little loss.

The house is a two family frame building and is owned by Peter Davis, who occupies it with other families. This makes the second bell alarm the department has had this month, the other bell coming in from box 28.

BUILDING AND LOAN ASSETS NEARLY QUARTER MILLION

The new share series, the 19th, was closed and showed that over 60 single payment shares of $110 were taken and nearly 500 monthly shares were subscribed. This is the largest amount of single payment shares in one series ever issued by the association.

The assets now total over $200,000, practically all of this amount is loaned to members who have built or bought homes. There is at present a large number of requests for loans to build or buy homes before the association, showing that the public has placed confidence in the plan of owning homes as used by the association.

The part that shareholders earn 5 1-2 per cent on their savings and that the method encourages regular systematic monthly savings is making a strong appeal to those who are ambitious and thrifty.

The annual meeting of the Connecticut State Building and Loan association will be held in Norwich next June and the Board of Management will soon begin to make preparations for this event. This means that representatives of nearly forty associations will come to Norwich for the annual meeting.

ROCKVILLE LODGE OF ELKS BUYS FINE NEW HOME

The old George Sykes mansion corner fo Prospect street and Ellington avenue, Rockville, has been officially transferred to Rockville lodge, No. 1359, B. P. O. Elks, and will be used as an Elks' home from now on. This is considered one of the most beautiful Elks' homes in New England and when erected many years ago cost $150,000. The Sykes homestead belonged to George E. Sykes of California, who has been spending a few weeks in Rockville. Mr. Sykes sold the old homestead, which has not been used for several yeras, for $30,000 to Alton E. Woodford of Hartford on June 11.

July 1 Mr. Woodford transferred the property to a bank in Hartford. This week a quit claim deed was made by the bank to Rockville lodge of Elks.

All of these deeds were placed on record in the town clerk's office Monday, as was a mortgage deed. This mortgage deed was from Rockville lodge, No. 1359, B. P. O. Elks, to a Hartford bank and trust company, dated Aug. 16, for a mortgage of $10,000. This deed was signed by Dr. Thomas F. O'Loughlin, chairman of the board of trustees of the lodge, and was witnessed by F. A. Hagerty and Alfred H. Hobro of Rockville.

The old Elks' home on Union street, which has been used since the lodge was formed, has been sold to William Maxwell, whose mansion adjoins the property. Thursday, Friday and Saturday Rockville lodge of Elks held their annual carnival there. The Elks bought this property for $18,000 and spent some $5,000 improving the property, and it is understood that it was sold at the purchase price plus the cost of improvements.

COLCHESTER VOTES AGAINST NEW $60,000 SCHOOL

Voters of Colchester at a largely attended meeting Monday afternoon at the Colchester town building, voted down the recommendation of the special committee for a new $60,000 school to be located in the center of the town. The meeting was a lengthy one starting at 2.15 o'clock and continuing until early evening and when the vote was taken it was found that the voters had voted the proposition down 67 to 64.

The committee which was appointed at a special meeting last spring to investigate and report on school needs of the town, included S. P. Willard, a representative of the state board of education, who lives in Colchester. He spoke in favor of the new school building, as did Superintendent of Schools H. S. Libby and others.

Town Health Officer Edward J. Howland, who some time ago condemned the Colchester schools because of their unsanitary condition, explained his action and announced that unless the schools were put into condition to comply with the state laws, they would not be permitted to open in September. The town school committee has authorized extensive repairs to the school buildings, work being done during the summer months. They plan to add two rooms to the Bacon Academy building and an extra room to the Dublin school which in all will accommodate about 50 pupils each.

The school situation in Colchester has attracted state wide attention owing to complaints that the school buildings of the town did not comply with the state laws.

TO ASK APPROPRIATION FOR STATE FARM

An appropriation for additional facilities at the state farm for women at Lyme is to be requested by the director of the institution of the next legislature, the present overcrowded condition of the farm making an appropriation for additional facilities imperative, it is believed by the directors. While the legislative committee of the board has not met during the summer months, it is expected that early in September the committee will meet to prepare a definite program to be submitted to the legislature.

The conditions at the state farm are desperate, and courts throughout the state are now dismissing cases that seem to require particular attention. No women except replacements have been received at the farm since February 14, according to Miss Helen Hazard, superintendent.

At the present time there are at the farm 34 women and 29 babies, while the facilities at the place are designed for the accommodation of but 30 women and 19 babies. As soon as one of the charges at the farm is dismissed either through discharge or on parole, her place is immediately filled from the long waiting list throughout the state. The system as it is at present maintained through sheer necessity is regarded by many as largely defeating the purposes for which the farm was established, as women prisoners must either be discharged or paroled because of lack of housing facilities at the farm.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion or Stomach Trouble CUT THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach," says a well known authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis accompanied by dangerous stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestents that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little hot water and Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. It soaks up the harmful excess acid much as a sponge or blotting paper might and your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.

NO MORE ROOM AT STATE FARM FOR WOMEN

The crowded condition at the State Farm for Women at Niantic will be called to the attention of Gov Charles A. Templeton as a result of the inability of that institution to accomodate another inmate.

A young woman, sentenced to a term last Friday by Judge George H. Vosburgh of the Norwalk city court, was taken back to Norwalk by the officer who had her in custody, with the information that the fram was so crowded that the woman could not be received.

The judge had not previously heard of such a condition and sought an appointment with the governor to discuss the prevailing conditions there.

FIRPO ARRESTED ON PERJURY CHARGE IS RELEASED ON BOND UNTIL SEPT. 22

New York, Aug. 19—Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight boxer, still still carry perjury charges upon his shoulders when he faces Harry Wills in a Jersey City ring September 11.

United States Commissioner Hitchcock today held him in $2,000 bail for hearing September 30 on complaint brought by Canon William Sheafe Chase, president of the New York civic league. Canon Chase charges that the boxer made false statements to the immigration authorities regarding his acquaintance with Senorita Blanca Lourdes Picart, on the steamer which brought Firpo from South America.

This second round in the "Wild Bull's" joust with federal authorities went to him on points and this afternoon he returned to Saratoga Springs to continue training.

"We are down but we will be up at the bell," said Canon Chase when the postponement had been announced. "We have not been attempting to prevent the fight. We have been working for clean administration of Government and laws, for clean sports and a clean, single standard of morality for men and women. No, I hardly think I will attend the bout. I don't think I would be wanted."

Firpo and the commissioner were the only persons in the room to have chairs and the Argentine seemed to need the support, for half a night he had gone sleepless, snatching a little more than three hours rest on a train from Albany to this city. His appearance here early today came as the result of what Canon Chase termed "stealing a march."

With cancellation of his coming bout in prospect, Firpo and his retinue hurried to the metropolis on learning that the warrant had been issued and that Bernard Sandler, Attorney for the civic league, was on his way to Saratoga Springs to assist in serving it. This left Mr. Sandler in Saratoga Springs today and so Canon appeared at the Federal building without an attorney.

Hyman Bushel, attorney for Tex Rickard, promoter of the coming bout, appeared for Firpo and requested the postponement, to which Canon Chase acquiesced. At one point Mr. Bushel declared that the head of the civic league should be arrested for perjury as he had made misstatements in obtaining the warrant. He argued that Mr. Chase was without information, only to have Canon produce a letter from E. J. Henning, first assistant secretary of labor, said to contain a resume of what the immigration officials learned from Firpo as taken from the actual record.

The South American champion was accorded a rough reception by a half hundred news gatherers and photographers. He was pushed and pulled from almost every room on the floor. All the time he appeared serious, refusing to smile. Juan Home, his right hand man, was compelled to fight his way through the throng for more than hours.

The "stolen march," by which Firpo and his attorney obtained the postponement while Mr. Sandler visited Firpo's empty training quarters caused the latter "one of the keenest regrets of my career," he asserted in a statement upon his return to New York.

Referring to Bushel's remarks in asking for the postponement, Mr. Sandler said, "Canon Chase, not being familiar with court proceedings, was at a great disadvantage and stood the brunt of the villifications and abuse rained upon him by Tex Rickard's 'basket boy.'"

He termed it "hard luck" that Bushel should have outmaneuvered him.

He denied that blackmail had any part in the proceedings, saying Bushel would be given an opportunity to prove his contention made in his argument.

FIRPO MET MISS PICART ONLY IN FORMAL WAY

Washington, Aug. 19.—Luis Angel Firpo, the Argentine fighter met Blanca Picart, Cuban and Brazilian manicurist, only casually, once in the United States, and again in Brazil, before the two took the same ship from South America to this country, according to the statement Firpo made to immigration officials as a result of his detention with the woman when they landed in New York.

The immigration bureau also declined to make public the record of Firpo's statement, but it was learned today that both the fighter and Miss Picart denied in emphatic terms that she had ever been in Firpo's stateroom on the ship in which the two traveled to the United States.

Firpo told the authorities that he did not know that Miss Picart was to be aboard the ship until he saw her there, and that throughout the trip their relations were limited to conversations at the dinner table, and dancing on the ship's deck in which most of the other passengers participated. He did not escort her to her stateroom after thedances, both testified.

Asked by one of the immigration inspectors what he would say if told that an officer of the ship had seen Miss Picart in his stateroom many times during the trip, Firpo said the charge was wholly false.

The immigration bureau is investigating whether Firpo and Miss Picart entered the United States together through another port previous to their last arrival at New York. Bureau officials pointed out today that Miss Picart had not been excluded from the United States, since she never applied for admission but merely stopped off here to board another vessel to take her to Cuba.

Miss Picart is said to have told authorities she was being supported by her sister in Cubt, who married a wealthy count there. She said she worked as a manicurist merely to purchase her clothing and that she paid for her passage from South America to Cuba with money she had previously deposited in a South American bank.

SENATORS IN SECOND PLACE BY BEATING TIGERS TWICE

Washington, Aug. 19—Washington advanced into second place and within two games of the league-leading Yankees today when it took both ends of a double-header from Detroit, the first 4 to 3 and the second 5 to 3. The Senators by today's victories made it four out of five games won in the series with Detroit.

In the opening game the locals won in the ninth when Harris singled following a safety by Mogridge and a sacrifice. In the second game Russell held the visitors safe after relieving Zachary while Whitehill, who was sent to the box when Collins weakened, yielded bunched hits in two different innings. The scores:

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch

Any inning. One man out. Runner on second. The ball is hit back to the pitcher. Runner on second makes a break for third.

Where should the pitcher throw the ball?

On a ground ball of this kind, if the pitcher has any possible chance of catching the runner off second base, he should play the ball to that bag. But if it looks as if the play would be close, he should throw the ball to first base, in order to make sure of a put out. In a situation of this kind, the pitcher should never hold the ball. He should get it away as quickly as possible, not take a chance of losing both runners.

COLEMAN PITCHES MARRIED MEN TO VICTORY OVER THE SINGLE MEN, 9 TO 6

They came to jeer but they stayed to cheer! Thereby hangs a tale. Last week Charlie Coleman broke into the East Side hall of fame when he pitched for the Married Men and allowed the Single Men only four hits but poor fielding in back of him made the game a draw. Last night a large crowd assembled to see Charlie get pounded to all corners of the lot, believing that the Single Men had only been "kidding" Charlie and purposely striking out. The crowd was all set to climb aboard Charlie and tear him to pieces the minute he showed any signs of weakening. Did Coleman weaken? He did not, not until the first of the fifth inning when he wrenched his side and was suffering severe pains. Then he resigned in favor of Joe Belair.

Coleman was the decided star of the game and it was his sparkling pitching, speedy base-running and timely hitting that was the big factor in the victory of the Married Men who defeated the Single Men 9 to 6. The crowd was hungering for a chance to razz Coleman and the Single Men were confident that they could drive him to cover, but both were doomed to disappointment and it was only a short time before the crowd was cheering wildly for the gritty little hurler.

The Single Men scored one run in the first inning on one hit and two errors. In this frame Coleman struck out two men. In the second inning he continued his great work, striking out the three batters that faced him. Again in the third inning he fanned the first two men and the third grounded out. Coleman had struck out six men in succession, a feat that has not been on the East Side this season.

The Single Men's big inning was the fourth when on two hits and three errors they scored three runs. They started a rally in the first of the fifth when Coleman suddenly went bad due to his wrenched side, but Joe Belair went into the box and stopped the rally at two runs.

The Benedicts scored their nine runs in the third and fourth innings, getting two in the third and seven in the fourth. Each time Coleman figured in the scoring by well placed bunts and then scoring himself with fast base running. The fourth inning was a heart breaker for the Singleites for their team completely blew up, Woodmansee developing a wild streak while his teammates booted several chances to make good plays. Chief among the offenders was Charlie Risley, whose playing was erratic in the extreme, he contributing errors that spelled defeat for his team.

There were several bright spots in the Married Men's playing, the work of Jumbo Jones in the outfield and the baserunning of Charlie Dickerman who scored the winning run. Jimmy Pedace was the shining light for the Single Men, he pulling several spectacular catches in the outfield and crashing a two-bagger off Belair in the last inning. Jimmy showed that he is a much better outfielder than he is a catcher, and so is Risley.

Christy Mathewson (not Bix Six, but little Earl) umpired the game. There was not much criticism of his work for the crowd was in good humor and overlooked some of his most glaring mistakes. The score:

LAKE ST. AND GREENEVILLE BATTLE TO DRAW

Overcoming the early lead of their rivals, Greeneville fought it 6 to 6 tie with Lake Street Tuesday evening, in a four-inning contest.

After hammering Ferguson for four runs in their half of the first inning, Charlie Corcoran's youngsters seemed to have victory in their grasp. The dark and dreary gloom of defeat threatened to enveloped Ed Sullivan's boys until the second inning, when the wearers of the green and gold illumined the proceedings by solving some of Shea's mystery balls and incidentally bringing in five runs.

Murphy was responsible for three putouts. His grandstand catching the first inning was little short of sensational. Shea's twirling was of fine calibre. Not only this but Jim was responsible for tying the score. In the third inning Corcoran's ace clouted out a smashing three-bagger, bunting a man on base, and coming in later himself.

The hitting of Greeneville was the main feature of the suburbanite's game. Smith, Carroll and Goldblatt with their timely crashes were largely responsible in tying the score for their grounds. The score:

Waterbury Wins and Loses

Waterbury, Aug. 19.—Waterbury loafed in the first game with Albany here today and lost a slugging match 9 to 6, but back of the veterans Moose Fuller, they took the measure of the Lawmakers 3 to 2 in the twilight end of the affair. Every run of the second game was scored in the first and second innings, then Colwell for Albany and Fuller for Waterbury engaged in a pretty pitching duel, with the Brassco heaver displaying a slight edge in effectiveness.

Harron of the visitors also connected for a double and 2 singles and Merrit for 3 singles in the sixth. NEW LONDON COUNCIL MAY MODIFY LAW COVERING GASOLINE TANKS

New London, Aug. 19.—There is a probability that the city council will modify the provision in the regulation covering the establishment of gasoline tanks at the stations of the wholesalers in this city. The director of law prepared an amendment to the section governing the tanks at the stations and it was presented to the council. While it has not been adopted as part of the law which will govern the erection of tanks, it is altogether probable that it will be adopted, when the members of the council have viewed the tanks and are satisfied that the safety provisions are such as will be sufficient to guard against leaks and explosions. The companies represent that their tanks are surrounded by walls of cement or sand and gravel and that should the tanks leak, the gasoline cannot get outside the pits surrounding the tanks. The wholesalers put up a big objection to the provisions which the council insisted should be fulfilled and they were successful in getting a modifying amendment drawn. Its adoption is all that now remains to be done to secure for them all that they want.

Merchants on State street are not pleased with the prospect of the establishment of a Kresge store in this city. They point to the fact that there will be several chain stores on State street when the Kresge establishment is located here, and name them as the United, the Schule, the Woolworth and the Kresge. These stores will carry goods that separate stores are now providing for the people. It is the policy of the chain stores to cut prices in certain goods and that policy is expected to prevail when the chain stores are in full operation here. An experienced dealer declared today that the only chance some of the existing stores will have will be to join with other dealers and thus split rents and reduce overhead charges, so that the cost of operation will be reduced.

Shorty Faccini, arrested a few days ago for transporting liquor and bound over to the superior court, has obtained a surety on a bond for $7500 and is at liberty. He will be presented for trial the first Tuesday in September.

The action of the city council as to the erection of a store front on Channel street is evidence that that body is to go slow in the defining of zones within which certain construction shall be prohibited, but that an effort will be made to establish buildings in the rather in the residential sections particularly. The Chappell street store front was in place when the application to erect it was presented to the council, but that was not the fault of the party who sought to establish the store, as he had applied for and received permission from the inspector of buildings, as there was no ordinance to interfere with the work he contemplated doing. He went to work as soon as he got the permission and had completed it practically when the application went into the city council.

Sergeant James D. Gaffney of the New London police force, is having his vacation of two weeks. Sergeant Gaffney's duties are being attended to by Patrolman Timothy C. Sullivan.

Albert Barden, 109 Golden street, was found lying alongside the west bound tracks of the New Haven railroad shortly after 4 o'clock this afternoon and it was believed he was mortally injured, but the man being examined by a physician, it developed that Barden, although slightly bruised was otherwise uninjured and is not believed to have been struck by a train as was at first supposed. Barden, who had been drinking, was discovered lying close to the rails just after the train that left for New York at 1:57 o'clock, passed the lumber wharf of the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company, by the crew of the yard engines. A telephone message was sent to the police station and Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray, who was assigned to investigate, determine that Barden was very much alive but had apparently fallen. Barden was taken to the police station where he was examined by Dr. F. M. Jones, and other than a bruise on the back, the physician stated that the man was uninjured. Barden went to his lodging house without further assistance.

Fredericks was then found to be operating a car without having a license in his possession and for that he was fined $3 today. Pollard sought a settlement for the damages to his car, but Fredericks replied by saying that his machine was also damaged and he advised Pollard to balance one claim against the other.

Benjamin Middleman and Clara Blumenthal, both of Hartford, and residing at Ocean beach temporarily, was charged with operating their cars past a still trolley car that had stopped to discharge and receive passengers, on Bank street, near the Empire theatre. There was uncertainty as to whether the violation was serious, so a settlement of the matter was made by the payment of $10 in each case.

Joseph Bliven was charged with having run his automobile over a dog at Edgewood and Montauk avenue, killing the dog and then driving away without ascertaining the damage he had occasioned. The dog was owned by Mrs. William Talbot. The prosecutor, when he had heard the alleged facts from both parties decided that the case should be investigated before he would proceed with it. Bliven claims that he was unaware that he killed a dog or that he struck one. He said he did not see any dog as he drove along. The case was continued to Saturday next.

Mrs. Long, 74, a summer visitor here, and temporarily residing at the Watson house, Ocean Beach, strayed away from the lodging house this forenoon. After relatives of the woman were unable to locate her following a lengthy search, the police were requested to assist in locating the woman. Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray found the woman roaming about Ocean avenue. In the vicinity of Sherman street and had her to be conveyed back to the Watson house.

George Nye, 30 Ramsdell street, Groton, operated his automobile to this city last evening and then parked his car in the rear of the National Bank of Commerce, off Washington street, while he attended a diversion. McDonald, 533 Ocean avenue, who was fatally injured several weeks ago. The boy was playing near his home and ran into the highway just as a commercial truck owned by Dr. Tracy Farnam was about to pass. The driver of the truck, Julian Guerri, of Evergreen avenue, attempted to avoid hitting the child, but the mudguard hit the boy, hurling him to the ground with great force. The child died at Lawrence hospital several hours after the accident.

John McCarthy, of middle age, and residing on North Main street, Hartford, sustained painful injuries this afternoon when thrown to the sidewalk, striking on his face and losing a tooth, loosening several others and receiving a severe shaking up. McCarthy was passing along Bank street and at the corner of Golden street, stopped to peer through the display windows of the Hygiene delicatessen store. After several minutes' wait at the window, McCarthy started to leave and as he did so his clothing caught upon the handle of one of the covers of a hatch that had been raised by an employe of the store while work was performed in the cellar. WESTERLY

Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, at the Immaculate Conception church, Westerly, Miss Kathleen Helen Healy, daughter of Cornelius Healy of 53 Granite street, became the bride of Charles William Connors, son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Connors of 112 Liberty street, Pawcatuck. Rev. J. Francis Vincent, S. M., performed the ceremony celebrated the nuptial mass. In the church were gathered many relatives and friends. The "Lohengrin" wedding march was played by Mrs. Frank G. Ahery and "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly" were sung during the ceremony by Martin H. Spellman. Miss Mary T. Healy, a sister of the bride, as bridesmaid and the best man was Charles Murphy.

Her veil caught with orange blossoms, the bride wore a gown of white duchess satin and lace trimmings, and carried a shower bouquet of garden flowers. A blue crepe gown was worn by the bridesmaid with champagne overlace and hat to match. She carried gladioli and yellow dahlias.

There were sixty-five guests present at the breakfast served at the Elm Tree inn in Pawcatuck, following the church ceremony. Planning to make their home on their return at 23 Lester avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Connors left Westerly Tuesday noon by automobile for a trip through Maine and Canada. Graduating from the Westerly High school in 1914 and the R. I. College of Education, 1917, for the past seven years the bride has been a teacher in the public schools of Westerly. Mr. Connors was a carpenter, until his appointment to the Stonington police force and has been night patrolman in Pawcatuck, making an excellet and popular officer. The bride received many beautiful wedding gifts.

This new coast guard boat was built at East Greenwich, R. I., by F. S. The boat is fully equipped and manned by a crew of at least three men, with search lights, etc., and armed. Walter J. McInnis was the designer of this boat, which is one of four to be constructed by the East Greenwich plant.

An out of the Westerly Fire district alarm was sounded about 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, for a fire at the rear of the residence of Mrs. Byron B. Cooke and Ethan Gavitt, on East avenue. The flames which got a good start in the tall dry grass threatened several buildings in the rear of the residences which were fought by men, women and children residing in that vicinity, as well as some of the men at work on East avenue. The Westerly pump in responding to the alarm became stalled near School street but proceeded later. A considerable portion of the neighboring fields were burned over but no great amount of material damage was done.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULTR.

New York, Aug. 19.—Bullish demonstrations in a select assortment of coppers, public utilities and industrial specialties featured today's irregular and active stock market. Forty-five issues attained new peak prices during the session, including eight metals, six rails, five public utilities, four tobaccos and three rubbers.

Extensive profit taking continued throughout the five hours of trading, particularly in the steels, equipments, motors, and dividend paying rails. Davison Chemical broke 7 points to 45 3-4 when a number of stop loss orders were touched off, but it rallied later to 48r Net losses in most rallied later to 43. Net losses in most to a point or less.

Allis Chalmers was the outstanding strong spot in the special list closing 6 1-8 points higher at 66 1-8, a new 1924 top, on buying undoubtedly influenced by reports that orders on hand were sufficient for six months capacity operation. Other specialties to sell at their best prices of the year were International Business Machine, Texas Gulf Sulphur, May Department Stores, Gimbel Brothers, Fleischmann, American Radiator, Postum Cereal, Union Tank Car and General American Tank Car.

American Can led the standard industrials by climbing four points to a new peak price at 134 3-4, while American Locomotive moved up two points to a new top at 82 7-8. United States Steel eased 5-8 to 110, and Baldwin and Studebaker also climbed fractionally lower.

Public utilities strengthened under the leadership of Western Union, which advanced more than 4 points to 118. Other issues in that group to break their previous high prices were Brooklyn Edison, Brooklyn Union Gas, All American Cables and Manhattan guaranteed stock. Montana Power, Virginia Railway and Power and Pacific Telephone moved up 3 to 4 points.

Coppers and shippings continued to discount the benefits expected to result from the adoption of the Wawes plan, Marine preferred, American International Corporation, American Smelting, Anaconda, Inspiration and several others moving to new high ground.

New York Central touched 110 3-8, its highest price since 1916, but Union Pacific, Lackawanna, Illinois Central, Canadian Pacific and several other high grade carriers fell back on profit taking. "Nickel Plate" dropped 3 points to 110 3-4. International Railways of Central America preferred jumped 2 1-2 points to a new top at 55 1-2 in reflection of record breaking July earnings.

Call money held at 2 per cent, but large "outside" loans were arranged below that figure. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged, with business quiet. Further weakness cropped out in the foreign exchange market, demand sterling dropping nearly 3 cents to below $4.50 and French francs yielding about 13 points to around 5 3-8 cents. Other European rates yielded in sympathy. Canadian exchange sold at par for the first time this year.

Horace Clift of Mystic was elected president of the 26th Regiment, Connecticut Volunteeers, at the regimental association's annual reunion and business meeting Tuesday morning at Buckingham Memorial. Thirteen of the 25 surviving members of the association were present. It was the 61st annual gathering of the 26th.

President Charles A. Thrall of Co. C., called the business meeting to order at 10.30 o'clock. Rev. Allen S. Bush, Gales Ferry, offered the invocation. Corresponding Secretary Beriah B. Champlin of New Haven read his annual report as follows:

Comrades: Sixty-two years ago the 13th day of November, 1862, the 26th Regiment C. V., of 815 men left this city. We returned on August 7, 1863, but were out on the 10th of August, 1863. On that day in the town of Norwich near the Fair Grounds, 617 men were mustered out of the U. S. service and the 26th C. V. ceased to be a military organization. Of this number, that we know there are only 26 living and they are divided as follows:

Conn. Staff 1; Co. A 9; Co. B 3; Co. C 8; Co. D 2; Co. E 1; Co. F 2; Co. G 4; Co. H 3; Co. I 3; Co. K 5.

We are all getting to be old men. There are four over 90 and one was 98 last January. Only two that are not over 80. There are three comrades who were with us last year, but they will be with us no more. The following comrades have died the past year:

F. E. Beckwith, Co. C; died Oct. 6, 1923; aged 80.

J. W. Fargee, Co. H; died Feb. 11, 1924; aged 87.

George Haskell, Co. F; died April 11, 1924; aged 80.

John Gee, Co. C; died April 10, 1924; aged 92.

Comrades: It is true we were short term men. Our service was a few days less than a year, but we have a record that we can be proud of: 52 killed or mortally wounded; 142 wounded; 84 died of disease contracted in the swamps of Louisiana. The Adjutant General of the Corps in his history of the 19th Army Corps in speaking of the assault on Port Hudson on June 10th, 1863, after regretting the great loss of life says: "The only thing gained on the whole line (which was 12 miles long) was gained on the extreme left by Dow's old brigade." The 26th Conn. belonged to Dow's old brigade and we led the brigade that day with 253 men. Col. Clark of the 6th Mich., who had charge of the brigade after General Daw was wounded, in his official report of the assault on June 14th says: "The nine-month men have shown by their courage that they can be relied upon in any emergency." He gives the whole brigade at 133 and in the 26th Conn. at 75, more than one-half of the whole brigade. A shell struck Co. A and laid out one officer and 17 men. After that the troops went inside of the fort to receive the formal surrender. They were composed of one regiment from each brigade, the 26th Conn. was ordered to report at headquarters at sunrise the next morning; and when the column, the 26th Conn. was given the second Post of Honor. And we had pleasure of seeing the rebels lay down their guns and the Confederate flag lowered and the Stars and Stripes flying in their place. And in closing I will quote with a slight change a line from an old campaign song used when I was a boy: "And when we are dead and under ground our children's children can proudly say our grand dads belonged to the 26th Conn."

Letters from comrades unable to be present were read, among which were the following:

Uncasville, Conn.,

B. B. Champlin:

Shall be unable to attend the reunion of our regiment. Am too crippled to get about much. But would wish an enjoyable day for the few of us left.

John Morley, John L. Douglass, Henry Wright and Nathan Newbury. They brought in a report that the persent officers be re-elected but President Thrall considered it better for the honor to be passed around to the different members and the following officers were therefore elected:

Secretary and Treasurer—Charles A. Thrall, New York.

Lerou and the other from Sedgwick Camp, Sons of Veterans. It was voted to hold the 1925 reunion in Norwich and a vote of thanks was extended Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R., for the use of the rooms at Buckingham Memorial. Following adjournment of the business meeting a dinner was served the veterans under the direction of Mrs. Florence Dean, chairman of a committee from Sedgwick Woman's Relief Corps. The menu was as follows:

Corresponding Secretary Beriah B. Champlin of Co. I, is the second oldest veteran in Connecticut, being surpassed only by Oliver Nason of Company I, living now in New London, who was unable to be present. Mr. Champlin was the oldest present at the 61st reunion and in his carrying out of his duties as corresponding secretary did it as well as a man many years his junior. In being re-elected to his position in the organization he considered the honor as seriously as though he had never before held the position. His mind is extremely alert and there is nothing that he does not thoroughly comprehend in the running of the affairs of the association.

COLUMBIA

Mrs. W. P. Bannister of Brooklyn, N. Y., is at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Madison Woodward at the lake to remain during August.

Miss Marion Holmes returned re has spent the past five weeks, attendcently from New Haven where she ing the summer school for teachers at Yale University.

The rain Tuesday continuing throughout the entire day was very welcome as it provided the dried up gardens and vegetables not already hopelessly lost will be saved. The lawns which were badly burned, have begun to show marked improvement.

The boy scouts from East Hampton who came to the lake Monday were much upset because it rained Tuesday. They stated that many of them were oblized to stay in bed all day, because their tents leaked and wet their clothes, and that if it rained Wednesday they should go home, but Wednesday was a pleasant day.

Mrs. Edith Little returned Friday from New York, where she has been for a few weeks visiting her daughter, Miss Lenore Little.

Reckless driving is apparently on the increase in Columbia. At the center two roads cross at about right angles, and few drivers blow their horns for the crossing, although it is not seen in approaching it from Hebron. Drivers apply their brakes very hastily, the grating sound being heard for some time. Recently a girl was driving at such a rapid rate from the lake that she could not make the turn on the road to Willimantic but proceeded further turning across the green and a deep dirt road, over a lawn, almost striking a barn.

Rev. J. H. Knott of Chaplin, was a visitor in town Sunday and attended church.

Misses Agnes, Georgia and Phoebe Kemp have returned to the home of Mrs. R. G. Proctor from Brooklyn, N. Y., where they had gone to attend the funeral services of their elder sister Miss Esther Kemp. They are expecting to remain in town for several weeks.

Cards have been received from William A. Collins at Niagara Falls, which he has included in a short but very pleasant trip.

Mrs. John Locke of Amherst, Mass., is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Julia Little.

Miss Madeline Holmes led the Christian Endeavor Society Sunday evening her subject being What I find in the twelfth chapter of Romans

Sunday was observed in Columbia as Defense day. At the morning service patriotic hymns were sung, and Rev. C. C. Haun preached from the text, Put up thy sword into its place, for they that take the sword shall perish with the sword.

Mr. Haun strongly advocated loyalty to the government in its preparations for defense, but urged the promulgation of peace throughout the world.

A fine tall larch tree on the lawn close to the home of Miss Nellie Hunt was struck during the last electric storm by a ball of fire, injuring the tree greatly and covering the ground with splinters.

About 75 persons attended the weekly dance at Utley's Hall, Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Lyman of Plainville spent the week end at the home of Mrs. Lyman's father, James A. Utley.

Mr. and rMs. George Pinkney and family of New Haven spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rice. Miss Doris Pinkney will remain for a visit with her cousin Miss Gladys Rice.

POETRY

MY QUEEN.

Where and how shall I earliest meet her?
What are the words she first will say?
By what name shall I learn to greet her?
I know not now, but 'twill come some day;
With the self-same sunlight shining upon her,
Shining down on her ringlets' sheen,
She is standing somewhere, she I would honor;
She that I wait for, My Queen, My Queen.

I will not dream of her tall and stately,
She that I love may be fairy-light;
I will not say she should walk sedately,
Whatever she does, it will sure be right;
And she may be humble or proud, my Lady,
Or that sweet calm which is just between;
But, whenever she comes, she will find me ready
To do her homage, My Queen, My Queen.

But she must be courteous, she must be holy,
Pure in her spirit, that maiden I love;
Whether her birth be noble or lowly,
I care no more than the spirits above;
But I'll give my heart to my lady's keeping,
And ever her strength on mine shall lean,
The stars shall fall, and the angels be weeping,
E'er I cease to love her, My Queen, My Queen.

—Old Song.

VACATIONS.

"What shall you do this summer?"
"Nothing!" I stanchly said;
"Neither books nor Chautauqua nor Concord.
Shall claim my tired head.

"I shall lie at length in the sunlight
And count the pine-tree plumes.
And fill my sense with silence
And the odor of clover blooms.

"I shall stand and stare, like the cattle.
At the rim of the earth and sky.
Or sit in the lengthening shadows
And see the sweet days die.

"I shall watch the leaping squirrels
And the patient, creeping ants,
And learn the ways of wee wood folk
In their unmolested haunts.

"And perchance in the hush that follows
The struggle to be wise,
Some truth which may beforetime
May take me by surprise."

NO POLITICAL BONDAGE FOR RAILROAD TRAINMEN

President Lee of the Brotherhood Has Mailed Circulars to 180,000 Members Advising That the Organization Should Not Ally Itself With Any Political Party by Endorsement of Presidential Candidate—Would Confine Endorsements to Candidates For State Offices, Including Candidates For the United States House and Senate—Trades Unionists in Connecticut are in Dissension Over Endorsement of Lafollette.

Cleveland, Aug. 20.—(By The A. P.)—In a circular mailed today to 180,000 members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, advice is given the members regarding political action. The circular will be repeated in the September issue of the brotherhood's official publication, in which President W. G. Lee says he "has taken the position that our organization should not indorse Coolidge, Davis or LaFollette for president of the United States."

Under the slogan "indorsement of candidates," the circular, signed by Lee, says:

"The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, through its conventions has declared that it would not ally itself with any political party but believed in following the policy of rewarding labor's friends and defeating labor's enemies.

"The Toronto 1922 convention reaffirmed its belief in the continuance of this policy. A resolution covering the question of political action was presented to the convention.

"The adoption of this recommendation committed the organization to independent political action; it declares that the time was not opportune for the brotherhoods to ally itself to any particular political organization. In dealing with this resolution the undersigned has taken the position that our organization should not indorse Coolidge, Davis or LaFollette for president of the United States.

Information furnished this office by the Washington legislative bureau shows the labor record of each of the three above mentioned candidates for president to be as nearly 100 per cent. in each instance as could reasonably be expected. We are advised that legislative boards in certain cities were favorable to indorsing John W. Davis, in other states President Coolidge and in other states Senator LaFollette. This shows the confusion naturally following the indorsement by state legislative boards of candidates for president.

"State legislative boards have been advised that in our opinion they should not indorse the republican, democratic nor independent ticket or party, but instead should confine their indorsement to candidates for state offices, including candidates for the United States house and senate."

STATE TRADE UNIONISTS IN DISSENSION OVER LA FOLLETTE

Hartford, Aug. 20.—The ranks of trade unionists throughout the state are reported to be torn with dissension over the endorsement which has been given the candidacy of Senator Robert M. La Follette by the Hartford Central Labor union and similar bodies in several other cities in the state.

The controversy will be fought out at the annual convention of the Connecticut Federation of Labor, which opens in Hartford on September 2. The matter of the La Follette presidential candidacy will come before the convention in the form of resolutions, and the debate over the question of endorsement is expected to be sharp and prolonged.

Although the Hartford Central Labor Union a few weeks ago endorsed La Follette for president, the representatives of the local unions in that body tonight turned down several requests from the American Federation of Labor and the campaign headquarters of Senator La Follette for contributions to the campaign fund and to appoint committees to further the Wisconsin senator's candidacy.

GILPATRIC FAMILY IS SACRIFICING PROPERTIES

Putnam, Aug. 20.—The first definite action by the family of G. Harold Gilpatric, cashier of the wrecked First National bank and former state treasurer to liquidate all assets available and turn the cash over to the receiver of the bank, was taken today when Mrs. Gilpatric made arrangements to leave her home. She will reside with her brother, Henry Wheelock, and the Gilpatric home will be placed on the market. It is said to be valued at between $7,500 and $9,000

At the same time, Walter Gilpatric, brother of the cashier, who attempted to take his life by shooting August 7, left for Juniper Point, Me., where he will dispose of the property held by Mr. Gilpatric there and he, also, will turn the funds over to Receiver G. M. Coffin, of the First National bank.

Another business venture in which Gilpatric was interested and which did not prove a succes, was disclosed today when it was learned that Gilpatric was treasurer and a stockholder of the Bliven Manufacturing company.

The company was organized in 1910 for the purpose of marketing a trolley pole pulley invented by Percy C. Bliven, of South Killingly, Conn. The company was capitalized at $150,000 but apparently only $5,000 of this was paid in. Gilpatric invested $560 in the stock.

According to Bliven, the company was not a success for the reason that it was not properly pushed. He said that Gilpatric had told him but a short time ago that the company still was in existence and that annual reports were being filed with the secretary of state. Bliven holds a $2,000 note against the manufacturing company.

FIGURING ON A CHANCE OF RADIO SIGNALS FROM MARS

Washington, Aug. 20 (By the A. P.)—On the bare chance that radio signals from Mars may be heard during the period when that planet is nearest the earth, Prof. Davis Todd, formerly head of the astronomy department at Amherst, has asked that the principal governments of the world agree to keep high-powered radio stations within their jurisdiction silent during August 23 and 23.

Some officials of the American government appear disposed to favor the proposal, despite their skepticism over the results, but so far no instructions on the subject have been issued by the radio regulation section of the department of commerce.

Professor Todd approached most of the foreign governments through their embassies and legations here and he appears confident that in the end his suggestion will have widespread acceptance.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Miss Lucy Page Gaston, nationally known reformer and steadfast foe of cigarettes, died in a sanitarium here today. Her health failed several months ago after she was injured in a street car accident, and a malignant growth in her throat developed.

For more than a quarter of a century Miss Gaston had worked unceasingly to eradicate the cigarette. She continued her efforts with energy unabated in recent years, although she admitted cigarette smoking by women and boys was increasing.

During her career saloons and gambling resorts as well as cigarette selling establishments were raided under her leadership.

Miss Gaston at times turned to experiments even in international reform.

$110,000 DAYLIGHT JEWELRY ROBBERY IN BOSTON

Boston, Aug. 20.—The police, working with fragmentary description available tonight had made little progress in tracing five robbers who carried off jewelry valued at $110,000 in a bold daylight holdup of the store of Carl H. Skinner today.

Working according to a plan, apparently carefully arranged and timed, four young men, unmasked, dashed into the store as window and counter displays were being removed from the safe, seized the jewelry from the hands of the manager of the store after striking him on the head with the butt of a revolver. They escaped in a car in which a fifth bandit was waiting. But in their haste, Mr. Skinner said tonight, they overlooked an additional $110,000 worth of jewelry which had been left lying on a counter.

Although witnesses reported the registration number of the car as it sped away from the scene of the robbery, the police received no aid from that source, for they discovered that the plates had been recently stolen.

Pyromaniac Caused More Than 100 Fires

New York, Aug. 20.—A self styled "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde"—an unassuming youth of 26—blandly confessed to the police today that he had caused over 100 incendiary fires on Manhattan Island in the last few months, "just to see the fire engines in action."

"It was a lot of fun," he explained with a smile, "to stand in front of a burning house and know that the people running from the place so madly didn't know that the one who had made all the excitement was right there looking at them."

The prisoner, George C. Gustow, former bank clerk and son of a patent attorney, was held for examination by a lunacy commission to be appointed by a court. It will be his second experience with alienists, for he was incarcerated in Bloomingdale and Middletown asylums from 1915 to 1919 after his arrest for a series of incendiary fires he started as a boy of 14 years.

Gustow's arrest followed months of work by police and fire officials who sought him as "New York's worst firebug." Gustow was seen yesterday at an Amsterdam avenue fire and recognized as a "man with a limp," who had been seen to leave the flaming building just before the blaze was discovered.

Taken to a police station he admitted authorship to two letters to Fire Marshal Brophy in which he had written that "the man who is setting all these fires is a person of dual personality and a very shrewd person. He will never be caught."

He was to this "dual personality," which he attributed to an attack of spinal meningitis which he suffered in 1914, that Gustow credited his mania for the sight of blazing buildings and the subsequent excitement caused by the arrival of fire apparatus and fighters. The mania overpowered him at odd times, he said. Ordinarily he led the usual existence of a youth of his age. But when his "second" personality took possession of him, he declared, he becomes another person—a fiend who prowled the streets seeking houses to burn.

Gustow declared that he had planned "how not to hurt nobody." He told the authorities earnestly that he never caused a fire which resulted in death.

"I always had a newspaper with me," he continued. "You can start a mighty big blaze with a newspaper, if you know how."

Gustow was confined to the Tombs to await appointment of the lunacy commission.

SUES FORMER HUSBAND TO RECOVER PROPERTY

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 20—Mrs. Adelaide Palmer Lee, who recently obtained a divorce from Dr. Harry M. Lee, well known New London surgeon and a member of the staff of Lawrence hospital, has brought suit against her former husband in an endeavor to recover property in Waterford, which plaintiff alleges is hers by all legal right. Papers in the case were served late yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Manuel J. Martin, who caused the physician's personal bank account to be attached and levied an attachment against the property now occupied by the defendant. The case is returnable before the next civil term of the superior court.

Mrs. Lee claims that in 1916 she quit-claimed the Waterford property to the physician in order that the latter might obtain mortgages from the Mariners Savings Bank of this city. Since that time, she alleges, defendant mortgaged the property to the Norwich Savings bank for $15,000. She now seeks to recover title in the property, also to compel her former husband to give an accounting of his handling of the property since it was turned over to him, about eight years ago.

Warfare By Chicken Pullers in New York

Two Men Were Shot to Death Yesterday by Gang Operating From a Taxicab.

New York, Aug. 20—Two men were shot to death today in what the police termed a resumption of the "chicken pullers war" which raged fiercely up to seven years ago when the authorities brought temporary peace by sending several gang leaders to the electric chair after a series of particularly violent murders.

Today's victims marked the third murder in two days. They were William Young, 23, and Edward Connelly, who were fatally shot by a band of men who operated from a taxicab in lower eighth avenue. James Young, William's 27-year-old brother, was shot to death at about the same place and hour in a similar manner yesterday.

The Young brothers were to have appeared in a Jersey City court next month to testify against the murderers of their older brother, John, who was killed by a gunman last March. The brothers were said to have been the only witnesses to the murder.

Connelly and the Youngs refused to reveal the identity of the men who shot them.

Thomas and Philip Reilly, brothers, of Hoboken, and Richard Phillips, of Weehawken, leaders in the "chicken pullers' association," are charged with John Young's murder.

The "chicken pullers," an organization maintained by its leaders independently of organized labor, consists of men who unload the poultry arriving daily at Weehawken. In addition to a cash payment per crate, the association members receive every dead fowl found in shipments. Although the law provides that such fowl should be destroyed, the police say that the "pullers" sell them for food.

SEVERAL NAVAL OFFICERS CLIMBED 200-FOOT ICE BERG

Indian Harbor, Labrador, Aug. 20.—(By The A. P. Fliers)—By way of diversion, while waiting for the departure of the American aviators from Iceland, Captain McCord, of the U. S. destroyer Charles Ausburn and several other officers from that craft and the U. S. S. Mercy paid a visit to an immense iceberg, which lay towering like a great cathedral with three spires in the bay a few miles north of this anchorage. It was 200 fet high and on Captain McCord sent the launch circling one side a sheer precipice. The ice field base was covered with huge rocks, cling until a quiet place was found under the lee, and nosing in, Lieutenant Commander Mallard sprang on to the ice shelf, axe in hand. The ice gave forth thunderous cracking noises. In a moment the launch was forced off, leaving Mallard a solitary figure.

The launch came back and threw out its grappies again, and Captain McCord reached the ice shelf and gave a helping hand to the boat, which held tight against the ledge. Lieutenant Commander Zimmermann, Lieutenant Carroll and Ensign Johnston, of the Ausburn, and Lieutenant White, and the surgeon of the U. S. S. Mercy, together with wto civilians went "ashore" the field and the noise was deafening. Axes were used to cut steps up the The waves sent clouds of spray over ridges, so that all who wished could climb to the top and look over the precipice as part of the adventure.

FRANCE HASTENING TO MAKE THE DAWES PLAN EFFECTIVE

Cabinet Will Appoint Today Members of the Committee of French Experts Who Will Cooperate With the Germans in Putting Final Touches to the Plan For the Economic Evacuation of the Ruhr—This Evacuation Will Not Begin Until London Agreements Have Been Signed, Which Ceremony Has Been Set For August 30.

Paris, Aug. 20—(By the A. P.)—The first step towards actually putting the Dawes plan into operation probably will be taken at the cabinet meeting tomorrow when there will be appointed some of the various officials who will represent France in the Dawes plan organization, or at least the members of the committee of French experts who will cooperate with the Germans in putting the final touches to the plan for the economic evacuation of the Ruhr.

This evacuation will not begin until after the London agreements have been signed, which ceremony has been set for Aug. 30.

As there are many thousands of French and Belgian railroad men and large economic staffs who are comfortably settled in Germany, there will be quite a task to unscramble all of the affairs in which the civilian forces of occupation have taken part during the last year and a half.

Reports that the economic evacuation had begun, which were circulated early today, were denied by the foreign office and the ministry of public works.

HERRIOT TO APPEAR BEFORE FRENCH PARLIAMENT TODAY

Paris, Aug. 20—(By the A. P.)—Parliamentary groups today were generating enthusiasm or depression, according to their political complexion, but even Premier Herriot's worst enemies would not predict his fall when he faces the legislature tomorrow. His friends say that the approval of the London accord is certain, while his adversaries expect merely to give him a few disagreeable hours.

The trouble is that M. Herriot's political enemies do not dare to attempt an overthrow of the government now that an apparent solution of the reparatins question has been reached. M. Poincare's course is still unknown, but it is believed he will make a bitter analysis of the premier's negotiations in London.

Former Finance Minister Klotz has become the spokesman for a group that insist parliament ought not to be asked to act without discussing the complete text drafted in London.

There are many who believe the Dawes plan replaces the treaty of Versailles and must be ratified by parliament after it is signed.

LOEB AND LEOPOLD ARE DENOUNCED AS "FIENDS"

Chicago, Aug. 20—(By the A. P.)—Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, today, without a perceptible quiver, heard themselves denounced as "fiends," and "dastardly cowards" by Assistant State's Attorneys who were summing up before Judge John R. Caverly the law and circumstances of their kidnapping and murder of Robert Franks.

They were outwardly unmoved, even when the prosecutors urged hanging as the only fit punishment for them, and once after Joseph Savage, who devoted himself to the facts in the case, pointed directly at Loeb, and called him "this fiend," the youngest of the youthful defendants turned to Leopold and arched his eyebrows quissically.

Another time when Thomas Marshall was describing the youth's discussion as to which kind and grade of acid would best destroy the features of their victim, Loeb looked around and asked Leopold:

"Which was wrong?"

Leopold merely glanced at his companion in crime on these occasions. Throughout the day he sat almost motionless, fingers intertwined and forearms resting easily on the arms of his chair. Occasionally he leaned forward to whisper to his attorneys or to watch Clarence S. Darrow, chief counsel for the defense make notations on cases cited by Mr. Marshall.

GREENLAND NAVAL PATROL FACES SHORTAGE OF FUEL

On Board the U. S. Cruiser Richmond, Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 20 (By the A. P.)—The fortnight's delay in the American army aviators' world flight due to uncertainty as regards ice conditions in Greenland and several mishaps has brought about a fuel shortage in the naval patrol which is further complicating the flight situation.

Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder admitted this fact when his flagship, the Richmond, put into Reykjavik this morning with spare parts for the planes of Lieutenants Smith and Nelson. A further delay in the flight, owing to weather or other causes, would necessitate re-fuelling the patrol vessels at Rosyth, Scotland, or elsewhere.

MORS JEWELS WERE IN HOME OF THE SISTER OF KID McCOY

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 20.—Two hard blows were dealt today on the structure of defense built for Kid McCoy, ex-pugilist, indicted yesterday for the murder here August 13 of Mrs. Therese W. Mors, with whom he was living.

Mrs. Thomas turned over to investigators $5,000 worth of jewels which she said McCoy gave her after the death of Mrs. Mors, and which Albert A. Mors, divorced husband of the dead woman, declared were stolen from her body.

Police investigators announced that they had torn to shreds the story of Dagmar Dahlgren, dancer and eighth (divorced) wife of the ex-fighter, who earlier in the day volunteered a statement that tended to absolve her former husband of Mrs. Mors' death.

The dancer said that, after Mc Coy and Mrs. Mors, she saw McCoy leave the Mors apartment the night the woman died with a bullet in her head, saw Mrs. Mors turn off her light, then saw a heavy set man enter, heard an argument, then a shot, and finally saw the nasty departure of the heavy set man.

After investigating police asserted they could find no corroboration of the Dahlgren story and that it apparently was an effort on her part to help her ex-husband with no basis in fact.

The day marked the arraignment of McCoy on the charge of murder, three charges of assault with intent to commit murder and four charges of robbery.

His attorneys obtained a postponement of the plea until Monday, but before they could be heard, McCoy in reply to the reading of the murder charge, shouted: "I did not."

The seven lesser charges against the former prize ring idol, were the outgrowth of a shooting affray staged by him the morning following Mrs. Mors' death, when he invaded the Westlake shopping district, held up a number of persons and wounded three.

WILLIMANTIC

Preparations are under way to raze the ninteric No. 3 Mill of the American Thread Company, according to an announcement made at the local main office of the company. The old wooden structure has been utilized for a number of years as a storage plant by the company. Formerly paper spools were made there. Don H. Curtis, agent of the Willimantic Mills, states that the company's plans are to have a larger water wheel installed at the site when the razing of the plant is completed, for the development of more horsepower by the generation of electricity. A smaller wheel is in operation there at present.

The mill, it is believed, is the oldest of the local mills of the company. It was erected about the time of the Civil War by a company which was absorbed by the old Willimantic Linen Company and which in turn was taken over by the present corporation. The building is of wood, is of antiquated design and is a landmark in the lower village. A number of local baseball players, who later developed into the best of the city's output, were employed at the plant at one time or another.

Wives were complainants against their husbands in the only two cases to come before the police court on Wednesday morning. Mrs. Olivine Lussier charged that her husband, Ledger Lussier assaulted her Tuesday evening, striking her on the nose, causing that member to bleed, also he kicked her. This was denied by the defendant who said that his wife found fault with him because he took his father's folks out riding in his Ford automobile. Lussier said that he had never struck his wife at any time during their three years of married life. Mrs. Lussier stuck to her story, but acknowledged that this was the first time that he had struck her. The court gave both parties some sound advice and continued the case for three months.

Walter Wilk of the lower village, charged with assault on his wife, Sophie Wilk, also intoxication, pleaded not guilty to the latter charge but guilty to assault. Isadore J. Heller acted as interpreter. Mrs. Wilk took a long time to bring the recital of events up to the time of the alleged assault which she said took place Monday night. Her husband, who had been away from home for two days, arrived about nine o'clock in the evening, rapped on the door and then left. Five minutes later he came back and broke down the door. Turmoil followed and according to Mrs. Wilk the alleged assault consisted of pushing her around the room. She was not struck by her husband, she said. She then had him arrested. The couple were given a lecture about the necessity of behaving at home. Wilk was given a thirty day suspended jail sentence and placed on probation for six months.

With the opening of the Elks' County Fair, the exhibits committee is completing arrangements so that this department will be one of the outstanding features of the event. A committee, consisting of Charles W. Hill, chairman, Thomas P. Foley, Charles B. Lamb, Edgar W. Jacobs and James P. Mustard, will be in charge of all exhibits. All classes with one exception will be open to everybody. A division has been made in the vegetable class between home garden produce and that raised by people who pursue agriculture for a livelihood.

The exhibits of fancy work and basketry will be in charge of Mrs. Minnie Flynn, 31 Turner street and Mrs. Donald Crane, 283 Prospect street. Through the cooperation of the Connecticut Agricultural College, experts from that institution will judge all classes.

An inquest into the death of Florence Sugrue was held in the office of Chief of Police Allan MacArthur, Wednesday forenoon by County Coroner Arthur G. Bill, of Danielson. Sugrue died at St. Joseph's Hospital Saturday afternoon, following an automobile accident which occurred at the junction of Jackson and Milk streets, shortly before midnight on December 21, 1923. Four witnesses were heard, John F. Healy, driver of the car and Arthur Haggerty, Michael Sugrue, brother of the deceased and Patrick Dennehey, who with the deceased had occupied the automobile previous to the accident. The substance of the testimony of the four men was that the party of five left Railroad street about 11:40 o'clock on the night in question. Dennehey sat with Healy in the front seat and the others in the rear seat. The automobile was driven directly to Dennehey's home on upper Jackson street where Dennehey left the car. The party then started to return to the center of the city, Healy sitting alone in the front seat.

Healy's story was that on approaching the point where Milk street joins Jackson street, two cars coming toward him on the latter thoroughfare were equipped with glaring headlights that almost blinded him. The next thing that he knew his car had struck the curbing on the rounded corner. He jammed on the brakes but the car bounded over the sidewalk onto the lawn of the Natchaug Grammar school, collided with a sapling and overturned.

The testimony of the other occupants of the machine was to the effect that Florence Sugrue had been thrown from the car to the ground. He was badly injured and could not move, so was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, a short distance away.

Lieutenant Frank McLean testified that he was called to the site of the accident and made an investigation. He narrated conditions as he found them.

Following the hearing, Coroner Bill motored to the location of the accident and took measurements of the surroundings. On his return to the police station, Coroner Bill said that he would reserve his decision.

Frink, member of the republican state central committee for the twenty-ninth senatorial district, a caucus will be held in this city August 30 for the purpose of choosing two delegates-at-large to represent the district at the republican state convention at New Haven Tuesday and Wednesday, September 9 and 10.

Many spectators were attracted by the work of taking down the steeple of the Methodist Episcopal church on Church street by Theodore Langlois and Alfred LaFountaine of Putnam. After knocking out sections of the outer boards of the steeple as far up as they could go inside the steeple, the men erected a "gin pole" on the north side and rigged up a block and tackles with two lines of rope. The work of cutting through the timbers was then done. Shortly after eleven o'clock, the upper part of the steeple, some fourteen feet in length, was lowered to the roof. Before this was fully accomplished, the gin pole broke, but the section of the steeple did no damage as it fell against the rope and was lowered to the roof. In the afternoon the steeplejacks had little difficulty in removing the balance of the steeple by sections. The steeple proper, which was put in place nearly seventy-five years ago, was well constructed, judging from the number of nails used in the conical shaped structure. The center timber that extended from the apex of the spire down to the bell deck was hand hewn and about ten inches square.

Miss Anna Jurovaty, the 17-year-old daughter of Paul Jurovaty of Andover, was before the town court in that place yesterday forenoon, charged with operating a motor vehicle without a driver's license. She entered a plea of guilty. The arrest was made by Deputy Sheriff Allison E. Frink, who testified before Justice of the Peace Charles A. Faulkner that he had twice before notified the Jurovaty girl that she must cease driving a car. She was apprehended early Tuesday morning. Justice Faulkner imposed a fine of $10 and costs, amounting to $21.85, which was paid.

Mrs. Bessie D. Lee Capen has brought suit for divorce from her husband, Leon A. Capen, formerly of South Manchester. Papers in the case were served by Deputy Sheriff Allison E. Frink Wednesday morning on the defendant who is at present in the village of Gilead, town of Hebron. The plaintiff alleges that she married Capen August 8, 1900, and that for many years she has suffered intolerable cruelty as the result of his actions; also that for a long time he has been habitually intemperate. The case is returnable before the Hartford county superior court on the first Tuesday in September.

Walter L. T. Dickie of No. 69 Oak street is satisfied after having learned the identity of the motorist who ran down his prize police dog Jimmy on Jackson street last Saturday morning. Some slick detective work by Chief of Police Allan MacArthur and Mr. Dickie led them to a place over the river where the man who drove the car was at work. The latter acknowledged that he drove the car that struck the animal, but said he did not stop, as he did not believe that the dog was badly hurt when it got up and ran away. The incident was closed by the payment of twenty dollars to Mr. Dickie.

The democratic electors of the town of Windham are to assemble in caucus at the town hall August 28, according to a call issued by Frank P. CAMP GROUND ACTIVITIES, COUNCIL FIRE, LATE ARRIVALS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic Camp Ground, August 20—The morning watch was under the leadership of Rev. W. C. Darby of Tolland "Faith" was the subject. A number of testimonies were given at the close.

At 1 p. m.—Miss Ruth La Farge, of Hockanum, addressed the children in Epworth Chapel. At the same hour Rev. Frank Chamberlain conducted a praise, prayer and testimony service in the Stafford Springs House.

The sermon in the grove Wednesday afternoon at 2 was by Dr. J. R. Edwards, secretary of the Home Missionary society at New York. His topic was "The Fields White to Harvest."

Dr. Edwards spoke again in the evening, his subject being "Home Missions and Church Extension."

District Superintendent Bath announced that Bishop John W. Hamilton will preach Saturday afternoon and evening, and on Sunday afternoon, in place of Bishop Anderson, who is ill.

At the close of the preaching service Tuesday evening, the institute members and many others adjourned to a field adjacent to the campground for the annual camp fire, or council fire, as it was called this year, since the leaguers are divided into four Indian tribes. Frankfurters were roasted over the blazing logs at the end of long poles, and were eaten with rolls and hot coffee. After this an amusing parody of Pocahontas and Captain John Smith was carried out by several with F. W. Gray as reader. Mrs. C. D. Stevens told an inimitable story of Indian lore, patriotic and Christian songs were sung, Dr. Durgin made interesting comments on the mingling of the forces of fun and religion, after which Rev. F. W. Gray offered prayer. The company formed a great circle and sang "Blessed Be the Tie That Binds".

Those taking part in the parody were Poky-Hunters, Mrs. Muriel Jones of New London; Capt. John Smith, Wilfred Schroder of Hartford; Big Chief Powder Can, James Greer, of Thompsonville; priest, Rev. R. C. Stimpson, of Vernon; Curtain, John Lathrop; Scene, Frances Luce, Jersey City, N. J.; "North Wind", Cy Luce, same city; Pine Tree, May Guile of Norwich; Elm, Naomi Haun of Rockville; The Sumtree, Florence Wilson of South Manchester; Maple Tree, Mrs. Fred Damon of New London; The Brook, Miss Lenore Elwood of New London; Three Squirrels, Ruth McCleggan, South Manchester, Miss Jacqueline Stocking of Westerly, R. Leedy; and The Birds, the entire company.

Rev. M. S. Stocking, of Westerly, R. I., was the preacher Tuesday evening. Prof. Leedy and a large chorus choir filling the platform led the large congregation in several hymns. Rev. W. C. Darby of Tolland, read the Scripture and Rev. A. S. Muirhead, of Willimantic, offered prayer. The choir rendered a fine selection, "Behold a Stranger at the Door."

The text of the preacher was John 1:39. The disciples in the account definitely left the great John for the greater Jesus. So we find the true success of life in seeking to sift out the lesser things of life that we may find the best things. Jesus believed that humanity could be lifted from sin if He was lifted on the cross.

The service ended with a selection by the choir, "Now the Day is Over," in which Prof. Leedy and Miss Lenore Elwood, of New London rendered both solos and a duet.

The annual meeting of the cottage holders was held at 4 p. m., Monday, in the New London house, some forty being present.

Rev. Frank Chamberlain, the president, occupied the chair. Rev. W. D. Woodward offered prayer. The secretary, Miss Helen Dyson, read the reports of the meeting of 1923 and they were approved.

A nominating committee consisting of Miss Alice Strong of Boston and Miss Nellie M. Keith of South Manchester was appointed by the chair. They brought in the same list of officers as last year who were elected: Rev. Frank Chamberlain, president; Mrs. James Purdie, vice president; and Miss Helen Dyson, secretary. Several matters were brought up to be presented to the camp meeting association meeting on Saturday such as speeding of automobiles, leaving of cats at close of season; stovepipes through boards, and the removing of certain trees.

Broad Theater

Typically a Lincoln J. Carter picture, the Fox version of The Arizona Express, which opens a three day engagement at the Broad theater today is a work of art. The romance of the rails, with falling bridges, rushing floods and smiling mail car bandits is woven into every foot of the picture so logically that one is carried away by the thrills.

Pauline Starke, Evelyn Brent, Harold Goodwin and David Butler have the principal roles, with the support of a capable cast. Miss Brent, as the queen of the bandits, does an excellent piece of work. David Butler portrays the young mail clerk whose heroism is phenominal, but effective.

Palace Theater

Old Man Minick, the new comedy by George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber which Winthrop Ames will present at the Palace theater for two days commencing Friday evening, with a matinee on Saturday is founded upon delightfully humorous and novel situations. It is based upon a short story by Miss Ferber.

Minick is one of those gorgeous characters that happen along in the theater about once in a decade. He's a strange mixture; Minick is just a wholesome lovable dad belonging to any of us, or we wish he did! Quips come faster from his lips than autos pass the third-story front apartment in which his son and daughter live, and that's going some, for Minick has counted upwards of two hundred cars an hour bowling along the spacious Chicago avenue where he lives with his offspring.

So take it for granted that Old Man Minick contains its full quota of satiric fun and kindly raillery. There is also an appealing vein of sentiment, and perhaps Miss Ferber had a lot to do with that. Anyway, it's there, mixed up with the plentiful nuggets of golden laughter.

Palace Theater Today Only

Hampton Del Ruth, producer, author and director of The Marriage Chance which will be shown at the Palace theater today only is a veteran of his craft. His new picture enlists a cast which reflects credit on his skill in selecting players popular with the public. Ann Alley, Milton Sills, Henry B. Walthall, Tully Marshall, Irene Rich, Mitchel Lewis, Laura La Varnie and Nick Cogley comprise the company chosen to interpret Mr. Del Ruth's ambitious undertaking.

The Marriage Chance is described by him as "a comedy with a dramatic shock," and is said to contain every element that goes to make up farce, light comedy, drama, tragedy and melodrama. It bespeaks a hand practiced in concocting laughter, thrills, horrors and surprise such as most people like to see. Only no one has ever seen the like of the new Del Ruth picture.

Added attractions, educational's latest comedy The New Sheriff and Pathe Review.

Broadway Theater

Five star acts head the program with a feature picture and Kinograms making this a real double show.

An oriental novelty par excellence is presented by the Three Hori Bros oriental masters of balance and acrobatics.

The clever exponents of song and dance Franklin and Hall will open the program.

A new comedy by Thomas J. Grey is offered by Rhode Lockhard and Billie Leahy in The Beauty Shop.

Law versus love! This is the underlying theme of Baby Peggy's latest starring vehicle, in which, surrounded by a great cast of standard screen artists, the diminutive starlet solves a problem greater than life itself. This occurs in The Law Forbids, her new Universal-Jewel starring vehicle, coming today to the Broadway theater. It is an astounding tale of infatuation and divorce, staged on a spectacular scale. Robert Ellis, Elinor Fair, Winifred Bryson, Joseph Dowling, Eva Thatcher and William E. Lawrence are in the cast.

Broadway Theater

Starting Sunday and running for four days the Broadway theatre will show After Six Days featuring Moses and the Ten Commandments. This production is the picturization of the greatest story of all times, the Old Testament, and makes possible such Biblical and historical stories as the Creation of the World, Adam and Eve, the slaying of Abel by Cain, the story of Joseph and his Brethren, the Court of Pharaoh, Moses and the Ten Commandment, the deliverance of the Children of Israel by Moses, the Court of Solomon, his Judgments and his romance with Tamah, and other familiar Old Testament episodes. After Six Days is more than a mere form of entertainment—it is a priceless human, historical and religious document. It goes beyond the realm of entertainment: it becomes educational and inspiring without becoming tiresome.

Bentley's—A Unique School

The Bentley School of Accounting and Finance is an outstanding example of the results that logically follow the giving of service to its student body.

Starting in 1917 with a class of 29, it attained an enrollment of 2292 during the school year of 1923-24. This growth seems remarkable, but is only the natural sequence of maintaining high scholastic standards, allowing men who cannot meet those standards to repeat the entire course once without charge in order that they may acquire proficiency, placing its graduate body in positions of responsibility, and showing an unceasing interest in their welfare by moving them to more remunerative positions of greater responsibility and trust after they have acquired the necessary experience. This school meets the requirements of the business world by training men to become specialists in the most important field of business administration.

Its graduates are given a preference by many public accounting firms, and some of the leading industrial concerns send representatives each year to select men from its graduating class for their accounting departments. Its graduates hold remunerative positions throughout the United States and in several foreign countries. Members of the class of 1923 were placed in all of the New England states, New York, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, California, Costa Rica, Honduras, Guatemala, Colombia and Cuba. Many members of the 1924 graduating class have already been placed in the large cities of the United States and foreign countries.

"Mutual Service" is the motto of this school and "Progress" its watchword. Its student body is so loyal and enthusiastic that nearly 80 per cent of the entire enrollment is the result of personal recommendations of men who have studied at this school and friends who know of the high-grade work that the school is doing.

The appointments and equipment of its educational plant at 921 Boylston street, Boston, are said to be among the finest of any school in the United States. The days of apprenticeship are over; business is a profession; and a man must be specially trained to master a particular line in order to succeed.

THREADMAKERS TO DIVIDE GATE RECEIPTS AS SALARY

Willimantic, Aug. 20.—Members of the local entry in the Connecticut State Baseball league will play under a different arrangement in regard to financial remuneration when they take the field this approaching week end for two games with New Britain. Up to this time they have received a stipulated sum for each contest, but when they were acquainted of the depleted condition of the new syndicate's treasury, they readily assented to Manager John P. McQuillan's overtures, which were affected through his field pilot, Freddy Smith. Under the new arrangement, the players will perform on a "divvy" basis. They will waive their claims for remuneration on Saturday and will accept Sunday's receipts for their salaries. Willimantic plays in New Britain Saturday for which the management receives $100. Manager McQuillan will retain this amount until the following day when the Hardware City team plays here and then the money reverts to its original possessor. All of the local team but the pitchers have come to the terms as specified but the pitchers. They are Michael Flaherty, c; George Adams, 1b; B. Trauske, 2b; E. Trauske, ss; Walter Kamyk; 3b; "Bud" Sharpe, cf; Joseph Hamel, rf, and George White and Leo Normandin, utility.

The fact that the players are willing to sacrifice perhaps monetary gain for the sake of preserving the team in the race for the league honors should serve to bring out one of the largest crowds of the season on Sunday. Manager McQuillan's sagacity in suggesting this arrangement was most opportune and was probably the only method by which the national game was kept alive here.

Manager McQuillan has signed up "Cannonball" Jones of Hebron who has been starring in the box for the Fitchville team and Alfred Mathewson, erstwhile Thread Maker, for the week-end games. The former will probably twirl in New Britain Saturday and Mathewson here Sunday.

STENGEL'S HITTING FEATURES BRAVES DOUBLE VICTORY

Chicago, Aug. 20.—"Casey" Stengel returning from a honeymoon today, was largely responsible for the double victory of the Braves over Chicago, 2 to 0, and 5 to 0. He was responsible for both runs in the opener, and his home run accounted for three of the runs in the second game.

Manager Killefer, Third Baseman Friberg, and Second Baseman Grantham were banished from the game by Umpire Rigler, for disputing decisions. The score:

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch

Any inning. Score 2 to 2. Runners on first and third. Left handed hitter at bat. Double steal is attempted.

Who should take the throw at second base?

In big league baseball, all hitters invariably hit to certain fields. Consequently all of them must be situated in the above situation, if the left handed hitter proves to be a right field hitter, the shortstop should take the throw and cover the bag as soon as possible. If the batter is a left field hitter, the second baseman should take the throw. When a double steal is attempted, second must be covered quickly, so the player taking the throw is able to get the ball back home in the shortest possible time, in order to handle the runner going in from third.

DODGERS GOMING ON STRONG GO INTO THIRD

New York, August 20.—By defeating Pittsburgh for the third time in succession while Chicago dropped a double-header to Boston, Brooklyn went into third place in the National league race today. The Robin's percentage is now .560 as against the Cubs' .554.

Brooklyn has won 12 out of its last 14 starts and six out of seven on its present road trip. The Dodgers' successful invasion of Pittsburgh on the heels of the Giants, from whom the Pirates took a four-game series and seriously threatened the champions' lead, had lessened the smokey city club's pennant chances.

In thus aiding New York, Brooklyn has returned good for evil, for the Giants have won 13 out of 17 games from the Brooklyn team.

DANIELS ALLOWS BUT TWO HITS AGAINST OIL CANS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 20.—For the third time in as many weeks, Tillie Daniels pitched exceptionally good ball and the New London Ship and Engine hitting opportunely behind his great twirling gained the decision over the Standard Oil nine. The ship workers were consistent in the pinches and almost clinched the Industrial league top position by this victory. The final count was 6 to 2 in the Ship and Engine favor.

Daniels allowed but two singles, and in the last three games but five hits in all were garnered off his delivery. He deserved a shutout victory but his team mates erred behind his fine pitching in the first and seventh innings, giving the Socony nine their two runs. Daniels was never in trouble and fanned nine of the Oil Cans. The Bulkeley star slab artist has hung up what is believed to be a record in local twilight pitchers' records. Allowing only five hits in three games, he has won these games almost single handed. There is not a pitcher in the city who even approaches this record and it will no doubt remain for some time to come.

Caffery for the Standard Oil braved the storm and strife for seven innings and was found regularly. Three runs in the opening frame just about clinched the game and from that time on the Oil men were out of it. However, the Shipmen gathered two more runs in the fourth and added a final marker in the fifth, giving them a total of six tallies. Moriarity's three-base hit was the only extra base slam of the game.

The score by innings:

Socony	1	0	0	0	0	0	1	—2

SULLIVAN WINS MATCH RACE FROM SAM DRIVER

Bridgeport, Aug. 20.—Henry F. Sullivan, of Lowell, Mass., who swam the English channel last year, defeated Sam Driver of Bridgeport in a match race from Middleground light to Pleasure Beach, a distance of over nine miles today.

Sullivan covered the course in six hours and 30 minutes while Driver was forced to quit after being in the water four hours and 55 minutes, due to the heavy tide which forced him off his course.

Driver held the former's time record for that course which was eight hours and 10 minutes, Sullivan bettered the mark by one hour and 40 minutes today.

FOUR TEAMS ENTER SEMI-FINALS AT BROOKLINE

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 20.—The national lawn tennis doubles championship took semi-final form today, with the Australian team of Gerald Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood surviving with three American combinations—W. M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin of San Francisco, three time titlists; the Olympic champions, Vincent Richards and F. T. Hunter of New York, and the Kinsey brothers, Robert G. and Howard O., of San Francisco. They are paired in that order to decide tomorrow who goes into the finals.

At the same time, the national mixed doubles championship play was begun, with Miss Helen Wills of Berkeley, California, national woman's champion, as partner of Richards in running through two matches while Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory and W. T. Tilden, 2nd, defending champions, played once to win with some difficulty their match in the second round.

The high spot of the play on the courts of the Longwood Cricket club today was the five-set match in which Australia advanced over the veteran American team of R. Norris Williams, 2nd, Philadelphia, and Watson Washburn, New York. The other Australian team of Norman E. Brokes and R. E. Schlesinger had gone down before the attack of Richards and Hunter, 6-2, 3-6, 6-2.

AMERICAN POLO TEAM HAS BEEN SELECTED

New York, August 20.—(By The A. P.)—Selection of the American polo team which will defend the international challenge cup against Great Britain in a series of matches starting September 6 at the Meadow Brook club, Westbury, N. Y., was announced today by the United States polo association.

The team, a new "big four", is composed of J. Watson Webb, No. 1; Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., No. 2; Malcolm Stevenson, No. 3; and Devereux Milburn, back.

Three substitutes also were named. They are Eric Pedley, sensational star who helped the Midwick club, of Los Angeles; Earl W. Hopping, who has been playing in England until lately; and Robert L. Strawbridge, Jr., of Philadelphia.

The "big four," whose selection was decided upon after its fine showing in a final test watch yesterday has, in Webb, Hitchcock and Milburn, three veterans of the combination which brought the international cup back from England three years ago. Stevenson, has never played on an international cup team but he is a seasoned player.

Milburn, and Hitchkock, form the backbone of the quartet. Both are ten-goal men. Webb, a lefthander, played No. 3, on the last international team but has been moved up to No. 1 to replace Louis E. Stoddard, who has been withdrawn from international competition. Webb is rated at nine goals, as is Stevenson, so that the American team has a combined rating of thirty-eight goals.

These handicaps, however, will not figure in the cup competition which is played on the "flat."

Hopping and Strawbridge both are rated at eight goals while Pedley unofficially has about the same rating.

The cup team will have its first official practice match as such tomorrow when it lines up against a picked four composed of Strawbridge, Pedley, Harry East and F. H. Prince, Jr. at Westbury.

The British team plans its first public match on Friday. The Britishers expect to take the field with Major Kirkwood at No. 1; Major Phipps Hornby, No. 2; Major Hurndall, No. 3; and Luis Lacey, back.

Hillies Nose Out Ponies

Pittsfield, Mass., Aug. 20.—Pittsfield defeated Springfield three to two in the first game of a double header today. The second game was postponed by rain. DUNDEE RELINQUISHES TITLE AS FEATHERWEIGHT CHAMPION

New York, Aug. 20.—After holding the world's featherweight title for thirteen months, Johnny Dundee, veteran Italian battler, today notified the state athletic commission he had decided to relinquish it as he cannot make the 126-pound limit without jeopardizing his fighting ability.

After accepting Dundee's withdrawal and granting his request that it take temporary charge of the crown, the commission announced it would authorize a tournament to determine a new featherweight king.

Kid Kaplan, Meriden, Conn., boxer, who has persistently challenged Dundee for a title match and posted forfeit money with the commission, heads a list of contenders which also includes Babe Herman, Benny Valger and Sammy Mandell.

The action of Dundee, who said he would continue his fighting career as a lightweight and junior lightweight, is one of the most unusual in ring annuals. He won the feather weight title by conquering Eugene Criqui, of France, on July 26, 1923, at the Polo grounds, but has never defended it.

Dundee, veteran of more than 300 ring battles in thirteen years, also held the junior lightweight title until he lost it recently on a decision to Kid Sullivan.

DRAWINGS FOR NATIONAL TENNIS SINGLES MADE

New York, August 20.—William T. Tilden, 2nd., of Philadelphia, national tennis champion, will meet Manuel Alonso of Spain in his opening match in defense of his title at the national singles championship on the courts of the West Side Tennis club at Forest Hills next week. The draw brought Tilden against the only man who has defeated him at singles this year, Alonson turning the trick at Indianapolis early in the summer. Both drew byes in the first round.

Tilden was among eight ranking American players and eight foreign stars who were "seeded" in the draw. Eighty-two players are entered, including most of the leading players of the United States, Canada, Japan, France, Mexico, Spain, Australia and China.

The other Americans seeded include William M. Johnston, Vincent Richards, R. Norris Williams, Howard Kinsey, B. I. C. Norton, Francis T. Hunter and Harvey Snodgrass. The foreign stars seeded include Jean Borotra of France, Norman Brookes, Gerald L. Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood, of Australia, Sunao Okamoto and Zenzo Shimizu of Japan and Jacques Brugnon and Rene Lacoste of France.

The draw shifted a majority of the talent into the second quarter where five of the seeded stars and a bevy of other favorites are listed. In this quarter are Tilden, Alonso, Richards, Howard Kinsey, Harold Throckmorton, O'Hara Wood.

GENERAL DAWES ACCEPTS.

Charles G. Dawes is known as a man of action. Sufficient is known of him to realize that he follows the motto, "Deeds, not Words." On the occasion of his acceptance speech at his home at Evanston he gave new emphasis to that impression. By his straightforward, pointed and clear statement he made it evident that he was not talking simply to take up time but that he was earnestly concerned about matters which are of great importance to the country.

After declaring that "This is a campaign of brass tacks——not bombast" he settled down to a picturing of the political situation and long before he got through with what he regards as only a partial setting forth of his views upon national questions it must have been apparent to those who heard him and those who read his words that the republican convention at Cleveland made a master stroke when he was chosen for the second place on the ticket.

Getting down to some of the hard facts General Dawes took occasion to refer to some of the accomplishments of the administration and in the reduction of the cost of government and in saving the people of this country approximately $6,000,000 a day in taxation he well laid emphasis upon the fact that it was not by accident. That was what was aimed at and the bull's eye was hit. There was no inconspicuous part played by General Dawes in connection with the inauguration of the budget system and there was no small service rendered by the vice presidential candidate in connection with the betterment of the European situation through the committee of experts, but he directed the attention of the people to the fact that they were the outcome of the administration's plans, and paid high tribute to President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes when he declared that had it not been for their attitude and the unofficial representation that Europe might not today be facing away from the chaos and hatred of war.

General Dawes put his finger on the political situation, correctly characterized the third party menace and when he credited President Coolidge with "fearless commonsense and a purpose to do the right and wise thing, uninfluenced by motives of political expediency," he says what the country has had a chance to see and know.

That he should be a backer of the Constitution was to be expected. General Dawes stands unflinching in that respect and he makes it clear that in the country of the Stars and Stripes there is no place for the red flag.

On the league of nations and the world court he does no hedging. His address in fact from the beginning to the end is to the point and understandable. He doesn't say one thing and expect that it will be interpreted otherwise. That it will make an excellent impression is a foregone conclusion and supports the belief that he will be heard in many more equally interesting addresses during the campaign.

THE STAY-AT-HOMES.

At every election there are those who do not vote. Sometimes the number is much larger than at others, but it is common for those who do vote to wonder why there are so many who consider it important to be made voters and yet fail to use the franchise. It is not difficult to account for a certain number for illness, absence and good "forgetteries" are responsible for them. For the rest it is not so easy to find an excuse.

The University of Chicago recently conceived the idea of getting to a better understanding of the situation by means of a questionnaire, which was sent out to 6,000 who had registered but who had failed to vote at an election. They were asked the simple question as to why they didn't vote. They were of course members of all parties and it is a bit surprising that there were 5310 who responded 3629 being women and 1681 men.

The reasons given were absence 589, illness 647, disbelief in voting by women 414, ignorance concerning voting 378, failed to get around to it 448, general indifference 1347, disgust with politics 230, indifference to the particular election 139, disgust with party 105, belief that one vote made no difference 79, belief that ballot box is corrupt 40, poor location of polling places 45, disbelief in all political action 22, feared loss of business or wages 300, fear they would have to divulge their ages 14.

That is an array of reasons which fails to impress. For the most part it displays a poor appreciation of the franchise and gives no recognition to the duty which devolves upon the voter. Just why such a great number as those indifferent, those who disbelieve in women's voting, party, political action, in giving their ages and who are disgusted with politics and fear ballot box corruption should consider it necessary to register or how conditions are going to improve if they do not lend their assistance is hard to understand.

For the most part the excuses are shallow. Unfortunately that condition is by no means restricted to Chicago. It is too general but the difficulty of changing it is one that has long been wrestled with without obtaining satisfactory results.

LIFE SAVING INSTRUCTIONS.

It is a valuable service which has been rendered during this summer by the organization which has sent representatives about the country to the various summer resorts for the purpose of giving instructions and demonstrations in getting persons out of the water who are in danger of drowning and in resuscitating those who have been gotten out of the water after being overcome.

Study has developed the fact that many lives might have been saved had there been the application of simple but proper methods. There was the time when it was considered important to roll a drowned person on a barrel. Today that method is regarded as of little value, and while a search might be made for a barrel effective work can be done in the way of reviving the person by artificially forcing the lungs to function.

It is not only at the beaches that telling work might be done in this respect but at such points there are always many who can be quickly interested in the life saving service. They are especially concerned and it is evident that they recognize the importance of such instructions both because of what they might be able to do in behalf of another or a chance to do for them. There is no possibility that there will be too much known about such life saving measures, whether persons who have been overcome in the water, or those shocked by electricity, are concerned. The greater the number who can undertake resuscitation efforts the greater the number of lives that can be saved. It will be well if everyone knew something to do in case of such emergencies.

FOREST DEPLETION.

Repeated concern has been displayed in this country lest there be too little recognition given to the fast disappearing forests of this country in time to prevent a serious situation. The aim is to get the country awakened to the need of immediate efforts in the way of reforestation that will prevent the wiping out of our timber supply. For a number of years we have been told of the approaching end, that we are using much faster than we are growing and that we are wasting as if there was no limit to the supply. There should be an end to the waste and there should be well organized and well distributed efforts in the way of replacement, for new forests are not grown over night, but fire and the woodsmen's axes make great inroads in a short time.

But the problem is not one that concerns this country alone. Canada is being told, quite as frequently as is this country, that the end of its virgin forests is in sight and that sufficient action needs to be taken to prevent a timber famine.

Canada has reasons to deplore the exhaustion of its timber resources quite as much as this country. Reforestation isn't unknown there for it is being undertaken in the different provinces, but the need of a national plan is being emphasized.

This is a common situation that exists in the United States and Canada. There may be no such thing as joining hands in its solution but there should be a respective meeting of the requirements without delay. Steps taken now will produce results that will prevent a serious situation. Neglect only invites the inevitable.

NEW JERSEY BULL FIGHTS.

New Jersey is displaying no little opposition to bull fighting. This is a new sport for that state, and this country, if it can be regarded as a sport. The claim is put forth of course that the so called bull fights are not the kind of bull fights that can be witnessed in Spain where it is a case of killing the bull or the toreador. But even though there is less cruelty there is nevertheless a certain amount of it which doesn't meet the approval of the people of that state. Even if it is figured that the chances of getting hurt are about equal between the bull and the fighter New Jersey does not welcome the introduction of this form of entertainment.

The idea of matching a brute against human skill may be regarded as desirable by those who are seeking the financial return from such exhibitions but much credit rests with those who are not only backing but urging the authorities for its prevention. The time for blocking an entering wedge looking to real bull fights is at the beginning. Enough good sports are available without resorting to that.

PLAYING SAFE

"Can't believe it," protested the red-headed girl. "You buying a shack at the dunes and expecting to stay down there alone, or with just one girl friend, over week-ends. Why, Anne, you'd be afraid of the seagulls if they strayed near your door."

"Oh, no. I wouldn't," protested Anne, a meek-looking little mite in brown. "I used to be so scared I'd always look under the folding bed after I'd let it down, just like the silly lady in the funny paper. But I was cured last winter. Nothing scares me now."

"Is there a correspondence course on how to get over being scared?"

"It was force of circumstance. Several circumstances, to be exact. First, I went back to the office after dinner one night to get a book that I'd forgotten and found a nice-looking young mon there at one of the clerks' desks. He hailed me as I came in and said he had been asked to bring Ben Westland some papers he had left in the top drawer, but the thing was locked and did I know how he could open it, as Ben was terribly worried about getting the needed data that night and couldn't get down for it himself.

"I couldn't help him, but after trying and trying, the stranger remarked regretfully that he guessed he'd have to use a screwdriver he had noticed at the other side of the room. I wanted to call the janitor, but he said not to, as the janitor hadn't much sense and might think he was a burglar. We both laughed at that and finally he managed to get the drawer open and showed me the papers he went off with and we went as far as the street car together.

"And next day I discovered that the screwdriver had been a 'jimmy' and my nice young man had been a burglar. They caught him on another 'job' and he had with him some of the coupon bonds that Ben had left in his desk and had been worrying about to a friend on the way home. This man had been standing next them in the car, sneaked Ben's wallet and found his business card and was just at his desk when I came in, so he hid the bonds and showed me some innocent papers for a blind.

"Well, if he was a sample burglar, they weren't so bad.

"You remember how I used to lock myself in and then sit up half the night and read when Nell was away and I had the apartment to myself? Just a few weeks after meeting my burglar Nell was out of town and I dined at the Burtons', and Mr. Burton and Grace took me home. Knowing that I was nervous, they came in with me while I looked under the beds and tables, in the closets and on the back porch.

"After they left I moved the kitchen table across the back door and piled two chairs on top of each other against the front door, so that nobody could force the lock and get in without tumbling down those chairs and waking me. I'd been out of doors most of the day and was dead tired, so I soon fell asleep and never woke until the alarm clock rung itself hoarse the next morning.

"I jumped up dressed in a rush and got my breakfast, removed the chairs and went to unlock the front door, when I noticed that, contrary to custom, I had evidently taken the key out of the lock after having turned it. I looked in my purse, thinking I had mechanically put it back there. No key. I looked on the dresser and the mantel and every place I could think of. Still no key.

"Looking at my watch, I saw I had barely time to reach the office for an important engagement and in desperation I took hold of the knob and gave that door a pull—and it opened as easily as you please! And there, in the keyhole, on the outside, where it had been all night long, was my missing latch key!

"Scared? I'm all over being scared. The apartment on the floor below had been entered that very night and money and silver stolen and I, with my latch key invitingly on the outside, wasn't even approached.

"I have decided that I am immune."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Frank A Munsey, who celebrates his 70th birthday anniversary, is a noted financier and publisher with large interests in New York, Washington, and other cities. He won his wealth through clever and profitable editing and selling of low-priced magazine literature. A native of Maine, and for a time a storekeeper and later a telegrapher, he got his start in the publishing world in 1882 with a weekly for juveniles. With the profits from that he launched a magazine. In due time other periodicals, low in cost and popular in form, followed. A decade later he became interested in civic questions, and, to carry out his ends as a politician and reformer, he began to purchase newspapers. With the accumulation of wealth he branched out as a banker and financier. The story of Mr. Munsey's success is one of those modern business romances which proved conclusively how false is the notion that a poor young man has no chance to climb to the top. According to his own story, his total capital when he arrived in New York consisted of $50 in cash and a handbag full of manuscripts.

Stories That Recall Others

Please Introduce Them.

The manager of a certain company took great pleasure in kidding a certain stenographer, who is everything on looks, but whose thoughts are far away from the more serious side of life.

"I have heard rumors to the effect that you are going to quit your job," he said. "Someone told me that you were going to Chicago and that you had applied for a position at Marshall Field's."

"Well, I should say not!" was the emphatic answer. "Me get a job with Marshall Field? Why, I don't even know him!"

It Was Set on Fire.

The fire marshal was making an investigation of a fire where a house had been destroyed. The owner answered the questions in great detail. At the end of the examination the marshal remarked that from the information he had obtained the fire appeared to have been of incendiary origin.

"Incendiary nothin'!" exclaimed the owner. "Someone set that house on fire."

Instruction in the use of library books is given in several of the high-school libraries of Cleveland, Ohio. Graduates of these schools report that they find this training very useful after entering business or professional life.

Liggett Went to Work at 14

Louis K. Liggett's parents were not rich and while he was attending public school in Detroit, where he was born, the neighbors considered him to be "just a boy fond of outdoor sports."

At 14 he had to quit school and go to work, so he obtained a position in John Wanamaker & Company's Detroit branch. After two years of office work he seized a chance to sell a lot of slowly-moving goods, and was made a travelling representative.

Three years later, he had saved enough to become a mill representative, the first in Detroit. Representing 32 mills, he sold direct to dealers, and made $7,000 the first year. Saving his money he married. Soon afterward he went into the proprietary drug business, investing everything he had, put out a headache remedy, and the venture was unsuccessful.

Next, in Boston as salesman for a drug concern, he conceived the idea of having an exclusive agent in each city who would share, pro rata, in the benefits of a national advertising campaign. His plan was so successful that within six months he was made general manager.

For some years he had considered his idea of having certain retail druggists combine their buying and manufacturing power and put out many of their own products. Thirty-five druggists of Boston joined with him in the plan; stock was subscribed and in 1903 the United Drug Company started with 14 employes. Within 18 months it was making a profit, and a year after that had 1,000 stockholders and 300 employes.

Liggett organized other companies and became interested in several other concerns. He was rated as a rich man and he took active part in public affairs. Then came the depression following the post-war inflation, and he put his financial affairs into the hands of trustee. In a short time his financial condition was declared to be sound and today, at 49, he is one of the richest men of the country, heading organizations whose activities penetrate to many parts of the world.

Suffered Terribly With Itchy Eczema Cuticura Healed

"My daughter suffered terribly with eczema. It broke out in the form of a rash and was confined wholly to her hands and arms. It itched and burned so that she could not sleep or work, and the scratching caused eruptions. She could not bear to have any clothing on her arms or gloves on her hands.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and in three weeks she was able to resume her work. We continued the treatment and after using about two boxes of Ointment, with the Soap, she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. H. Ida L. Brown, 33 Maple St., Oakland, Maine, Feb. 6, 1924.

Summer nears its close, yet the hot weather will be with us for almost two months yet. It is good policy for us to clear away all of the summer dresses during this period. POETRY

AT A SOLEMN MUSIC.

Sphere-born harmonious Sisters, Voice and and Verse!
Wed your divine sounds, and mixed power employ,
Dead things with inbreathed sense able to pierce,
And to our high-raised phantasy present
That undisturbed Song of pure consent
Aye sung before the sapphire-colored throne
To Him that sits thereon,
With saintly shout and solemn jubilee,
Where the bright Seraphim in burning row
Their loud uplifted angel-trumpets blow;
And the Cherubic host in thousand choirs
Touch their immortal harps of golden wires,
With those just Spirits that wear victorious palms,
Hymns devout and holy psalms
Singing everlastingly;
That we on earth, with undiscording voice
May rightly answer that melodious noise;
As once we did, till disproportioned sin
Jarred against nature's chime, and with harsh din
Broke the fair music that all creatures made
To their great Lord, whose love their motion swayed
In perfect diapason, whilst they stood
In first obedience, and their state of good.
O may we soon again renew that Song,
And keep in tune with Heaven, till God ere long
To his celestial concert us unite,
To live with him, and sing in endless morn of light!
—John Milton.

A PSYCHOLOGICAL SONG.

One day a sorrow came to me,
A sorrow keen and strong;
Alas, I cried, it cannot be
That I can bear it long;
It shared my dreams, it woke with me,
It glittened in my tears;
My heart it nearly broke for me—
Dread filled the coming years.

And then—and then—I know not how—
I thought it wondrous strange—
Though biding yet, my sorrow now
Took on a loving change;
Its bitter pangs I'd sometimes find
Less cruel than of yore;
Caressing my heart with touches kind,
It made me weep the more.

Anon, my sorrow came to be—
Though still it made, me sad—
A sort of faithful friend to me,
The sweetest that I had.
And, oh, the pain by naugh alloyed,
Worse than the primal ill,
The day my sorrow fled—the void
That naught can ever fill!
—Samuel Minturn Peck, in Boston Transcript.

AFRAID SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Operation Advised, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made It Unnecessary

Glasgow, Kentucky.—"I was run-down, nervous, with no appetite. My side had given me trouble for five or six years. At times it was all I could do to live, and the doctor said I couldn't live but a short time longer without an operation. That was two years ago. My sister-in-law recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She had never used it herself, but she said one of her neighbors suffered just like I did, and it cured her. After I had taken four bottles the pain left my side. I had a fine appetite to eat anything that was put before me, and I began to do all my work and my washing, something I hadn't done for years. I am a dressmaker, and this last fall I began suffering with my side again, so I began taking the Vegetable Compound again. I am on my fourth bottle, which makes eight in all I have taken. I feel so much better when I take it and everybody tells me I look better. My appetite improves and I feel stronger in every way. I am a very nervous woman and it seems to help my nerves so much."—Mrs. MAGGIE WALLER, Glasgow, Kentucky.

With an attendance of eighteen civil war veterans the 56th annual reunion of the Eighteenth Connecticut Volunteers was held Wednesday at Buckingham Memorial. The business meeting was called to order at 12 o'clock by President James McKee of this city and the invocation was given by the regimental chaplain, A. C. Greene of Danielson. The report of the secretary, Arthur L. Peale, this city, was read and approved. His report as treasurer, showing a balance of $353.85, was also approved by the meeting.

An interesting feature of the meeting was the reading by the secretary of a number of letters received from veterans who were unable to attend the reunion. Grace H. Kirkpatrick and Mabel H. Vaughn of this city sent $5 as a contribution to the regimental fund in memory of their father, Henry Hovey.

Among those who sent letters regretting their inability to attend the reunion were A. M. Lathrop, Co. E, 18th Regiment, now of Inland, Neb.; George C. Brick, Post No. 22, G. A. Ellsworth of Venice Center, N. Y.

The collection taken up amounted to $9.50. On motion of Capt. John E. Woodward, the only commissioned officer present at the reunion, the officers were re-elected for the coming year as follows:

Humorous remarks and stories pertaining to the regiment by James Haggerty, known to his comrades as "Jim" followed the re-election of the officers. On motion of Captain Woodward the veterans and their guests stood in silence out of respect to the late Edward Brown, city editor of the Norwich Evening Record, who for 30 years "covered" the reunions of the 18th for the Record.

At one o'clock the meeting adjourned to the dining room where, under the direction of the executive committee of Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps the following menu was served:

READ PAPER ON THE FEDERAL RESERVE BANK

With about 25 visiting Rotarians from Hartford and other cities attending the weekly luncheon of the Norwich Rotary Club was held at the Wauregan hotel on Wednesday noon. The majority of the visiting Rotarians from Hartford were members of the Hartford Rotary club golf team who engaged in a match with the local Rotary Golf team at the Norwich Golf club.

President Hugh B. Campbell presided at the meeting and Mayor Milo R. Waters was the song leader. There were slections by the golf players who rendered Sweet Adeline in pleasing harmony forgetting that in a few short hours they would be bitter rivals on the links. "Shorty" Wallen, a member of the Hartford club who has not missed a meeting in two years, favored with a delightful solo.

Several matters of club interest were discussed and Secretary J. Nelson Weymouth read a communication from Past President Charles A. Saxton, in which Mr. Saxton spoke of attending a meeting of the London, Eng., Rotary club on Aug. 6th. Two letters of appreciation were read, one from Dr. John F. O'Brien of the Seaside Sanatorium at Niantic and the other from S. F. Fannon, who was the speaker at last week's meeting. Several announcements relative to the fall conclave at Eastern Point next month were made.

President Campbell spoke feelingly of the passing of Rev. Richard R. Graham, rector of Christ Episcopal church, saying that Rev. Mr. Graham, while not a member of the Rotary club was really a Rotarian in spirit and that the community had lost a fine Christian man.

Rotarian Louis A. Wheeler, who for several months has been ill, attended the meeting and this popular member was heartily greeted.

The meeting was then turned over to the business methods committee, Charles R. Butts, chairman, Edward W. Jewett and Joseph H. Ellers. Chairman Butts spoke briefly on business ethics and then introduced Ed Jewett who read a very interesting paper on The Federal Reserve Bank and Its Operation. Mr. Jewett's paper was as follows:

It is usually better to work with other people than to work alone. We have clubs, associations, societies for the purpose of multiplying the effectiveness or strength or resources of the individual members. A regiment is stronger than the strength of all the men who make it up. An army is stronger than a mob. Just so with money. Men work, save and deposit their savings or the ready money needed for business use. In every bank there are many deposits, none perhaps large but taken together becoming much more useful than if kept separately. They enable a bank to lend its customers the money they need for carrying on business. Thus the money of many individuals serves the business needs of city and town and the farming needs of the country.

A Federal Reserve bank does for banks what banks do for their customers. It receives money from bank members of the Federal Reserve system and lends to them. All National banks and many state banks and trust companies are members of the system. Every member bank is obligated by law to keep with its Federal Reserve bank a certain proportion of its deposits. This is called a "reserve." At times member banks borrow from their Federal Reserve bank; individuals cannot deposit with or borrow from the Reserve bank; thes relation with it is through member banks.

Before the Federal Reserve system was in operation each individual bank stood alone. When all went well this was safe enough but cumbersome. But when banking conditions were disturbed the city banks were least able to furnish cash. Their defenses were weakest when needed most. Under the Federal Reserve system there is a quick, certain automatic way by which the member banks help each other in good times and bad. This is important to every business man, farmer, working man and citizen. The result of this organization makes a system of reservoirs in a community better than many separate wells. There are 12 of these Federal Reserve reservoirs, in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Dallas and San Francisco, each serving the needs of their respective districts and each being a reservoir of credit. In ordinary times a bank's own resources will take care of its customers but in times of emergency the Federal Reserve is a great help and security.

The Federal Reserve system aids in loans to commerce, industry and agriculture, makes loans an government bonds and one district helps another. This enables beneficial cooperation between agricultural and industrial districts. The Federal Reserve has the power to issue currency, back of which is the gold in the treasury at Washington. These Federal Reserve notes get into circulation in much the same way as money is drawn out of a bank and returned to it, currency thus increasing and decreasing according to need. The Federal Reserve banks are organized like other banks, the stockholders being the member banks. Over and controlling all is the Federal Reserve board. Through this there is a country-wide system. Local self-government in banking is at the same time preserved. The rights of member banks are equal in the matter of loans from the Federal Reserve. Nowhere in the world are there so many separate banks as in America. They enjoy a larger and surer power under the joint banking organization, while the Federal Reserve system provides the entire country with a currency responsive to its varying needs, thus removing the danger of a money panic. Moreover, it provides the country a great reservoir of credit for all the lines of business activity that go to make up American commerce, industry and agriculture.

Mr. Jewett's paper was followed with close attention and the committee received a vote of thanks, President Campbell saying the subject was especially appropriate in view of the fact that Norwich is the financial centre of Eastern Connecticut. The Star Spangled Banner concluded the meeting. Pamphlets entitled "Principles of Business Conduct," issued by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, were distributed to everybody present.

PETER GALLAN POST ORGANIZED IN TAFTVILLE

Peter Gallan post, Americain Legion, was organized Wednesday evening at Taftville when legionnaires from Norwich, New London, Baltic and Danielson met at the Army and Navy club in Taftville with about 20 ex-service men of Taftville, for the purpose of organizing a Legion post in that village and assisting the Taftville men in the post organization.

The meeting was opened by District Commander William A. Anderson, who briefly outlined the work being done by the American Legion, stating that every veteran of the

PETER GALLAN,
In Whose Memory Taftville Legino Post Has Been Named.

World war owes it to himself to enroll as a legionnaire and help fight the battles of the disabled veterans being carried on by that organization, the greatest ex-service man's organization in this country today.

Thomas P. Sears of Taftville, chairman of the committee appointed last week Friday following a meeting held at Taftville, at which State Commander E. P. Armstrong spoke, reported that a sufficient number of ex-service men of the village had planned to join the Taftville post and that the name of the post had been chosen as Peter Gallan post, named in memory of the only Taftville man killed in action in France during the World war.

District Commander Anderson then called for the election of officers for Peter Gallan post, and the election resulted as follows: Commander, Thomas P. Sears; first vice commander, Daniel F. McSheffery; second vice commander, Leon Molleur; adjutant, George Weller, Jr.; treasurer, Stanislaus Benac; sergeant-at-arms, Thomas Labbee.

The meeting was then turned over to Commander Sears, who thanked the members for the honor conferred upon him, stating that he would endeavor to fill the office to the best of his ability, seeking to make Peter Gallan post one of which Taftville may well be proud.

He then called for the election of post delegates to the American Legion state convention to be held at Torrington on Aug. 27, 28, 29th. The following members were elected delegates: Daniel F. McSheffery and Wildred Bibeneau.

Members of the "wrecking crew" from the Legion state headquarters visited the meeting and welcomed the new legionnaires into the fold, after which Chef de Train William W. Bailey of New London, representing Voiture Locale, La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Cheveau, outlined the story of the 40 and 8s, explaining what the society stood for and what it offered every legionnaire in the line of service and pleasure.

Indicatinos were that all Taftville legionnaires will come into the Voiture when the next New London county promenade is held, it being planned to hold a county time in the near future. Chef de Gare Jonathan L. Johnson of Norwich was also present and spoke briefly.

It is planned to hold the charter list open for several weeks following its receipt from legion headquarters to allow more time for ex-service men in Taftville to become charter members of Peter Gallan post. The first 13 signers of the charter admitted as legionnaires at the meeting Wednesday night were Thomas P. Sears, Prosper Lurette, Alfred Roberts, Joseph Cormier, Andrew LaBlanc, Edward Echart, Leon Molleur, Ralph Malo, Thomas Labbee, Stanislaus Benac, Victor Gauvin, Napoleon Pepin, Wilfred Bibeau, Daniel F. McSheffery, George Weller, Jr., John Pussik, Dona Simoneau, Richard Heberding and John Wunderlich.

Peter Gallan, in whose memory the new Taftville post of the American Legion is named, lived in Taftville practically all his life. On May 1, 1918, with 15 other Norwich boys, he entrained for Fort Slocum, New Rochelle, N. Y. About ten days later, with other Norwich boys, he was sent as a recruit to Camp McClellan, Anniston, Alabama, and was assigned to the 29th division, comprising men mostly coming from Maryland and New Jersey.

Early in June he sailed with his division from Newport News, Va., and not long after arriving in France was sent to the front as a private in Company L of the 113th infantry. He was killed in action on the battlefields of France on Sept. 14, 1918, the only Taftville boy to be killed while in action against the German foe.

INSURANCE COMPANIES SHOW BUSINESS INCREASE

Total premiums of $1,553,073,376.27 were received by the 34 life insurance companies doing business in Connecticut in 1923, an increase of $170,418,272.28 over the premiums of 1923, according to the 59th annual report of the state insurance commissioner. Total income was $2,012,234,192.47, an increase of $208,578,294.56 over the preceding year. But the per cent. of losses to premiums was somewhat higher than the year before, being 50.5 per cent. in 1923 and 46.08 per cent. in 1922.

The total amount paid to policyholders in 1923 was $76,038,593.81 more than in 1922 and the total disbursements were $733,232,389.91 more. The proportionate increase in both premiums and total incomes is higher for the Connecticut companies than for companies of other states doing business in this state. Connecticut companies paid a total of $65,420,729.62 to policyholders in 1923, as compared with a total of $60,803,278.61. Their disbursements were $111,340,704.65, while the total for the previous year was $93,415,517.71.

Policies in force, exclusive of group insurance, at the close of 1923 for all companies totaled $43,468,858,268. This compared with a total of $38,939,561,139 at the close of 1922, an increase of $4,529,297,139.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Timothy Earle Hopkins, for many years one of the most prominent citizens of Killingly died suddenly and unexpectedly during Tuesday night at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. Mr. Hopkins was taken to the institution last Friday to undergo a surgical operation. He had been ill for a long time and in a more or less critical condition for some time past. However, his condition had been very satisfactory during Tuesday, everything considered, and a few minutes before his death he had conversed in a normal way with those about him. He was taking some refreshment and apparently enjoying it, when he expired without the slightest warning that death was so near.

Mr. Hopkins came of an old New England family, being a descendant of William Hopkins, an early colonial settler whose people were identified with the affairs of Rhode Island from 1640.

Mr. Hopkins was born in Burrillville, R. I., December 5, 1835, a son of Carver and Abby Manchester Hopkins. His father was a manufacturer of cotton goods at Burrillville, where he erected a mill.

After having obtained the foundations of his education in a district school at Burrillville, Mr. Hopkins, with money that he had earned, entered an academy at New Hampton, N. H., and pursued a course of study there. Following this period of study he took an apprenticeship in the machine shop of a relative and remained there a year. Afterwards he was employed in a machine shop at Worcester and remained there until the plant was destroyed by fire, when he went to Burrillville and took a position in the mill operated by his father. In 1858 he went to Millbury and later spent a summer in Iowa. Again returning to Burrillville, he entered into a partnership for the operation of a general store in that place. In 1862 he disposed of his interest in the store and moved to Providence, where he was engaged in mercantile pursuits until 1865.

It was at this point in his life that he appeared to have first concentrated his attention on textile manufacturing and, going to West Thompson, Conn., became eventually the treasurere of the Chase Manufacturing company was discontinued, in 1876, he returned to Burrillville and engaged in the manufacture of woolen goods, continuing in this line until the plant he was operating was destroyed by the disastrous floods of 1876. Going to Fitchburg then he again entered the woolen manufacturing business and remained in that city until 1880. In January of that year he established a home in this town and has since resided here. He was engaged here in the manufacture of woolen goods until 1896. Ten years prior to that time he organized and incorporated the Jesse Eddy Manufacturing company at Fall River, he being owner of half the stock and treasurer of the company, and this concern continued in business until 1898, when the corporation was sold to the American Woolen company.

In 1898 Mr. Hopkins was largely instrumental in organizing the Pennsylvania Furnace company of Reading, Pa., this concern operating two blast furnaces that turned out 60,000 tons of pig iron annually. In 1855 he was active in promoting the Crystal Water company which supplies Danielson with water. He has continuously served as president of the company and was a large owner of its stock. It was in the water company that Mr. Hopkins' local interests have been largely centered for many years past.

However, he was keenly interested in banking and for years and at the time of his death was president of the Windham County National Bank of Danielson, an institution that has benefited by his keen business acumen and foresight. He was also vice president of the Killingly Trust company and a director of the Federal Trust Company of Boston of which he formerly was vice-president.

May 18, 1859, Mr. Hopkins was united in marriage with Miss Marcella S. Cook, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Cook of Burrillville. Mrs. Hopkins died October 14, 1921.

Two children survive Mr. Hopkins, Mrs. Elsie M. Young of Danielson and Earle C. Hopkins of Worcester.

Politically, Mr. Hopkins' allegiance was to the republican party and he had served it in many capacities. While resident in Thompson he was elected a member of the state legislature, in 1868. While interested in politics he did not seek office. He did serve, however, as a member of the republican state central committee from this district and had been a delegate from Connecticut to republican national conventions. He was a member of the Killingly committee on the erection of the new high school and served on the committee that supervised the arrangements for the construction of the Bugbee Memorial library.

There was a suggestion of war-time Wednesday evening when the khaki-clad officers and men of the Service battery swung out from the state armory for the short march to the railroad station ready for their departure for the annual tour of duty at Camp Eustis, Va.

There was a crowd of relatives and friends of the boys on hand to wish them well and hope for much pleasure along with the hard work they will experience in camp.

PUTNAM

Wednesday afternoon, the Junior Chautauqua group met on the Putnam high school lot, for the seventh meeting of the Putnam Junior Chautauqua Summer club. Because of the heat, the races and stunts planned by Conrad G. Voight, the advance agent, were dispensed with and guessing games were substituted.

Some of the guesses were very amusing. The 'cello which John McCormick gave to his accompanist, Mr. Kennedy, on which he will play in Putnam, was estimated by the youngsters to be anywhere from one to three thousand years old. In reality the instrument is 200 years old, as was guessed by Master Bruce.

The photograph of Noah Beilharz, impersonator, was shown the children and they were asked to guess how long he had been touring with Chautauqua. One little tot guessed 2000 years without any hesitation. Most of the guesses were from six to ten years. Twenty years was right, but the nearest guess was 16 years, recorded by Master Hannifan.

How much did Chautauqua pay for the play, Their Honor the Mayor. Guesses varied, but Master Jones was correct when he said $3,000.

One little miss came running up all out of breath, clasping tightly a dollar for her ticket. She wanted to be sure she got the pasteboard for she had been promised a spanking if she did not attend every day, rather strong encouragement, but her smile denoted it was not necessary.

Last year Putnam celebrated its tenth Chautauqua anniversary and the Putnam Junior town, with the following officers, was the banner town of the entire circuit: Mayor, J. Sabin; clerk, F. Franklin; law and order committee, Lilliag Fisher, Roderick Penny; service, Walter Coday, A. Penny, Madeline Houghton; health, Edward Spellacy, Blanche Green. This year's officers have not been elected.

All members of the Junior Summer club are to participate in the Jolly Chautauqua parade leaving the high school grounds, Friday morning at 10 o'clock. The march will be to Union square and return. The youngsters will dress as they see fit and will have decorated wagons and bicycles.

With a view to reducing public expenditures in the present emergency, Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent of schools, has recommended to the school board that the teaching of music be dispensed with this year and that additional teachers for grades six and seven also be dispensed with. This would mean a saving to the town of $2500. The teachers' committee approves the curtailment, as do all members of the school board consulted thus far. The public schools of the town will open, Wednesday, Sept. 3rd. Miss Harriett Baker, teacher of Latin in the high school, has resigned to teach in Franklin, Mass. She will be succeeded by Miss Janet S. Height of Manchester, Mass. Miss Hilda Hongdon, who has been teaching in Seattle, Wash., will succeed Mrs. Johnson as teacher of mathematics.

It has been dog days over in the town of Pomfret this week in more than one sense. A representative of the state commissioner of domestic animals department has been checking up violations of the law relative to licensing and properly caring for dogs and through this check-up 11 violators of the various laws were brought before a justice of the peace. All admitted that they had not complied with the law. The cases were disposed of by the payment of small fines and costs.

George Benoit and his bride have been guests of Mr. Benoit's mother, Mrs. Arcelia Benoit, Marshall street. They left Wednesday by automobile for Jefferson, N. H. They were married a few weeks ago in Paris.

Traveling light as to baggage, 40 children from the East Side tenement districts of New York city arrived in a special car attached to the Wednesday afternoon New York express. One thing that each child brought intact was his appetite. After the little ones had disembarked they were formed in line and marched in the home of Mrs. W. J. Bartlett, Main street, where cans of fresh milk, sandwiches, cookies and fruit, disappeared like a bank of snow in a tropical sun.

The children, younger than those of former years, played about on the lawn until numbers were called and they were sent out into the country to their final destination. The children were plainly but neatly clothed and were happy in anticipation of two weeks in the country. Some of the younger ones will miss their relatives for a day or two, but this will soon wear off amid the wonders of the country.

Miss Gertrude Jones, who has been visiting her nieces, Misses Ruth and Dorcas Bartlett, at Swathmore, Pa., returned home, Wednesday afternoon. The Misses Bartlett passed through Putnam on the Bar Harbor express at an early hour this (Thursday) morning, on their way to Stockton Springs, Me., where they open with the Festival Quintette on the Chautauqua circuit. Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett and a party of friends motored to Worcester and met the train which does not stop in Putnam. The Putnam young ladies left word with the porter to be awakened at Worcester and spent the few minutes during the stop there with their parents and friends, also introducing the other members of the quintette.

Without any clews to work on the police Wednesday were investigating a small burglary that occurred in a little store set up in the rear of a tenement house on Providence street, near the railroad bridge over the tracks of the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad, between 2 and 3 o'clock Wednesday morning. All that was missing were a number of cartons of cigarettes valued at $2.50.

When Patrolman Alferio Sponcey was covering the Providence street beat he noticed that the glass in the door of the little store had been broken. He got the proprietor, who lives in the tenement house, out of bed and he made an investigation, to discover what was missing. After the glass had been broken it was an easy matter for a burglar to turn the lock from the inside by reaching through the break in the glass.

NORWICH WOMEN DRIVE CARS WHICH COLLIDE AT NEW LONDON

New London, Aug. 20.—An automobile operated by Mrs. Minnie M. Hunter Walsh, Norwich, and a machine driven by Miss Lillian Snyder, also of Norwich, were in collision this afternoon at the corner of Federal and Huntington streets. Both cars were damaged slightly.

The New London police were requested tonight by the authorities of Pawcatuck to be on the lookout for a young girl named Sharling, who had run away from home. The girl disappeared late this afternoon and it was believed that she might come to New London and board a train or take passage on the New London line steamer for New York.

John McCarthy, North Main street, Hartford, who sustained the loss of a tooth and the loosening of others by being thrown to the sidewalk, the corner of Bank and Golden streets yesterday afternoon, and who threatened to bring suit because of the hatch in front of the Hygienic Delicatessen store where the accident occurred, being raised, causing him to fall, will not institute damage proceedings. McCarthy declared Wednesday that he accepted $20 from the store proprietors in full settlement for his injuries. McCarthy who had been peering through one of the display windows, turned to go away when his trousers caught on the handle of one of the cellar coverings, which had been raised, causing him to pitch head-first against the walk.

Miss Maud Egan of Goshen, N. Y., returned home today after having visited several days with Miss Marjorie McBride. Miss Egan formerly resided in New London.

Miss Isabelle Orlando of Waterford, Arthur Dayton of Waterford, Miss Sadie McGill, 65 West Coit street; Miss Rebecca Kachinsky, 767 Bank street, and Miss Mary Grippo, Waterford, were patients dismissed today at Home Memorial hospital.

Misses Elisabeth and Polly Naylor, of East Orange, N. J., are being entertained by their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. F. Valentine Chappell.

The automobile owned and driven by Harold J. Smith, Waterford and a machine operated by Miss Alice Driscoll, 273 Parrott avenue, Bridgeport, were in collision late last night at Poquonoc. As a result of the collision, which badly damaged both cars and, caused Miss Driscoll to be slightly injured, Smith will be presented in the Groton town court on Monday forenoon next, charged with operating his car while under the influence of liquor. Smith was operating his machine, a Buick, down Fort Hill, en route to his home. At the bottom of the grade there is a curve and as the machine was about to make the turn, the car operated by Miss Driscoll and headed in the opposite direction was also about to make the turn. Smith evidently misjudged the distance between the two cars, for instead of passing, the Buick and Miss Driscoll's car, a Ford coupe, came together. The Ford was overturned with its driver a prisoner and rolling over on its side, two wheels being ripped off the axles and one side crushed. Miss Driscoll sustained a lacerated wrist and bruises. Smith's car lost two wheels and the steering gear was put out of commission. A report of the accident was telephoned to the state police at the Groton barracks and Officer Robert Honeyman was assigned to investigate the crash. Smith was taken into custody and ordered to present himself in court next week.

Frederick L. Goss, of Waterford, parked his automobile on Blinman street, near the building of the New London Historical society, late yesterday and in leaving his machine, Goss forgot his wallet, which contained papers of value to no one but the owner. When Goss returned to the machine, the wallet, which had been upon the seat of the machine, was missing. Goss communicated with the police and a short time afterwards the owner informed the police that the wallet, minus the papers, had been found in the street on Washington street, near Tilley street.

Charles B. Jennings, former superintendent of schools, who recently suffered a shock at his home, Vauxhall street, continues in a weakened condition and it is not believed that he can survive.

New London has more vessels seized in the illicit liquor trade than has any port along the Atlantic coast. Craft seized as far away as Rum Row have been brought into this port to be held until such time as they and their cargoes can be disposed of by the federal authorities. To the eastward of this port several vessels have been captured with liquor aboard for the purpose of transportation and sale and these too have been brought in here. A few of them have been taken to Providence, but the larger number have eventually found shelter here. The first of the craft to be seized was a power boat that went ashore at Fishers Island. That craft provided liquor to a great many on the island and they reaped no small profit from it. Then a tug was seized here and that yielded a large quantity of liquor. The liquor was in cases and when it was put overboard from the craft that met disaster at Fishers Island the cases floated so that they could be salvaged by the islanders. Now it is said the liquor is carried in jute bags so that when it is thrown overboard it sinks and those who thus dispose of it mark the spot by ranges ashore so that they may go back at an auspicious time and recover the liquor.

St. Joseph's church on Montauk avenue, which was dedicated on the 30th of May, 1909, is being pointed for the first time, showing that the cement used was of a durable quality.

Surprise is expressed that boys are able to steal from automobiles parked at the curbing or in secluded spots as frequently as they do and not be apprehended. It is supposed that passersby who see boys loitering about automobiles and waiting for the opportunity to select plunder from them do not take notice of the boys sufficiently to recognize them and report them to the police.

This has been "dollar day" in this city. It was noticeable that the major part of the trading was done in the forenoon and that in the afternoon the trading was no greater than on an ordinary day, showing that those who went to the store went there anticipating that they would get actual bargains and that they did not intend to spend much money. Certain stores received the major part of the trade, these being the ones that offered goods for a dollar.

Sol Ockoneff, residing on Tilley street, made a claim for damages when, in making changes in the water mains on that street when the thoroughfare was widened and trees removed because broken mains allowed water to flow into his cellar, and he claims damaged the property to the extent of about $100. Street Superintendent Darrow made a report to the city manager that Mr. Ockoneff sustained no damage beyond a wetting of the cellar, and the city council refused to pay him any money. Now he is considering bringing a suit for damages. He is aggrieved because, he says, anyone who looked at the conditions when the water stood inches deep in his cellar could see that there was damage occasioned.

Evaner Joyner, who was a special agent of the Central Vermont Railroad company at this city and who made a large number of arrests among the gang that stole rides on trains and that loitered about the yards of the railroad company, is now in the United States service attached to the coast guard and stationed at Fort Trumbull. Joyner has the acquaintance of nearly all the boatmen along the waterfront and is familiar with many of the motorboats and sailing sloops that come to and go from this port. His knowledge in this respect will stand him in good stead in his new employment.

Another automobile was stolen from the street at New Haven this evening. The car, a Chevrolet, bearing registration Y-1387, was believed to be headed this way and the local police were asked to keep a watch for it.

George M. Logan of New Bedford was a visitor with friends in Danielson Wednesday.

Frank Barber will be at New Haven tonight to see the Pal Moran-Kid Kaplan bout, a boxing event that is of special interest in New Haven and Hartford and other cities in that section of the state.

As Mr. and Mrs. Clements' son, Earl Clements returned from the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam after undergoing an operation or appendicitis, their daughter, Mabel, entered the institution for a similar operation and is now a patient there.

Acting as a justice of the peace, Attorney E. L. Darbie presided at the hearing of eleven cases charging violations of the dog laws, in the town of Pomfret. In two cases where dogs were not registered fines of $2.00 each were assessed with costs, in each case a total of $12.26. In the other nine cases—where dogs were charged to be about without tags—fines of $1.00 and costs were levied. The cases were brought by Chief Special Deputy Howard A. Elliott and Special Deputy Chauncey Genung, representing the commissioner of domestic animals.

Edward S. Carpenter, veteran tax collector, was about Wednesday posting notices relative to borough taxes that will be due during September. Mr. Carpenter has collected the borough taxes for approximately half a century and probably is the oldest collector in point of service of any in Connecticut. For many years Mr. Carpenter also collected the town taxes and, years ago, was collecter of the school district taxes. He has always performed his duties faithfully and well.

Years bring many changes, but develop few such instances as that in which P. A. Reeves figures in taking up his home on the West Side. When Mr. Reeves first came to Danielson with his parents at the age of 8—and that was 65 years ago—he took up his residence in a home on the West Side, on what is now known as South Main street. Very recently, with Mrs. Reeves, he moved into the home where he lived as a boy. Mr. Reeves for years was engaged as an insurance agent here, but retired some time since.

Charles H. Coffin today finished checking up the inventory of the bank's assets as submitted by Bank Examiner Carolyn. The receipt was sent to Washington. No statement was forthcoming from Mr. Coffin or the examiner as to the amount of the assets. There appeared to be fewer people in the bank Wednesday than any day this week. This seems to denote that most of the claims against the bank have been submitted. Depositors in the savings department are being urged to have their pass books verified.

Attorney E. C. Morse issued a statement Wednesday that as general attorney for the Gilpatric family he was working in harmony with the receiver and his attorney, in an endeavor to realize all possible on Gilpatric's assets. That these assets assigned to Mr. Coffin will be distributed among all creditors, individual creditors and the bank, pro rata. The amount of assets it is believed will materially lessen the amount of liabilities.

Mr. Gilpatric's family is preparing to leave the home on Seward street which is a part of the assets assigned and will remove to the home of Mrs. Gilpatric's brother, Henry A. Wheelock, and sisters, Miss Ellen Wheelock and Miss Mary Wheelock, on Church street, for the present.

Gilpatric's room at the hospital has been changed and he is now occupying a less expensive room than before. He is now in the custody of the U. S. government in care of Dr. S. B. Overlock, house physician, and his counsel, former Attorney General William A. King of Willimantic. As far as can be learned he has not yet been of any great assistance in untangling his affairs, as he talks little.

JEWETT CITY

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Robinson and son Earl returned Wednesday evening from an automobile trip to Charleston, W. Va., covering some 1,100 miles each way. Mr. and Mrs. Jay Ricketts accompanied them on the return trip and are at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Charles H. Ricketts of Greeneville.

A new craze has struck this town, with a heavy hand, with the result that mah jongg, old sledge and common everyday tennis are left pretty well out of sight, to the leeward. It is nothing less than golf—no small goods, the real honest-to-goodness stuff! The Pomfret Golf club is allowing the young men of the borough a long coveted privilege, giving them the freedom of their splendid links at Pomfret. Afternoons now when one sees the automobile parties leaving, it is not to play tennis. Talk of the low serve and short counter love stroke is passe now. It's "Hey, Bill, slip me that brassy and niblick. Come on with that driver and putter, and I broke me blooming mashie in the ninth hole, and I'm flat strapped, and owing me caddie a couple bits!"

Announcements are out for the Pachaug grange fair, and exhibits are already being booked. If an efficient list of officers and a competent bench of judges are to make the fair a success, then the answer is settled. The premiums offered to those who display their crops, stock and handiwork extend pleasing attractions to the exhibitor.

Thirty-two years ago today, according to a clipping from The Bulletin of this date, in 1896, there were two distinguished seafaring men in Jewett City. The item reads:

Arthur M. Brown, quartermaster of the steam yacht Eleanor, was in town today for a short sight of home and friends. He returns to his ship this afternoon. Arthur is a Jewett City lad and has always made a success of whatever he has undertaken. His recent long sea voyage around the world has given him many opportunities seldom secured by a young man in his 'teens. His superior officers have nothing but words of praise for him.

The item continues:

George H. Thornton, who last year was a member of the crew of the steam tug Westerly, will sail next week as cook on the Grace P. Willard of Westerly. The vessel is a coaster and will engage in the South American and West Indian trade. Mr. Thornton, though a young man, is an old sailor and can splice a mainbrace or reef a topsail with the best.

The observant citizen today inquires: "Who'd a thunk it?"

A Jewett City man cashed a check the other day for a local woman for less than $30 on the First National bank of Putnam. Wednesday he received notification that the bank had closed its doors. The man didn't mind that so much, but accompanying the information, that set him back thirty bones, were two protest charges, amounting to $2.50. Now he says: "What the ——"

During the July dry spell it looked as though the grass on David Hale Fanning park was dead for the summer. John Farrell, the custodian of the park, kept at it with his sprinklers and mowed it less often. Now, with the help of last week's all-day rain, the grass is coming back, and John says it will be fine and green for the balance of the summer.

A man who read in The Bulletin about the temperature variations here within 10 or 12 days says that to appreciate the wide space between Aug. 7, with the mercury at 110, and Aug. 19, at 4 a. m., when it had dropped to 45, this must be noted. The difference of 65 degrees is equal to a reading of 5 degrees below zero (a colder day than most winters produce), as compared with 60 above, the temperature of a fine summer morning.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, Aug. 20.—Stock prices moved irregularly higher today under the leadership of United States Steel common which touched 111 3-8 its highest price in five years. Total sales exceeded 1,300,000 shares, making it the most active session since last February.

The market was called upon to absorb an unusually large volume of profit-taking sales. These were conducted under the cover of aggressive bullish demonstrations in a number of the leading industrials. American Can was pushed up more than four points to a record top at 138 1-8 and then reacted to 136 1-4. United States Steel common and Baldwin showed net gains of one point at 111 and 124 1-8, respectively. Forty stocks established new high records for the year in the day's trading.

Railroad shares were mixed from the start. Establishment of new peak prices by such issues as New York Central, Southern Railway and Missouri Pacific preferred were offset by losses of 1 to 3 points to Atchison, Chesapeake and Ohio, the St. Paul issues, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, "Nickel Plate," Reading and several others.

Buying of the Steel shares was influenced by the encouraging reports of the weekly trade reviews. Republic, Bethlehem and Crucible showing net gains of about 1 1-2 points each.

Coppers fell back on realizing which probably was inspired by reports that higher prices for the red metal had met with a marked slackening of demand but American Smelting and Anaconda bettered their previous top prices.

Steady accumulation of the motor group was based on expectations of record sales of cars and trucks in agricultural regions this fall and the announcement of proposals for an extensive operation of new bus lines in New York city. Mack Trucks and White Motors led the advance in this group. Public utilities continued to respond to reports of higher earnings. Consolidated Gas created a new high at 82 7-8 but later cancelling the day's gain.

Allis Chalmers, which reported a sensational advance yesterday, broke more than three points on profit taking. Marked heaviness also was apparent in Associated Dry Goods Division Chemical, National Lead, Stewart Warner and Willys Overland Company preferred, all off 2 to 3 1-2 points.

Call money continued to hold at 3 per cent. There was no change in the time money and commercial paper rates.

Foreign exchange rates were reactionary for the third consecutive day with business in reduced volume. Demand sterling ruled about 1-4c lower around $4.43 1-2 and French francs held fairly steady around 5 2-3c. The Canadian dollars, which touched par yesterday, was again at a slight discount.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 20.—Bond prices turned reactionary today under the pressure of heavy realizing sales, and the diversion of speculative interest to the stock market. Uneasiness over the continued decline of the foreign exchanges led to the general liquidation of the French, Austrian and other continental issues, which recently had been pushed up to the highest levels of the year.

At the same time purchasers of the high grade railroad and public utility bonds, influenced by the failure of the market to make further progress, unloaded some of their holdings achieved on the recent upswing. As a result several standard issues, such as Atchison, general 4s lost a point or more.

Scattered strong spots in the foreign group included Japanese 4s, which reached a new 1924 top price at 83 1-2, and some of the Canadian issues, which were stimulated by the rise of the Canadian dollar, so par and reports that the Dominion government would do the major part of its financing here this fall.

Among the domestic obligations hit by profit-taking were Elisco income and adjustment 6s, St. Paul 4s, Atlantic Coast Line 4s, Baltimore and Ohio 4s, Punta Alegre Sugar and Magma Copper issues. Liberty bonds were fractionally lower.

Offering will be made tomorrow of $2,000,000 United Fuel and Supply Co. 6 1-2per cent. bonds at par and accrued interest.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Aug. 20.—A sensational jump of 28 points to 401 in American Power and Light was the outstanding feature of today's irregular curb market. Commonwealth Power jumped nearly five points to 104 but later cancelled half of its gain.

Most of the active oil shares showed only nominal changes. Red Bank broke an additional five points before it met supporting orders, which eventually wiped out most of today's loss. Standard Oil of Ohio advanced 4 points and South Penn 3, but the turnover in each case was small. Increased activity of Woodlew was based on expectations of a favorable earnings statement for the first six months.

Motors displayed a strong tone in sympathy with the advance of those Motors (new stock) the most active feature, touching a record top at 60 dropping nearly 3 points and Lehigh Valley certificates 1. Radio shares moved within narrow and irregular limits.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Indications of at least several days of hot weather over a large section of the main part of the corn belt had much to do with bringing about lower prices today for all grain. The corn market closed weak at 3-4c to 1 3-4c net decline. December $1.15 7-8 to $1.16. Wheat finished easy, 1-2 to 3-4c down. Sept. $1.27 1-4 to $1.27 3-8 and Dec. $1.32 3-8 to $1.32 1-2 with oats 1-8 to 1-2c off and provisions varying from 10c loss to a rise of 2 cents.

With temperatures at 100 degrees prevailing in Kansas and with corn territory elsewhere warming up, persistent selling pressure developed in the corn market and in other grain as well. Adverse reports about the condition of the corn crop, especially in Iowa, gave the corn market considerable strength shortly after the opening but the likelihood of a heat wave proved to be much more than a counter balance later.

Possibilities of competition by Argentine corn attracted further notice today. In this connection reports were current that Canada was proposing to bar corn imports from Argentina. It was estimated that so far six million bushels of Argentine corn had been purchased to come to the United States.

Bearish estimates of the spring wheat yield this season in the Dakotas and Minnesota had considerable effect in the wheat market. According to a leading authority in the production in the three states promised to be more than 65,000,000 bushels more than the latest government estimate. Besides, primary receipts of wheat today were twice as large as a year ago with the spring wheat movement just beginning.

Oats weakness was due chiefly to sympathy with the decline in corn values.

What To Do For Frail, Feeble, Old People

"When age begins to thin the blood all the vital functions slow down and in, also the health. In such cases," says Dr. Emil Sauer, "I know of nothing better than true organic iron."

"What old people need most, is something to put back the iron in their blood. Without iron nothing you eat does you any good. Your food merely passes through you. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food."

"For old people who feel their former strength slipping away, I always prescribe Nuxated Iron, which contains iron like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples and like the iron in your blood. It is a true tonic, blood and body builder, and in my own practice, I have had aged people tell me that they felt years younger often in only a few weeks' time."

Nuxated Iron, recommended above by Dr. Emil Sauer, may be had at any good drug store. Try taking two tablets three times a day for two weeks, and if you do not feel years younger with new strength, energy and health, your own druggist will gladly refund your money.

WESTERLY

Before United States Commissioner Henry C. Hart, in Providence, Tuesday, Pasquale Salemano of Westerly, prosecuted on a complaint alleging possession of intoxicating liquors containing alcohol in excess of one-half of one per cent, having pleaded not guilty, was held in bonds of $1,000 for his appearance for a hearing before the commissioner on Sept. 4. Last Saturday night federal officials, without notifying local police officials, raided the Salemano place on Pleasant street, battering down the door, and are said to have secured six quart bottles containing liquor.

Before Acting Judge M. Walter Flynn, Jr., in a special session of the Third district court on Tuesday evening, Joseph M. Rogers was presented on a speeding charge on the Boston road out of Westerly. On his plea of guilty he was fined $30 and costs of $2.80, amounting to $32.80, which he paid.

Listed as a cabin passenger on the Cunard steamship Albania, which sails from New York Saturday, the 23d, for Southampton and Cherbourg, is Mrs. Paul F. Estey, of Westerly.

Workmen in the employ of the Westerly highway department under direction of Engineer Leon began, Wednesday morning placing the "hot mix" surface on Broad street, next to the new building of the Washington Trust company. The roadbed at this particular spot has been in very bad condition for months. A temporary surface was placed on the highway, but the numerous automobiles which have to pass this point soon had holes worn in the surface and these were a menace to passing autoists. Wednesday morning the surface was smoothed off and the loose dirt swept up and carted off before the work of putting down the new surface began. On Main street a coating of hot tar was laid on the granite paving blocks over which the hot mix was spread and the entire surface rolled down with a five-ton roller. The hot mixture was carted from the sand bank at White Rock where the mixer is located. The reason given for not attending to this street earlier in the season was that the delay was caused by the necessity of waiting until East avenue had been completed. With the completion of East avenue, the Bradford road and the new road to Hope Valley, many highways are now open to travel which have been closed to motorists during the summer.

Tuesday at Watch Hill was held a meeting of the Watch Hill Improvement Society at which officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Dacia C. Newberry, Mrs. Edward A. Newall, Mrs. G. Richmond Parsons.

It was reported that the new Bay Street club fostered by the Improvement society has grown to more than 300 members and is proving a decided success.

STONINGTON

The Village Improvement Society held its annual bazaar in Wadawanuck park Wednesday afternoon. The day was not a very pleasant one it being windy and somewhat cloudy, but in spite of this a large number attended the affair and a good sum was netted. The funds will be used in continuing the work of the society in improving the appearance in and near the borough.

The sale included candy, cake, fancy articles and flowers. Tea was served. There was a fortune telling tent which attracted many. Aside from the articles on sale there was a splendid exhibition of shawls and old laces, held in the library building. There was a chute in the western section of the park which was greatly enjoyed by the children.

Members of the republican party in the town of Stonington will hold a caucus next week to appoint delegates to the various conventions of the party to be held this fall. There will be twelve delegates in all.

The meeting of the Stonington Savings and Loan association is to be held this (Thursday) evening.

The tree experts from Ohio spread a quantity of fertilizer about the roots of the trees on Water street, between Union and Harmony streets, where the new cement roadway is to be run.

Some of the cement to be used on the new roadway has arrived. Nearly all of the roadbed has been removed and cementing will begin in a few days.

FINED ON CHARGE OF WATERING MILK

On charges of watering milk which they sold for public consumption, Joseph H. Perkins and Harry Morton, Niantic farmers, were fined when presented before Justice of the Peace Marion H. Davis. The charge against Perkins was simply that of watering milk and he paid his fine of $7 and costs.

It was alleged that Morton was operating his farm in direct violation of an order by the state health authorities, and he was fined $10 and costs and given a suspended 10 day jail sentence. Morton appealed and furnished a bond of $500 for his appearance before the court of common pleas.

FISHERS ISLAND WOMAN TOLD OF SISTERS' PLIGHT

A New York paper of Wednesday said:

Two elderly women of Flushing, it was revealed yesterday, had been starving in their home, 43 Fowler street, either too proud or too weak to reveal to their neighbors their condition. When their plight was discovered several days ago nourishment was given them and they were taken to Metropolitan hospital. The younger, Mrs. Elizabeth Doty, 65, was too weak to respond to treatment and died on Sunday. Miss Mary Ann Reidy, 70, who is totally blind, is still in the hospital and it is feared she, too, may succumb.

The sisters, who had lived in the little home for nearly half a century, resorted to almost unbelievable economies to eke a bare living out of their income. The higher prices wrought about by the war lessened their ability to purchase the barest necessities and a fortnight ago their funds were exhausted.

Mrs. Mary McNaughton, a sister, who lives on Fishers Island, has been notified.

DIED FROM HEART ATTACK ON FRANKLIN SQUARE

Bernard W. Gillis, 65, of 50 Cedar street, for many years proprietor of bakeries in several sections of Norwich, was seized with a heart attack about 3.15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, on Franklin square, death following immediately.

Mr. Gillis suffered a shock a year ago last May and since that time had led a retired life. On Wednesday he visited the office of Dr. J. W. He came to Norwich about 37 years ago and on October 23, 1887 was united in marriage with Augusta Mary Siemon, the wedding taking place at St. Patrick's church, the late Rev. Peter P. ALL DAWES' REPORT BILLS ADOPTED BY REICHSRAT

Nationalists in Reichstag Opposed Agreement Making Dawes Plan Effective—Chancellor Marx and Foreign Minister Stresemann Informed the Members That if Ratification Was Denied Germany Would Lose All Concessions Made by the Inter-Allies and be Left to Her Own Resources—Ratification by the French Parliament Appears to be Certain.

Berlin, Aug. 21 (By the A. P.)—The reichsrat tonight adopted all the legislative bills dealing with the Dawes report.

REICHSTAG NATIONALISTS OPPOSING THE DAWES PLAN

Berlin, Aug. 21 (By the A. P.)—The fight in the reichstag over the international agreement for launching the Dawes reparation plan opened today when Chancellor Marx, Foreign Minister Stresemann and Minister of Finance Luther were all subjected to a fire of heckling. The attack came mostly from the nationalists at a sitting of the foreign affairs committee.

Chancellor Marx declared that unless the reichstag gave a two-thirds vote in favor of legislation to carry out the Dawes scheme it will be the government's duty to use all its constitutional means to compel that body to do so, because the government, he asserted, must exhaust all possibilities at home before it could enter into fresh negotiations with the allies.

Foreign Minister Stresemann said that in the event the reichstag did not give its approval the government could do nothing until a new reichstag was elected. In the meantime, he continued, all dates referring to the military evacuation of the Ruhr would cease to run, all the French concessions regarding the railway regime and other economic measures would lapse and when a new reichstag was elected the government would have to approach the allies with a request to convoke a new conference. Then, he said, it would be at the discretion of the allies whether they would enter into fresh negotiations.

The foreign minister especially warned the nationalists not to be too sanguine that the allies would approve a new conference in the event of the German elections resulting in a strong nationalist vote. The political sentiment among the allies, he said, should not be underestimated. He reminded the committee that there existed in Great Britain a strong movement emanated from 1,700 British industrialists who had petitioned parliament to the effect that it would be contrary to the interests of the country for England to support a large international loan which would enable German industry to reappear as a serious competitor in world markets.

It was therefore doubtful, the foreign minister contended, whether on Sept. 15 Great Britain would still be willing to accept the results of the London conference as a basis for fresh negotiations. It was also doubtful, he warned, whether France would not then insist on making the evacuation of the Ruhr conditional on commercial concessions. The allied terms, he said, might then be far less favorable and the occupation of the Ruhr prolonged indefinitely.

Finally, he reaffirmed his intention of going to Geneva himself, where he would support the league's pact for mutual assistance and advocate the league's undertaking supervision of armaments in those countries whose war preparations were limited by peace treaties.

Interpellations will begin in the chamber at 10 o'clock Friday morning, the senate waiting until the chamber has finished.

FRENCH DEPUTIES HAVE VOTED FOR THE GOVT

Paris, Aug. 21 (By the A. P.)—The chamber of deputies this evening voted for the government 320 against 209, defeating a motion to refer the London accord on the inauguration of the Dawes plan to a commission with the understanding that Premier Herriot first sign and then parliament would debate the ratification afterward on the theory that the agreement was a new treaty outside the treaty of Versailles.

RATIFICATION BY FRENCH PARLIAMENT ASSURED

Paris, Aug. 21.—(By the A. P.)—Premier Herriot tonight won assurance of a favorable vote in the chamber of deputies on the London agreement after he had read a long declaration defending his negotiations at the London conference. The danger of the senate taking hostile action appears small.

The chamber sustained the government by a vote of 320 to 209 in defeating a motion to refer the London accord on the Dawes plan to a commission, with the understanding that M. Herriot sign it first and then parliament would debate the question of ratification later, on the theory that the agreement is a new treaty outside the Versailles treaty.

It was only the first step, the premier said, and the month's work of the experts could not be expected to re-establish European equilibrium. He had brought back, however, a system substituting practical methods for penalties, taking the reparations problem out of the political and placing it in the economic field. The changes thus obtained were France's gain.

Never again, the premier proclaimed, could France have a majority vote of the reparations commission for anything resembling the Ruhr operation, so he chose "realities" instead of "illusions" and felt that the keystone of arbitration was a triumph for the French.

M. Herriot regretted that the interallied debts could not be discussed at London, although the French tried their utmost, but they were to be considered later at another conference. Security likewise must be taken up. He did, however, bring assurance that the British would not, as it was feared they might, withdraw from Cologne until Germany began fulfilling her obligations.

The advantages he presented to parliament, the premier admitted, "do not strike the imagination." But he insisted that they nevertheless were substantial. The terms obtained in London for payment in kind were better than those in the treaty of Versailles, he asserted, and he added that a commercial treaty with Germany would be negotiated at Paris in October.

COOLIDGE TO CONFER WITH NEWSPAPER MEN TODAY

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 21.—Nearing the end of his first week of vacation, President Coolidge was ready tonight to turn his attention from his program of seclusion and rest and take up some of the special business of his office.

In this connection he consented today to hold a conference tomorrow with newspapermen and expects to meet on Saturday the townsfolk at an informal reception. During his visit to date Mr. Coolidge has received but a few visitors and has confined himself almost entirely to seeking rest and recreation.

Mr. Coolidge has with him the report of the tariff commission on the sugar duty and he also is known to be studying with interest the developments in Europe arising from the settlement of the reparations problem. In his speech of acceptance, the president said that when that situation was cleared up he would consider the time appropriate for the calling of another world conference to discuss further limitations of armaments.

During his stay, the nominee has seen no political leaders nor discussed except in the most casual way the political situation and it is thought likely also that he may receive some members of the party who will be in this section soon in connection with the Maine election.

Winsted, Aug. 21.—Madame Alma Gluck, soprano soloist, has purchased the property known as the "Rafters" in New Hartford, for a summer home and will join the artists' colony on Town Hill. It is announced that Madame Gluck will retain her summer home at Fishers Island. She expects to come to Town Hill next summer, dividing her time between Town Hill and Fishers Island.

TO AUCTION DIAMONDS IN BANKRUPTCY COURT

New Haven, Aug. 21.—Diamonds valued at $10,000 will be sold at public auction in the United States bankruptcy court next Wednesday morning when the Weissman gems, long a bone of contention in the $1,500,000 Joseph Weissman bankruptcy will be disposed of to aid creditors. So far in the bankruptcy proceedings only about $80,000 in cash, as yet undistributed, has been accounted for.

The order for the sale of the jewels follows the ruling of the United States supreme court sustaining the dismissal by Judge Edwin S. Thomas in the district court of several technical indictments against Weissman.

A heavy guard will be present in the court room when the court auctioneers flash the jewels that have been resting for some time in a bank vault, and many jewelers, connoisseurs and others are expected to take part in the bidding.

First National Bank, Putnam, May Reopen

Putnam, Conn., Aug. 21.—Additional irregularities in the accounts of G. Harold Gilpatric, cashier, of the wrecked First National bank and former state treasurer, who attempted suicide August 7, are being uncovered almost daily by the national bank examiners and Receiver G. M. Coffin, who are checking up the assets and liabilities of the institution. Consequently the examination is being extended over a longer period than had been expected. Many of these apparent shortages in the bank's accounts run into the thousands of dollars and are being discovered chiefly through the filing of claims that heretofore had been unknown to the bank examiners.

Chief National Bank Examiner N. S. Bean returned to Putnam today to complete the checking up of the accounts and as soon as his report is forwarded to Washington the assessment of the bank will be turned over to the receiver.

The trustees of the Day Kimball hospital, of which Gilpatric was one and into whose hands were entrusted the securities of the hospital, announced today that after an examination of the books and accounts of the institution, it had been determined that all of the securities of the hospital were intact and that none of its funds were missing. Mr. Gilpatric is now a patient at the hospital following his attempt at suicide.

Reports from Washington quoting Chief Bank Examiner William Stearns that there was a possibility that the First National Bank of Putnam, might be reopened for business after the extent of the losses is finally determined, came as a bombshell to Putnam people today, especially to the citizens' committee of 13 that has been active during the past week in raising funds for the establishment of a new bank. The committee has raised approximately $200,000 for this purpose upon recommendation of National Bank examiners here, it was pointed out, and cannot understand the suggestion from Washington that the old bank closed after a run, will again be in a position to carry on its business. The application, for the charter for the new bank is in the hands of the comptroller of the currency and a letter announcing receipt of the document was received by the committee today. Neither the bank examiner here nor the receiver would comment on the report from Washington.

Little change was noted in Gilpatric condition today according to reports from the Day Kimball hospital.

ATTY GENERAL HEALY TO INTERVIEW GILPATRIC

Hartford, Aug. 21.—In an effort to trace a check for $20,000 made by the state treasury June 27 to the 'First National bank of Putnam, special account,' for which the state is not credited on the books found in the bank by federal examiners, Attorney General Frank E. Healy will interview former State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric at the Day Kimball hospital, Putnam, where he is recovering from a self-inflicted bullet wound in the head. He said today that he will make the visit as soon as the condition of the defaulting cashier of the Putnam bank is regarded by the attending physician as such as to permit such a conference.

In this connection, it was learned today from creditable sources that the former state treasurer had sent assurances to acquaintances in this city that the state funds with which he was charged were intact.

The attorney general took the position that the $40,000 taken to the Putnam bank from the state treasury by Gilpatric within the past three months did not constitute an illegal transaction. He explained that this money was not in the nature of a deposit in addition to a state fund of $85,000, nearly the statutory limit, already on deposit there, but that both of two checks for $20,000 each involved in the transaction were made payable to a special account, as advances on a mortgage loan by the state school fund, and had no connection with the regular state deposit.

CROWN PRINCE HUMBERT NOW IN SANTIAGO, CHILE

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 21 (By the A. P.)—Crown Prince Humbert of Italy arrived here today from Argentina for a visit to Chile and was greeted by the railway station by President Alessandri and the entire cabinet. A crowd estimated at more than 150,000 massed in the streets near the station to welcome the royal visitor.

After formal introductions, President Alessandri embraced the prince, telling him that he wished to give him an expression of the fraternal love of Chile for Italy. The president informed the prince that he, himself, was a descendant of Italians.

TRANSPORTING 3,000 BRITISH FAMILIES TO CANADA

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—The British government will pay nearly $5,000,000 to equip and transport 3,000 British families to Canada for settlement here, according to a new immigration agreement signed in London, said a cablegram received here today. The settlers are expected to repay the money over a period of 25 years. The first immigrants will arrive next month.

Dawes at Haddam, Home of Ancestors

Westbrook, Aug. 21.—Charles G. Dawes, republican candidate for vice president, returned today to the land of his ancestors in the Connecticut river valley.

The return was made possible by a visit Mr. Dawes is making while en route to Maine upon his first campaign trip at the summer home here of Walter H. Wilson, of Chicago, his friend and business associate.

The republican nominee is a descendant on his mother's side from the original Gates family from England which settled in and about Haddam on the Connecticut river in the early eighteenth century. He never had visited the first American home of his ancestors so when he arrived in New Haven today en route to Maine and Mr. Wilson suggested a visit to Haddam the general immediately indicated that he wanted by all means to take the trip.

An automobile ride of nearly 70 miles was necessary but Mr. Dawes, declaring he always desired to visit the original home of his mother's people, insisted.

Before leaving New Haven, Mr. Dawes in company with Mr. Wilson walked about the campus of Yale university, from which his great-great grandfather was graduated.

Arriving in the vicinity of Haddam, still only a small town but historic in having been the home at one time of Nathan Hale, Mr. Dawes began a search of cemeteries for the graves of his ancestors. Three neighborhood burying grounds were visited before dark and one containing the dust of the Gates family was found in the village of Moodus. Here Mr. Dawes spent some time reading the almost obliterated inscriptions on the headstones, some dating back to 1759. He was so much interested that it was late in the day when he reached the Wilson home here, although he had arrived in New Haven, only 30 miles distant, at noon.

Both at New Haven and also in New York earlier in the day where he had changed trains, General Dawes was pressed by newspapermen for an expression of views on various political issues.

"No, not at all," he replied emphatically in answer to the question, "I am not going to have any of this stage stuff in my campaign. I am going to give my views to the people on the stump and this campaign is not going to be conducted on a feather bed but in a prize ring."

Mr. Dawes will spend tomorrow quietly at the Wilson home here, overlooking Long Island sound and will leave in the evening for Augusta, Me., where on Saturday he will make his first speech since his notification ceremonies early this week at Evanston, Ill.

MISS BREHM MAY ADDRESS STATE PROHIBITIONISTS

Hartford, Aug. 21.—Miss Marie C. Brehm, of Long Beach, Calif., candidate for vice president on the national prohibition party ticket, may come to Hartford next month. Emil L. G. Hohenthal, of Manchester, the chairman of the Connecticut prohibition state central committee, said today that the Connecticut prohibitionists will ask Miss Brehm to address the state convention here next month.

Miss Brehm, who has long been active in the American prohibition movement, is the first woman to be a candidate for vice president on the ticket of a party as large as that of the national prohibitionists. The nominee of the party for president is Herman P. Faris, of Clinton, Mo.

Mr. Hohenthal indicated that there is no possibility of the party withdrawing from the national political field as it was prepared to do if either of the other parties named candidates and adopted planks on prohibition satisfactory to the national prohibition party. Dissatisfied with the attitude of the republican party, the prohibitionists looked to the democrats or La Follettes to come out in their platform for the maintenance of prohibition, but their hopes have not been realized and the party will wage a campaign on the prohibition issue.

LA FOLLETTE MANAGER TOURING NEW ENGLAND

New York, Aug. 21.—Gilbert E. Roe, eastern campaign manager for Senator La Follette, left today for a tour of New England to organize the La Follette forces. A state committee for Connecticut will be chosen at New Haven on Saturday, while similar arrangements for Rhode Island will be made at Providence, on Sunday.

Leading off with a speech labor day afternoon on the famous Boston common, Senator Wheeler of Montana, the independent vice presidential candidate, will deliver another address that night in Worcester, Mass., and during the days immediately following expects to speak at rallies in Portland, Maine; Manchester, N. H.; Providence, R. I.; New Haven, Conn.; and probably in several other cities in that section. Indications are that Vermont is the only New England state he will not invade.

Announcement as to the initial phase of Senator Wheeler's speech-making itinerary came today after he had conferred with Senator La Follette, and David K. Niles, acting head of the speakers bureau. The extent to which Mr. LaFollette will actively campaign was not discussed, arrangements of his itinerary being left until later.

Lieutenant Locatelli, the Italian aviator, was speeding along with the Americans.

NO OFFICIAL REPORT HAS REACHED WASHINGTON

Washington, Aug. 21.—Although no official word has been received early tonight at either the war or navy departments concerning the progress of the American around the world aviators, press dispatches from Halifax conveying indirect word of their arrival at Greenland were taken as confirmatory of the belief held here from the first that the fliers would make the 825 miles hop successfully.

Difficulties in communications when the fliers were stationed in Iceland almost invariably meant a delay of several hours in transmission of messages and it was assumed that similar difficulties had been encountered today explaining the absence of official advices.

Interest in the flight, however, was at its height. Officers of both services were at their desks awaiting word, while the general public besieged newspaper offices with a constant stream of inquiries.

The possibility of the fliers making slow time in the jump from Reykjavik, Iceland, to Frederiksdal, Greenland, was recognized especially in view of the heavy loads the planes were carrying and the probability of their encountering adverse weather conditions.

The planes are understood each to have taken 400 gallons of fuel on board at Reykjavik. Past performances have indicated a consumption of 25 gallons an hour, which would insure 16 hours continuous flight with a maximum radius in that time of about 1,000 miles. These figures would hold, it was declared, only if every element was at maximum efficiency—with just the right wind to furnish the greatest "lift" and with pontoons unweighted by immersion in water. A flying time of 12 hours was the aim of the aviators in their flight today.

Landed For Few Minutes.

London, Aug. 21.—An exchange telegraph despatch from Copenhagen stated that Lieutenant Nelson, one of the American army world aviators descended for a few minutes today at Skerja Fjord. For some unknown reason, after taking off Reykjavik this morning, but reascended almost immediately. It was said that Lieutenant Locatelli, the Italian aviator who is flying a plane with the Americans, was close behind when the trio passed Reykjanes.

Skerja Fjord is southwest of Reykjavik and Reykjanes is about 60 miles southwest of where the fliers took off this morning for Fredericksdal, Greenland.

ROW IN TORRINGTON OVER PAYMENT OF PERSONAL TAX

Torrington, Conn., Aug. 21.—More than 200 irate [illegible] Torrington stormed the police station at city this morning, protesting at the ignominy of having to come into court for non-payment of personal tax. They paid, unless they could show receipts or exemption permits.

The trouble started a week ago when warning was issued that unless taxes were paid arrests would follow. Notices were sent to all who were in arrears and when no attention was paid warrants were issued.

There were 300 names on the list. Some of them are no longer residents, some had already paid and some are exempt, but more than 150 were actually in arrears, and today's collections amounted to nearly $450.

Personal Tax Collector William G. Terry was not at the police station when the throng gathered, but the police had been instructed by Judge Bernard M. Higgins that any person who wanted to pay $3 in settlement could do so, and there would be no trial. There were moments of wild argument and expostulation, but no appeals were taken, and the police collected the money.

MRS. HELENA HILL WEED TO STUMP FOR LA FOLLETTE

Norwalk, Aug. 21.—Mrs. Helena Hill Weed, of Wilson Point, one of the founders of the National Woman's Party and president of the Norwalk branch of the Fairfield County League of Women Voters, yesterday, forwarded to J. Henry Roraback, chairman of the republican state central committee of Connecticut her resignation as member of the Central state committee from the 26th senatorial district.

Mrs. Weed said that her decision to resign as member of the central committee was reached after reading General Dawes' notification speech. She said that she could not give support to Coolidge and Dawes or to Hiram Bingham, picked by Mr. Roraback as candidate for governor of Connecticut, as she believed that the ejecting to office of these three would cramp the principles of the republican party.

She further announced her intention of supporting La Follette whose platform she said will restore political and economic freedom. She will take the stump for La Follette.

Casa Blanca, Morocco, Aug. 21.—William K. Vanderbilt Jr.'s yacht, the Ara, which set out for Gibraltar today, had to put back to this port because of an accident to her machinery and a heavy sea.

Mr. Vanderbilt and a party of friends sailed from New York on a scientific and pleasure cruise early this month. It was expected that the trip would require about six months during which it was planned to touch at France, Spain and many Mediterranean ports. It was understood that Mr. Vanderbilt intended to make an extended study of oceanography along the course of his cruise.

URGING EXTREME PENALTY FOR LOEB AND LEOPOLD

Chicago, Aug. 21.—(By the A. P.)—An impassioned plea that Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb hang as an expiation for their murder of Robert Franks, followed by a dispassionate discussion of mental disease as a measure turpitude in determining the penalty, today marked their hearing before Judge John R. Caverly.

The former was given by Joseph Savage, assistant state's attorney, who wound up a four hours effort with a direct demand that the student criminals be sent to the gallows.

The latter came from Walter Bachrach, junior counsel for the defense who began the final summing up on behalf of the sons of the millionaire families.

Mr. Savage pictured Judge Caverly as meeting the wishes of the community and of the world at large and as upholding the majesty of swift and sure justice by decreeing that Leopold and Loeb die by the noose.

Mr. Savage referred to the defendants as "fiends." He declared they considered themselves "super-men, above the law of God and man."

The assistant prosecutor ridiculed the testimony of defense alienists that its findings of childish phantasies in the defendans was impertinent to the intelligence of the court.

Mr. Bachrach averred calmly that analysis of the evidence would show that the defense had, in fact, established a "degree of mental disease less than insanity" and that while the state allenists might have been sincere in their conclusions that no such disease existed, they had not taken proper opportunity to examine their subjects.

SMUGGLED JEWELS FIGURE IN DEATH OF MRS. MORS

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 21.—Smuggled jewels, thousands of dollars' worth of them, figured in the death of Mrs. Theresa W. Mors, found dead here with a bullet in her brain, according to statements made tonight by federal, county and city investigators working on the case.

Kid McCoy, former pugilist, who was living with Mrs. Mors under an assumed name at the time of her violent death, is held indicted by the county grand jury for murder.

While city and county officers are at work seeking to solve the shooting of the divorced wife of Albert A. Mors, wealthy antique dealer, federal investigators, acting under instructions from New York, are attempting to trace the source and channels of entry into the United States of a fortune in precious stones said to have been in the possession of Mors or his divorced wife.

Two seizures of valuables from the Mors strong box already have been made by federal officers, the haul totalling in value $30,000.

WILLIMANTIC

As part of the general tendency toward an uplift in the industrial and business life of the city appears the announcement of Windham Silk Co. plant that operations there would be resumed on a normal weekly basis of 48 hours. This will offer a much appreciated financial relief to mill hands who have been on a 35-hour weekly schedule for some time past. The operatives at this plant, however, did not at any time feel so keenly the slump in business as those employed in several other manufacturing establishments in the city, some of which operated on shorter schedules or even closed down for periods. Business authorities in the community have given optimistic reports on the outlook for further improvements in the industrial life and it is on this expression of hope for the future that the silk company has extended its working schedule.

Fire, caused by a short circuit in the ignition system, badly damaged a Buick seven-passenger touring car, owned by Frank Pobuda, proprietor of the Stafford-Springs-Willimantic bus line, early Thursday morning. The machine was parked in the vicinity of Mr. Pobuda's residence at 319 Mansfield avenue, this city, and a still alarm was sent to Engine company No. 1 at 3.20 a. m. Acting Lieutenant Michael J. English was in charge. The machine had been left between two houses and when discovered by a neighbor it was thought that one of the buildings was afire. Six gallons of chemicals extinguished the blaze. The body of the car was almost a total wreck. The top, cushions, steering wheel and other combustible parts were destroyed and the paint on the body was scorched. The machine was hauled to the Jordan Buick garage for repairs.

Covering over 100 miles and figuring in five legal acts during the course of one day, Wednesday, Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink of Andover and his trusty old Ford were pretty well played out by evening, according to word received from the sheriff Thursday. As stated in Thursday's issue of The Bulletin, Sheriff Frink went to Hebron and Frank Holbrook, an escaped patient, was taken into custody and returned to Mansfield State Hospital and Training School. Later in the forenoon he apprehended and brought to court 17-year-old Annie Jurevatv for driving without a license. At noon the live wire official went to Gilead in the town of Hebron where he served papers on Leon A. Capen, of Manchester, in divorce proceedings brought by his wife, Mrs. Bessie D. Lee Capen. At 5 p. m., he was called to Columbia, where he arrested Sam George, a Greek restaurant owner of Hartford, who had run his machine off the side of the road near the dam of Columbia lake. About twenty feet of fence was wrecked. Taken before Justice of the Peace Hubert P. Collins, George pleaded guilty to a charge of driving a car without a license, but not guilty to another count of reckless driving. It was pointed out that the striking of the fence was caused when the wheels of the machine sank in the soft earth on one side of the road and the car was turned toward the fence. The charge of reckless driving was nolled, but on the other charge a fine of $20 and costs, amounting to $44.14, was imposed.

In the Andover town court, about 3 o'clock, Wednesday night, Sheriff Frink presented John Metcalf of South Manchester on a charge of reckless driving, second offense. Metcalf pleaded guilty and Justice of the Peace Charles A. Faulkner imposed a fine of $30 and costs, amounting to $37.56 with a suspended jail sentence of ten days. In addition to this, Justice Faulkner made Metcalf promise not to drive a car for one year, saying that if he did so and was caught the suspended jail sentence would become effective. Metcalf drove past Sheriff Frink's home at a fast rate of speed last Sunday afternoon and his number was taken down by the officer.

A Ford car owned and driven by Heywood Haskins of this city, crashed into the left side of an Essex car, owned and driven by Charles Elmer Warren, of Eagleville, Wednesday night, at the junction of Columbia avenue and West Main street. Both cars were badly smashed. The drivers had considerable difficulty in settling the responsibility for the accident. A conference held at the police station Thursday morning with an insurance adjustor present with Warren, did not settle the matter and the contention was continued until afternoon when the police were notified by both parties that the trouble had been adjusted.

The couple were manacled in this manner during the ceremony and until some time later, when they entered the honeymoon stage. A card received from the groom states that the key to the handcuffs was rusty and both he and his bride worked a long time before becoming separated.

EAST GREENWICH PRINCIPAL PREACHES AT CAMP GROUND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

I., spoke on Hope at the morning watch. The auditorium at 10.20 was occupied by a large number of interested listeners to Dr. Cleiland's study of Hosea. Hosea had a terrible experience in the desertion of a wife whom he greatly loved. Hosea's message was one of love, while that of Amos was one of stern justice.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Lyceum Theater, New London

On Friday and Saturday, August 22 and 23 George Broadhurst will present Izzy, a brand new comedy, at the Lyceum theater, New London.

Izzy is a dramatization of the famous Izzy Iskovitch stories by George Randolph Chester and Lillian Chester, which ran as a series in The Saturday Evening Post and are out in book form under the title of On the Lot and Off.

The stage version has been made by Mrs. Trimble Bradley and Mr. Broadhurst and they have selected what might almost be called a perfect cast. Harold Waldrige will play the title role and Isabelle Lowe will have the difficult part of Prudence Joy. Dodson Mitchell, Helene Lackaye, Ralph Locke, Kenneth Hunter, Ralph Belmont, Sam Jaffe, Robert Leonard, Jacob Kingsberry and Robert Middlemass, whose Sargeant Biff in Buddies will be remembered, by everybody, are also prominent in the large company, which has been staged by Mrs. Trimble Bradley.

X-Rays Useful.

X-Rays have been put to many uses, including the preserving of furs against moths, testing chocolate made by machinery, and killing a microscopic insect which attacks cigars.

Zane Gray, novelist who had been tuna fishing in Nova Scotia waters, has purchased the three-masted schooner, Mapleland, and will take it to New York, where it will be transformed into a yacht.

Palace Theater

Edna Ferber, the famous novelist, who is also co-author with George S. Kaufman, of the new comedy, Old Man Minick, which Winthrop Ames will present at the Palace theater for two days beginning Friday, with a matinee on Saturday, does not believe that writing can be taught. "Writing is the most creative of the arts," she says, "and there are no medals to definitely guide you. You have to write yourself. The singer sings others' compositions as a rule, and so on down the line. But in writing you have no tools,—you just have to plunge in on your own and—write." Old Man Minick is based upon a short story by Miss Ferber which is considered rather a classic of its form. This is not her first experience in play writing, however, for she also wrote Our Mrs. McChesney, in which Ethel Barrymore starred several seasons ago. George E. Kaufman is widely known for his dramatic successes which previously have been written in co-operation with Marc Connelly, they having to their credit such hits as Beggar on Horseback, Dulcy and Merton of the Movies.

Breed Theater

The Arisona Express, the Lincoln J. Carter motion picture, which opened a three-day engagement at the Breed theater last night, is billed as "an honest — melodrama." Let us add that the billing is as honest as the melodrama and we haven't had such a thrill since we sat in the gallery many years ago and, between peanuts, witnessed the spectacle of Deadwood Dick rescuing the heroine from the railroad trestle as eighteen Indians bit the dust. Lincoln J. Carter is justly crowned King of Melodrama and we for one, are sincerely glad that this form of entertainment has reached the screen. You will revel in it.

Mr. Carter has not overlookd any of the elements of melodrama in this picture and Tom Buckingham, who directed it, has taken complete advantage of every thrilling situation. The adventuress is there with her villainous companion and she lures the banker's son. The banker is killed and the son is accused. There is the trans-continental pursuit in which the Arizona Express figures and the heroic young mail clerk who saves the day when the train plunges from the trestle into the river. There are thrilling sequences piled on top of each other with amazing swiftness and reality and the picture will bring you back to the days you enjoyed most in the theater.

Sweeping action, good photography, powerful acting and a logical sequence of events, combine in this picture to make it one of the best things the remarkable thrill writer has done. It will please the adults and delight the younger patrons without a doubt. An excellent cast has been selected to portray this modernized thriller of the old school. It includes Pauline Starke, Evelyn Brent, Anne Cornwall, Harold Goodwin, David Butler, Francis MacDonald, Frank Beal and William Humphrey.

Review of Masterpiece Coming to the Broadway.

Probably not. But it ought to be shown in the biggest theatre in every city in the United States, for it is one of the most meritorious screen productions ever made.

Here is a film which traces the story of the Bible from creation to the time of King Solomon, when the wise king sang his song of songs to his lily of the fields. And this picture is the Bible, without ornamentation, told baldly, shocking sometimes in its very boldness. "After Six Days" is not a mere movie. It is an historical record.

"After Six Days" is a tremendous picture. It is said that it required five years in the making. Apparently tens of thousands of persons speared in it. The number of leading characters runs into the hundreds. The settings defy description. Battles, pestilence, pageants, movements of whole peoples, flit and pass on the screen like frail shadows.

Children will understand the Bible better for having seen "After Six Days." Older folk will recall their Sunday school lessons, and will turn once again to the pages of the immortal book. And everyone will find thrills, romance and entertainment in this film, which ranks high among the great pictures of the screen. If "After Six Days" has not been shown in your town, write to your theatre and ask the management to book it. He will profit thereby and so will you.

Broadway Theatre.

What was proclaimed to be the finest show of the year was presented at the Broadway theatre to a very enthusiastic audience.

Franklin & Hall opened with a very clever routine of song and dance, consisting of eccentric, soft shoe and clog dancing. The little girlie in this act put it over with a bang. She is one of the cleverest kids we've had the pleasure of seeing in a long time.

In the second skit De Alfas kept all entertained with his banjo. He came here direct from a world's tour and is called the Monarch of the banjo.

Rollie Kelly and Belle Leahy in the "Beauty Shop" offered a splendid comedy skit that was thoroughly enjoyed.

A skit, "I Hate Yer Family," presented by Henry Kelly and Marjorie Knox, walked off with the comedy honors. Song and dance were interspersed with the comedy.

If you really want to see a good novelty we advise you to see the Hoyt Brothers, the Oriental masters of balance and acrobats.

Palace Theater

Flirting With Love starting Sunday. What type of screen actress would you call Colleen Moore?

One would naturally suppose that in the motion picture business, where players are catalogued as certain types and must forever be identified as such, that Colleen Moore would have her classification. But she hasn't.

As a matter of record, Colleen Moore has never played one type of role consistently. The producers have found her a composite of many types and she has played them successfully.

In Flirting With Love which will be shown at the Palace theatre starting Sunday night she is portraying a difficult role, a part calling for both comedy and emotional interpretation.

The cast includes such stars as Conway Tearle, Winifred Bryson, Frances Raymond, John Patrick and others.

Added attractions, Mack Sennett's latest two reel comedy His First 100 Years, Aesop Fables, Sing 'Em Again and Pathe News.

Mrs. Frederick A. McLaughlin of Chicago, (Irene Vernon Castle of dancing fame) arrived in Watch Hill, Wednesday to be the guest of the family of Frank Hibbard of Cove End cottage, also summer visitors at the Hill from Chicago. Mrs. McLaughlin visited the bathing beach Wednesday and so intent were some of the beach visitors in watching the originator of the "Castle Walk" and other dances that they became unmindful of their own "steps" and walked backward into the wet ocean in their street attire. The beach and bathing attracted Mrs. McLaughlin on both Thursday morning and afternoon when it is said that she remarked on the wonderful bathing and the comparatively few to enjoy it.

The New England Navigation Company's Long Island sound steamer Plymouth of the Fall River line passed Watch Hill light Thursday morning shortly before 11 o'clock, eastbound. After passing the point at reduced speed the steamer gathered speed and was proceeding eastward off Weekapaug with as much speed as could be made, there being only a long swell to contend with. The Plymouth developed engine trouble off Clason Point, N. Y., at night while enroute to Fall River, with 650 passengers aboard, but arriving at her destination Thursday was 3 1-2 hours late.

The engine trouble was caused by the breaking of a high-pressure slide in one of the four cylinders. The run to Fall River was made on three cylinders.

Pawcatuck police authorities are on the lookout for a young girl named Sharling, who has been at Pleasant View and has now run away from her Westerly home. The search for the missing girl extended to New London and the police officers there are on the lookout for her. It is stated that the girl has not a strong mind and is easily led and it was thought that she had been picked up by an automobile driver and taken to New London. Later in the day Thursday it was claimed that a New London woman knew of the girl staying in that city Wednesday night and it is said that she advised the girl to return to Westerly. The New London police are continuing their search.

While the automobile in which she was riding stopped for her to cross West Broad street, Pawcatuck, Thursday morning about 11 o'clock, to mail a letter in the mailbox at the corner of Moss and West Broad streets, Miss Harriet Abell of Chicago was knocked down by the auto truck driven by Walter B. Dower, 34 Moss street, West Side. At the office of Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, where the injured woman was taken when it was found that Dr. Hillard was not at his home on West Broad street, it was thought that she had fractured her right leg, but later it developed that a badly sprained ankle with minor bruises and cuts were the injuries sustained.

Miss Abell, in a Ford sedan driven by her sister, Miss Lillian, also of Chicago, accompanied by another automobile driven by her brother with members of the family, was returning to Chicago from a tour of the Eastern states. The Chevrolet truck driven by Dower was proceeding at low rate of speed and turning into Moss street. The driver applied his brakes and brought his car to a stop almost at the same time that Miss Abell was struck. Patrolman Francis J. McMahon of Pawcatuck made the investigation.

Police Officer Fred T. Mitchell was called to 19 Spring street about noon Thursday to investigate an automobile accident. Clifford Schilke, the two-and-a-half-year-old son of Reynold Schilke of that number, ran in front of the Peerless touring car, 12638 R. I. of James F. McCormick, foreman of a construction job in Westerly. The child was knocked down. Dr. Helfrich was called and after making an examination declared that the child had suffered but slight injuries.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia To Overcome Trouble Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no soorness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

MYSTIC

With all the peddlers and itinerant salesmen who have circulated through the village this summer it is a wonder that the local stores have had any trade at all, most of the lines offered being in competition with those carried by Mystic merchants. Each of these house-to-house canvassers appears keenly disappointed if his or her tale is not listened to with close attention and if it does not result in a sale. The two most annoying types of canvassers are those who greet a response to the doorbell with a perfect roadside of more or less technical talk without even waiting to find out if what they have to offer is of interest to their prospective customer, and those who are also loath to state their business at the outset, but would just like to step in and have a few minutes of one's time, whereupon they reel off a long lingo about something in which one has no interest whatever. Some of the articles offered by these itinerant merchants are: various makes of brushes, imported linens and so-called linens at marvelous prices, tablecloths made from oil cloth in special designs, electric vacuum cleaners of several makes, postcards without number, needles, thread, pins, darning cotton, dress snaps, flower and vegetable seeds, coffee, flowers, fruit, vegetables victrolas, lightning rod protection, books and sets of books on religious and other subjects, poems on cards, woven felt rugs, linoleum, magazines, shoe laces, soap and soap powders, knife hardeners, an appliance to place in a pan to keep milk from burning when heating it, repair work on carpet sweepers and sewing machines, silk stockings, and so on, ad infinitum. No matter how keenly anyone may sympathize with the desire of all these people to sell their goods it is impossible for the average person to patronize them all. The life of the canvasser is a hard one but it is equally true that busy housekeepers do not have an altogether easy life and to have to stop three or four times in the midst of a busy day to respond to the appeal of canvassers for something the housewives do not want makes an added burden to the day's work.

Those who are engaged in raising vegetables for market report that the demand this year is greatly in excess of the supply, due in part to the longer period of drouth, also in some measure to the increase in the number of purchasers this year over last. One man who raises quantities of vegetables for market stated that out of 700 hills of corn 300 hills failed to mature, and many other vegetables have been similarly affected. Right after one of the recent rains, this man had a customer who said, "Now that you have had this good rain, I suppose you have lots of vegetables this morning," showing how very little idea some people have of the workings of nature. On account of the scarcity of vegetables, the prices have been high, particularly for corn, and will no doubt remain so although the later crops of corn look very promising; lima beans also are said to be doing well.

STONINGTON

A hole about three feet in diameter was stove in the power boat Peggy H. (509-J) owned by Louis Wilcox of Lord's Point, Thursday about noon. The accident occurred some distance off Fishers Island and was occasioned by running afoul of a government buoy. There were two other men in the boat besides Wilcox. They had just reached the fishing grounds and had caught one mackerel when they heard a loud thump and felt the boat quiver as she rode down on a large swell. Almost before they knew what had happened the boat had filled with water from the large hole torn in the starboard side of the craft. They had no opportunity to put on life preservers or take other precautions. All three yelled at the top of their voices and after some time were able to attract the attention of Maryann Pont who was fishing some distance away. Pont took the men on board and attempted to tow the Peggy H. which was barely visible on the surface of the water. Pont's craft was, however, too small for the task. A larger boat, the Clayton S. owned by Joseph Paul appeared at this time, and took the wrecked craft in tow. It was taken to the Kenyon Marine Railway where some time will be necessary to repair the damage.

Dr. White's statement putting the boys in a class with doll playing babes is attracting great attention.

DESCENDANTS OF AVERY FAMILY, ELECT OFFICERS

When travelling about the country, one of the sad sights is the small neglected "grave-yards" of those pioneers who subdued the land and whose descendants have moved out and far from the old home, leaving no one interested, to care for the place.

Such is not the case however with the little cemetery lying on the slopes of Avery's Pond in the town of Preston. Each year a small group of descendants of those buried there, gather for a friendly business meeting and plan for continued care. The grass is mowed and stones cleaned and often re-set in cases where the old base is failing. There is a simple little chapel where services may be held when a body has been brought from a long distance, or in case of stormy weather. Invested funds now amount to over $1500.

At the annual meeting held August 16, the following officers were elected:

President, George H. Loring, Norwich; vice president, Albert C. Woodruff, New London; secretary, Mary A. C. Avery, Norwich; treasurer, Andrew M. Avery, Ledyard; directors, A. C. Woodrüff, New London; W. A. Cook, Montville; C. W. Woodmansee, Preston; Howard Palmer, New London.

Cong. O'Sullivan's Vote

A political writer says: Congressman P. B. O'Sullivan of Derby, who owes his election two years ago to the heavy vote he received in Waterbury has already started his campaign in that city. Mr. O'Sullivan received a majority of 3,500 in Waterbury which enabled him to triumph over James P. Glynn, who rolled up a heavy vote in other sections of the Fifth Congressional District. Mr. Glynn incidentally is expected to be Congressman O'Sullivan's opponent, although it is possible that either Harris Whittemore of Naugatuck, former borough warden or Col. James S. Hurley of Waterbury may enter the race.

Congressman O'Sullivan is the son of the late Dr. Thomas J. Sullivan of Derby, Norwich Free Academy '71. He married Miss Marguerite Lawton of Middleton, a former teacher of French at Norwich Free Academy. He has a number of Norwich relatives.

FORMER HEALTH COMMISSIONER RECOMMENDS FRENCH DISCOVERY TO TAKE OFF FAT

Dr. J. J. RUDOLPH and other Physicians advise SAN-GRI-NA for FAT PEOPLE.

Up to now, reducing had been an almost unsolvable problem. It was either a question of losing a few pounds and ruin your health with dangerous drugs or remain fat. To-day a French physician of unquestionable reputation has to his credit a discovery called "SAN-GRI-NA" which quickly does away with most obstinate cases of obesity and at the same time improves the health and appearance and rejuvenates the entire system. "I consider 'SAN-GRI-NA' not only a remarkable fat reducer," says Dr. Rudolph, former health commissioner, but I advise it as a general tonic and health-builder for fat people." Physicians have used "SAN-GRI-NA" themselves, and have prescribed it to their immediate family and patients, thus proving that it is absolutely harmless and effective. "SAN-GRI-NA" is a small tablet which should be taken three times a day. It does not contain any dangerous drugs, and has been used by the discoverer in his own practice with most remarkable success. It is now recommended and sold in America, by reliable druggists only, with guarantee of satisfaction or money refunded. "SAN-GRI-NA" does not reduce fat people over night. There is no miracle about it. It is a safe, gradual loss of flesh, which varies from 4 to 6 pounds a week, leaving the patient stronger and healthier with every pound of fat lost. No flabby tissues or wrinkles will follow the use of "SAN-GRI-NA."

READ THIS LETTER

"For years I had tried everything advertised to reduce, but without success—I weighed 180 pounds, and was considered a most obstinate case of obesity. I had spent a small fortune on pills, creams, girdles, etc., but they never helped me; then I found out about 'SAN-GRI-NA.' I used it for eight weeks and lost 53 pounds; at the same time I so transformed my appearance and improved my health that to-day I look ten years younger. I consider 'SAN-GRI-NA' the one treatment every fat man and woman should know about. It is a most wonderful discovery, and I can truthfully recommend it to all fat people." (Signed) Mrs. H. A., Box 137, Station N, New York City.

NOTE—Since "SAN-GRI-NA" has been introduced in America, it has created such a sensation that imitations cannot be avoided. If you want results, make sure that YOU ASK AND GET "SAN-GRI-NA." On sale at

BREAKING OUR LAWS.

Smuggling makes its appeal to many regardless of what is to be smuggled. There are those who are as ready to smuggle immigrants as there are those anxious to smuggle liquor. It would seem as if there had been those waiting for the passage of our stricter immigration laws in order to put into operation their schemes for beating them. At least they have proceeded along such lines, and they are able to make a strong appeal to those who are legally deprived of a chance to get into this country. It is a case where the smuggler invariably gets his large compensation and if the laws of this country are not violated the wouldbe immigrants are swindled. They pay their money and take their chances.

The latest of these schemes has been unveiled at Naples where the police were appealed to by those who had turned over something like two million lire and felt aggrieved because they couldn't get their money or couldn't participate in the breaking of the laws of this country.

The plan was to make a tour by "artists" of North and South America. The artists were to get into this country by the subterfuge and then it was for them to forget their ship and remain here. The schemers were clever enough to get their money but they failed to land their human cargo in American ports, and the members of that tourist party, though engaged in a questionable project, think there should be some recovery. They are in the same position as those who buy water of bootleggers under the belief that they are getting liquor. They are sore because their part in a plan to break the law is upset, but they would probably have been highly indignant had they been actually caught at their "artistic" game. It makes a difference whose ox is gored.

The putting up of our immigration bars forces greater vigilance on the part of the country to see that the laws are respected. Perhaps the time will come when the registration of all aliens will be looked upon as an important aid to such enforcement.

TAKING CHANCES IN THE WATER.

"Those who go into the water should know how to take care of themselves," is advice which is frequently and wisely offered. It is also urged that everyone should learn to swim that each may be able to provide a certain amount of personal protection. But it doesn't hold good that because a person can swim there is no danger. Strong swimmers have been drowned or lost their lives through over exertion or by taking chances which were unwarranted.

The latest of these to come to attention is the case of a young American woman, Florence Leopold, who was visiting in France. She was a particularly capable swimmer. She was not daunted by the surf which storms kicked up and she was unwilling to abide by the order of the authorities forbidding all swimming because of the dangerous conditions created by the sea. She had confidence in her skill and so did others. Nothing was thought of her disregard for the protective measure taken by the authorities. She figured that she could take care of herself and was unwilling to be deprived of her swim. She feared nothing, though there was much to fear.

She got safely beyond the breakers and was having a delightful time swimming until she attempted to regain the shore. That called for a greater effort than she was able to make. She was a powerful swimmer but that did not permit her to modify the force of the waves or to overcome the power of the undertow. Getting out into deep water was not so difficult. Getting back was an impossibility. She marshalled her resources well and endeavored to find a more sheltered spot but she was unable to effect a landing and was battered and crushed as she was thrown upon the shore some miles away where her body was found.

Had she not been a swimmer she would probably have given heed. Had she not been so skillful a swimmer she would doubtless have given greater consideration to safety. There is strong reason for knowing how to swim and how to take care of one's self in the water but there's no more excuse for taking big chances in the water, whether a swimmer or not, than there is on land.

THE BUST OF WASHINGTON.

It was with a bit of surprise that the report was read to the effect that a bust of Washington, which was presented to the Congressional library in Washington by France nearly a century ago, had recently been discovered among the treasures of a collector who had bought it for $10,000. The story is not an unusual one, and yet it is a bit strange that those entrusted with such a gift should have permitted it to pass out of the government's possession in view of the fact, that it is in such good condition and able to command such a high price.

As long as the Congressional library was intact there was no danger of the bust being lost. It happened, however, that the bust went through the fire in the Congressional library in 1851, and either by inference or oversight it was believed that the bust was destroyed. Possibly there was no actual check up regarding such possessions and that what was in the ruins was left to relic hunters and the like. As a chunk of marble it was held by a family, later turned over to a servant and subsequently was picked up by a junkdealer for $25.

France replaced it with a bronze replica, but there came a time when someone showed interest enough to clean up the blackened marble and out of it came the bust of Washington which had been done by Pierre Jean David in 1832, the value of which was appreciated by those posted in sculpture. Without being identified as government property, or perhaps from the manner in which it was obtained it was considered that all claim to it had been relinquished, it was shifted about with apparently no consideration of what it was or what it was worth. Years have of course added value to the work of this master.

The discovery of the bust makes it evident, however, that there was not the careful combing of the ruins that one would expect in view of the treasures known to have been in the library, or else there was a failure to properly appraise the blackened piece of marble which others restored. Gems are often found in unexpected places, but this seems to have been a case of unusual laxity on the part of someone, characteristic of many government losses.

COSTELLO LIPPITT.

By the death of Costello Lippitt, Norwich has lost another of its substantial citizens, and one who has played a conspicuous part in its activities for more than half a century. He was a leader in banking circles, and as dean of the local banking fraternity his long period of service with the Norwich Savings Society, where he was to be found at his desk each day almost to the end, was a constant and valuable contribution to the people of the community as well as to the success and standing of the institution.

As a gentleman of high standing, and whose judgment was valued, he was called to no little public service and there was no trust which was too small or too large, and none but what was conscientiously administered. While his banking career stands out most prominently before the community, and was given his devoted attention, he nevertheless found time to serve the city as its chief executive, was an ardent and active worker in church circles, prominent in local and state Masonic affairs and not only did he exert a strong influence in bringing the state hospital to Norwich but has since given it the benefit of his good judgment during its long period of expansion.

He was a gentleman of the old school, a man of pleasing address, a citizen whose life cannot fail to have made a lasting impress for good. Strong adherence to principle, a clear recognition of duty and faithfulness to every trust were conspicuous traits throughout his long life of over four score years. Norwich mourns his passing, but Norwich does not overlook the influence which such a life has shed or the example that is so worthy of emulation.

COUZENS' SECOND THOUGHT.

Indications are that Senator Couzens has seen a light. Whether it is due to a belief that he has weakened his chances for getting back to congress, or whether he has actually been impressed by the error of his recent statements, his retreat from his independence regardless of party must be regarded as a display of better judgment.

When Senator Couzens declared that he was not to be bound by party, that he would be his own guide and do as he believed he should he gave Michigan reason for feeling that he was not the man wanted to represent that state in the upper house of congress. This feeling was possible because of the manner in which he had been disposed to play with the trouble makers and those who were bent not only upon party embarrassment but cared not what the effect that was having upon the country.

Now he has come to realize that he is seeking support from the republican party, that he is a republican and while he will have a chance to participate in the formulation of the party's policies it is party and not individual action that must get consideration. His right about face upon this point and his declaration that he will support Coolidge whether he gets the nomination or not must strengthen him among the people, of Michigan. It changes the attitude that was bound to result from his previous declaration, and the only thing that could be desired in addition to his statement is that he should state that after he has participated in the party deliberations that he would be bound by the sentiment of the majority, even though by chance he should happen to be in the minority. That is clearly his duty as a party member, and it is a party man that he is running, not as an independent.

QUESTION OF COURAGE

Wrapped in a red afghan and lying on the chaise longue in her room was Myra. The shades were all closely drawn and in spite of the warmth of the day a fire was burning in the grate. On the inlaid Chinese tabouret beside her was a tastily arranged luncheon tray, untouched.

"What an interesting-looking invalid you make," laughed Florence, unpinning her corsage of sweet peas from her new spring suit and adding it to the tray. "Have you been in a railroad wreck, or have you resumed your boxing lessons?"

Myra raised herself gingerly and removed the bandage from her swollen mouth. "Neither, old dear," she lisped thickly, "this battered-up form is all that remains after a session with the dentist yesterday."

"Did you finally get there? Brava! I thought Frank would have to call out the militia to accomplish it."

"Not at all, no militia," grinned Myra, "but, of course, Frank was responsible. Monday night the Westons called, and we happened to discuss moral courage, Mrs. Weston and I affirmed that woman is more courageous than man. Mr. Weston and Frank disagreed.

"Frank related to them how I had made at least a dozen appointments with Dr. Conway to have these teeth extracted and how for over a year and a half, whenever the day arrived, I weakened and canceled my appointments. Frank has often gravely assured me that if I wait long enough the teeth might possibly fall out of their own accord, as a natural result of old age. But he was more gallant that night. 'Myra is really very brave,' he told the Westons. 'That is aside from this dentist business. But I propose to have her prove her nerve, Mr. Weston, by making another and final appointment with her dentist and for next Wednesday. I will appoint myself as a committee of one to escort her and witness her exhibition of fearlessness.'

"I was not going to let Frank bluff me and get away with it, so I made up my mind really to have the teeth extracted on Wednesday.

"I spent two restless nights. On Wednesday morning I wondered whether it was worth while to prove myself to the boys. Frank laughed heartily at my lack of enthusiasm and phoned Miss Ryan at the office that he would not be down until afternoon, as he had to assist and strengthen me for the ordeal. That made me angry.

"All the while I was getting ready he stood around urging me not to worry. 'You know the first two are the worst, honey.' I felt like spanking him. He called a cab, and cautioned the chauffeur to drive carefully. 'My wife,' he explained, 'is on her way to the dentist. If you have any kind of accident on the way it will give her an excuse to cancel her appointment. Safely first.'

"Frank kept up his nonsense in the waiting room, and even when Dr. Conway was injecting the anaesthetic boasted to him of my supposed courage.

"'Buck up, my dear,' he cheered, 'I am right here to take care of you.'

"When I stepped into the chair he whispered into my ear, 'If poy show the white feather, horses will never drag the truth from me. I'll never give you away to the Westons.'

"As Dr. Conway applied the forceps on the second tooth there was a little difficulty, and I let out a hearty yell. Immediately there was a crash and a groan behind my chair. Looking around, we discovered that Frank my cheer-leader, had fainted quite away.

"The nurse revived him and I brought him home in a cab. With difficulty I persuaded him this morning to go to the office for a while, at least. I knew if I could get him down there he probably would stay all day.

"Honest, Florence, I need the rest, not so much from the dentist's activities, but from Frank's infirmities. He protests that lack of courage was not what made him faint, but he agreed that perhaps he had been working too hard lately. He is a nice Frank, but he would never make a surgeon."—Exchange.

Tesla Changed Life Plans Many Times

Nikola Tesla had great difficulty in finding his place in the world. His father was a minister in Smiljau, Servia, when the boy was born and wanted the lad to follow his footsteps, but after attending the public school at Gospich and then completing a course at the Higher Realschule, at Carlstadt, Nikola, at 16, devoted himself to experimenting in electricity and magnetism. Overstudy broke down his health, but he recovered and continued his tasks. Cholera nearly carried him off.

Decided to be an instructor of mathematics and physics he studied at the Polytechnic School, at Gratz, but while in his second year, he realized that he would not enjoy being a teacher. Then he prepared to be an engineer completed the course in engineering and took up the study of languages at Prague and Budapesth that he might be fully equipped in his latest chosen profession.

Next he was assistant in the government engineering department, then joined M. Puscas, who had introduced the telephone into Hungary, but not being able to use his ideas there he became engineer for a large electric lighting concern in Paris. Back in Gratz he had invented the "rotating magnetic field" motor, and he tried to introduce it, but Paris was indifferent, so, at 27, he started for America, which he had been told, was the land for inventors.

Securing work with Edison at Menlo Park, N. J., he was assistant engineer for a short time, but found that he could not carry out his ideas, and, at 29, left to join a company formed to place his electric arc-light system on the market. The company got into financial trouble and he faced absolute want for nearly a year until another could be organized. He experimented in small laboratories in New York and invented wireless light. His inventions won recognition throughout the world, and financial success followed.

Later he produced the Tesla tube and perfected methods for wireless telephony. During the last 20 years he has devoted his efforts to a plant at Niagara Falls for transmission of power without wires. And he has just recently announced that he can send power by wireless half way around the earth.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. William Cuno, whose appointment as German ambassador to the United States is generally expected in diplomatic circles, is a former chancellor of the German republic. He is still young in years and his rise to prominence is of comparatively recent date. Previous to the war he was almost unknown. Today he is not only prominent politically but is also one of the leading figures in the industrial world. In 1918 he succeeded Herr Ballin as general manager of the Hamburg American Lines, and in this capacity he has become widely known both inside and outside of Germany. Dr. Cuno was born in Thuringia, in 1876, the son of a privy councillor in the German ministry. He was educated in the universities of Berlin and Heidelberg, specializing in law and political science. After graduation he devoted a number of years to the practice of law in Berlin. With the overthrow of the empire his services were enlisted by the new government in the capacity of a financial adviser and in 1922 he became chancellor.

By DAVID CORY.

Saved From the Thunder Bird

In the last story we left off just where the King of the Big Mountain was running up the great stairway to rescue Little Jack Rabbit from the great Thunder Bird.

And I'm not going to stop another minute but tell you right away that as soon as this great bird saw the King of the Big Mountain and all his subjects with a flap of his great he pushed the poor little rabbit behind him and said:

"I am the terrible Thunder Bird,
Let no one come near me.
Or I'll tear the beard from off his chin,
Or pull out his little goatee.
I'll peck out his eyes with my cruel beek,
And blind him for evermore.
So do not delay but go away.
Beware of my deadly claw!"

"I will not!" answered the little King of the Big Mountain, and drawing his bow he sent an arrow straight at the wicked bird. But would you believe it, that arrow broke to smithereens on the great bird's feathers.

"My feathers are as good as a coat of mail," he laughed.

At that the King of the Big Mountain didn't know what to do. Of a sudden, one of the three little men took a red apple out of his bag. As soon as the Thunder Bird saw that beautiful apple, he leaned over and took it up in his bill, when, quick as a wink, another little man, the one who had the big ax, you remember, cut off his head. Away it rolled down the side of the mountain and crashed into a great oak tree.

"How can I ever repay you?" asked the frightened little rabbit.

"Don't mention it," replied the King, leaning down and plucking a blue flower from a crevice in a rock. "Take this little flower. 'Tis a forget-me-not. Whenever you look at it, remember the little King of the Big Mountain," and he disappeared.

At once the brave little bunny boy pulled his cap firmly over his head and hopped away. After a while he came to a great stone cross, at the foot of which bubbled a tiny spring. How pure and sparkling was the water, and as he was thirsty he leaned over and drank until he was thirsty no more. When he looked up there stood an old man. His hair was white and his face had many wrinkles, but his eyes were kind and his voice soft as he spoke:

"You have been a good bunny. Never have you harmed any one. Follow this path down the mountain. Be good and you need fear no one!" Then he turned away and Little Jack Rabbit went down the mountainside with a happy feeling in his heart.

TO INCREASE STONY BROOK WATER CAPACITY BY 100,000,000 GALLONS

Plans and specifications have been prepared by the board of water commissioners whereby the shortage capacity of Stony Brook reservoir will be increased 100,000,000 gallons of water. The increase in the reservoir's storage capacity is to be made by the raising of the dam five feet.

According to the plans the present bridge over the spillway is to be removed. That part of the pier under the bridge is to be taken down to a level at least six inches below the present top of the spillway so as to allow the spillway to be extended continuously. A new bridge is to be built according to the plans and specifications for the improvement.

The additional storage capacity of 100,000,000 gallons is about one month's supply and will give the city approximately the same storage capacity at Stony Brook as at Fairview reservoir. It is probable that the cost of the improvement will be in the neighborhood of $50,000.

At the last council meeting Mayor Milo R. Waters called attention to the fact that the increased consumption of water in Norwich is about 10 per cent. each year or about 300,000 gallons a day. The mayor at that time said steps should be taken at once to increase the area of the water sheds or provide new ones as a dry spring followed by a dry summer such as has just been experienced would lead to a water famine.

HENRY R. TAFT NEW LONDON COUNTY CHAIRMAN

At the 41st annual convention of the Connecticut State Firemen's association Thursday in New Haven, Henry R. Taft, deputy chief of the Norwich fire department, was elected New London county chairman. The association officers elected for the ensuing year follows: President, G. Hineman, Meriden; vice president, George Rose, Middletown; secretary, D. W. Harford, Norwalk; treasurer, Michael T. Souney, New Britain.

The address of the afternoon was given by former Vice President Michael J. Whalen, of Hamden, in support of the resolution for the "right of way" for fire apparatus. He said that there were 168 towns and cities in the state, many of which had totally different ideas as to what rights of fire companies going to fires ought to be. He made a plea for some standardized law throughout the state. The following resolution bearing on this subject was adopted and referred to the committee on legislation:

"Resolved, that the State Firemen's association endorse the enactment of a law by the next assembly of 1925, giving the right of way on the highways of the state when responding to fire alarms."

The convention will be continued today (Friday) with the annual parade the chief feature. It is expected that 4,000 men will be in line.

PNEUMONIA CASES NOT QUARANTINED IN STATE

The city of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, has recently taken an advance step for the prevention of pneumonia by quarantining all cases of the disease. Since April 1st of this year, all forms of the disease are required to be reported and all cases quarantined.

In Connecticut cases of pneumonia are not quarantined at present. Only lobar pneumonia is required to be reported. The action in Pittsburgh is an innovation that will be watched with interest in all sections of the country.

WHITE LEGHORNS TAKE LEAD IN STORRS CONTEST

At the close of the 42nd week of the egg laying contest at Storrs a pen of White Leghorns owned by Andrew L. Ohr from Wallingford, Conn., was an easy first with a production of 53 eggs. A pen of the same breed owned by Small's Poultry Farm from Mt. Carmel, Conn., Hilltop Farm's White Leghorns from Suffield, Conn., and a pen of White Leghorns owned by St. John's Poultry Farm from Oronogo, Mo., were all tied for second place with a production of 52 eggs. F. M. Johnson's White Leghorns from Waldoboro, Me., were third with a yield of 51 eggs. A pen of White Rocks owned by H. F. Barber of Dover, Mass., and George B. Ferris' White Leghorns from Grand Rapids, Mich., were both tied for fourth place with a score of 49 eggs each. The total production for all pens in the contest for the week was 3361 or a yield of 45 per cent. This is a drop of 111 eggs as compared with last week's production but is 45 eggs more than for the same period last year.

Now is the time to prepare your poultry for the agricultural fairs and poultry shows. The question of each one taking part in the fairs by exhibiting is worth while considering. Not only does it pay to participate but the exhibits show to the public the difference between a first class article and those that are not quite so good. Exhibits of all kinds encourage and develop a better and more highly standardized grade of animals and products. Many of the fairs and poultry shows recognize the value of the standard, utility and meat classes and substantial prizes are awarded for birds of merit in all these classes. There are also prizes for exhibits of eggs. A standard egg exhibit is a plate of one dozen. Uniformity of shape, color and size, weight, texture of shell, and the condition of the egg in reference to its freshness, are the main points to be considered in selecting a dozen show eggs.

STRANGE GROUP OF SOUNDS MIGHT COME FROM MARS

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 21.—Mysterious signals picked up at Point Grey wireless station here during the last week culminated today in a strange group of sounds, causing wireless experts here to wonder if the planet Mars is trying to establish communication with the earth.

Four distinct groups of four dashes each came through the ether today, the operators stated. The signals were in no known code, starting on a low note and ending with a "zipp," and neither a spark nor a continuous wave is responsible for the sounds.

C. W. Mellish and W. T. Burford, operators of long experience, state that they have never previously encountered such messages. The puzzling activity cuts in on their regular messages and every known method of getting rid of the disturbance was tried without success.

Good dispositions succumb. Irritability and snappy retort take the place of happiness and amiability. COL. BOSWORTH SETS NEW WORLD'S MARK BUT DOES NOT PLACE BETTER THAN THIRD

North Randall, Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 21—(By the A. P.)—After setting a new world's record in the first heat Col. Bosworth, Belwin-Mary Worthy colt owned by Thomas D. Taggart, Jr., French Lick, Ind., and driven by Lon McDonald, the veteran Indianapolis reinsman, was unable to finish better than third in the following three heats and Mr. McElwyn, W. H. L. McCourtie's Guy Axworthy-Widow Maggie colt, driven by Ben White, Lexington, Ky., won the championship stallion stake, one of three classics decided here today.

The event, with a value of $9,705, of which $5,062, went to Mr. McCourtie of Dallas, was the first rich stake of the year on the grand circuit for three year old trotters.

Etta Druien won the Emery purse $3,000 for 2:15 class trotters and the Century, with a similar purse for 2:09 trotters went to Tilly Brooke. Both are from the stables of Thomas W. Murphy, Syracuse, and are the only winners he has driven at this meeting both having won Friday also.

Bosworth clipped two-fifths of a second off the world's record established in Atlanta, in 1917 by Miss Bertha Dillon, when he trotted the mile in 2:02 4-5.

After breaking at the first quarter pole, Mr. McElwyn trotted the last three quarters in 1:30 3-5 which is 3-5 of a second faster than Colonel Bosworth's time for this distance. Guy Richard was the pace maker until well into the stretch, stepping the first quarter in 31 3-5. The half in 1:02 3-5, and three quarters in 2:02 4-5. He won the second heat when Colonel Bosworth and Mr. McElwain went into a break.

Mr. McElwyn stayed on on a trot in the third heat and outbrushing with Guy Richard in the stretch won by a neck, forcing the event into a fourth heat. Although he went into two breaks in the final heat he won handily with Guy Richard again second. Colonel Bosworth also made a break in this mile trying to overtake Guy Richard on the stretch turn.

Favorites won all of the events today and paid the shortest prices of the year.

BEAUTIFUL LOVING CUP TO WINNER OF SERIES

On exhibition in the window of the Geo. P. Madden Co., on Franklin Square is a beautiful alleged silver and gold lined loving cup which is to be awarded to the winner of the Married Men-Single Men series of the East Side. The cup stands 18 inches high and is the gift, as well as the handiwork of William Shanley, one of the East Side's most prominent sportsmen. The cup shows no small amount of labor put on it by Mr. Shanley and it is a work of art.

BROWNS DIVIDE HONORS WITH THE ATHLETICS

Philadelphia, Aug. 21.—After slugging the offerings of four Philadelphia hurlers in the first game and taking an easy 11 to 2 victory, the St. Louis Americans dropped a ninth-inning rally that accounted for three runs. A double by McMullin, batting for Robertson in the ninth inning of the second fray, followed by a single, a triple by Gerber and an out accounted for the three run rally. The score:

The Trumbull Stars, requiring every remaining game on its schedule to repose on the winning side of the ledger, will be opposed by a stubborn team, which may shatter all championship hopes for this team.

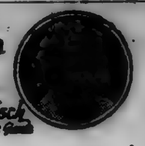
How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch



The score is 2 to 1 in favor of the team in the field. The bases are full and none are out.

Where should the infield play?

As the team in the field has a one run lead, it should play to hold this advantage. With the bases full, a single would very likely score two runs, so to prevent the batter from hitting through the infield, the infield should play them way back. This puts the man in a position to try for a double and helps him to prevent the tying run from crossing the plate.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 21—Young Stribling, who seeks the world's light heavyweight title, pitched his training camp today at Tom Luther's place just a mile from the training abode of the champion, Mike McTigue. Stribling, who is preparing for combat with Paul Berlenbach in New York next Wednesday, found McTigue waiting to greet him.

Mike wanted to gossip but Stribling donned soft shoes and shirt and went on the road at a brisk run. Stribling was gone about 40 minutes and did five miles and a half.

(Special to The Bulletin)

Newport, R. I., August 21.—The Submarine Base lost its fifth game of the season here this afternoon and with this defeat went the Eastern Service championship. The Newport Training Station was the team to make the local gobs bow to them in the second game of the scheduled three game series between these teams. The Sub Base was never in it and suffered one of its most disastrous defeats of the entire season to date. The final tally was 14 to 5 with the local gobs on the short end.

With the Eastern Service championship facing the ultimate outcome of this game, both teams worked hard and diligently to win. The playing of the home team was by far superior to that of the visitors and after the first inning of play was over there was no question as to what team would return the victor. The third game of this series which was to be played at New London August 23, will not be played, for the Newport victory gave them the second and deciding contest of the series which will make a third game unnecessary.

Scoring eleven runs in the first innings, the local followers of the Torpedo nine broke into a cheer that could be heard all over the lot. There was plenty of rivalry for the game was an important one. The fluttering of flags or the flinging of pennants to the breeze was the only thing that was missing to make the day all the more complete for the locals. The rivalry between the two clubs resembled the Yale-Harvard games, only the color was Navy on both sides with an occasional white uniform amongst the blue. There was wagering aplenty in the grand stand and the side lines.

The first disappointment to meet the Sub Base rooters—and there were plenty of them too—was the announcement that Metzka would start the game. If Metzka's record in previous games had been convincing it was not so this balmy afternoon, and it was not long before he was forced to take the showers, although against his will. He allowed seven runs in one and one-third innings and then Harrell took up the mound duty. With men perched on third base, three successful squeeze plays were executed and three more runs came across the platter.

While Stunts's mates were giving him the best of support, and helping him on the offensive, Stunts twirled a good game. He was strong with men on the base paths and only let up in the later part of the contest when he saw the game safely tucked away and with it the Eastern Service championship.

Harrell was so well liked by the local hitters that Smith lined out a homer in the sixth. He was the first man to face Harrell in this frame, and is also proved to be the longest hit of the game. Mangold, Orsi, Harrell and Moore each had two hits for the visiting gobs.

The score by innings:

Sub Base ..... 1 0 0 0 1 2 1 0 0—5
Newport T. S. .. 4 7 1 0 0 1 1 0 x—14

KAPLAN WINS LISTLESS BOUT FROM MORAN

New Haven, Aug. 21.—Louis Kid Kaplan, of Meriden, was awarded the referee's decision over Pal Moran, of New Orleans, here tonight at the end of the ninth round.

Referee McAuliffe stopped the bout at that time, claiming that Moran was not trying, after having warned him several times that he would stop the fight if Moran didn't show some improvement in his work.

It was learned after the bout that Moran claimed an injury to his left hand and at a late hour tonight an x-ray was being taken of his hand. The state boxing commission ruled that Moran not be paid his purse and inflicted an immediate suspension, pending a hearing on Moran.

It was a one-sided bout from the tap of the bell in the first round to the end of the ninth when the referee, who had given warning to the New Orleans man several times, stopped the bout and declared Kaplan a winner. From a standpoint, Kaplan won in every round. Moran landed but few punches and these were of little consequences. Kaplan landed many times and in the second round cut Moran's eye.

In the semi-final bout Tracy Ferguson of Wallingford, was given the decision over Vic Borg, of Pittsburgh. George Day, of New Haven was given the decision over Jimmy Hutchison of New York.

THE BEAUTY OF THE FARM

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

I suppose some of you will think I am getting silly in my old age if I venture to talk a bit about the beauty of the farm. You will sniff with undisguised disgust at the idea of an old he-farmer approving any such school-ma'amish sentimentalism.

Well, that's all right: sniff, if you want to! It's your high prerogative, as an American sovereign, to sniff your sniffiest at anything you disapprove. You'll find the market reports in their usual place and, I presume, the regular daily stories of thievery and rumanism and murder and plug-uglyism. Turn right to them and drop this. The more you read of it the madder you'll get,—and that's something I should sincerely deplore.

But, after you've snorted your way to what in your lofty opinion is more interestin', there'll still remain, I suspect, a small number of more indulgent readers, who, either from curiosity or real sympathy, will be willing to consider farm life from a new angle of vision.

Why is a farmer?. If you should ask that question of Neighbor Sherman, he'd probably respond, "Because he can't help himself." If you should ask it of Neighbor Waterhouse, he'd snort out, "Because he's a damphool." If you should ask it of Neighbor Koontz, he'd perhaps answer, "Because he never had no chance to be nothin' else." If you should ask of Jed Prouty, who calls himself a farmer but really is just an easy-going loafer, he'd answer, "Because it gives me time to go huntin' and fishin'."

I'm inclined to admit, after many years association with real dirt farmers,—the kind the politicians talk about but evidently never run up against,—that very few would admit that they were farmers from love of farming.

Yet there are some such, for all that. A small minority, perhaps, but very far from being a contemptible one.

Moreover, as human nature sweetens and human sympathies widen and human intelligence increases, that present minority is going to grow. Sometimes it is going to possess the earth and the fullness thereof. In the meantime it has no call to be ashamed of itself or to apologize for its present numerical unimportance. It is the heir of the ages and can well afford to wait the time when its ownership will be conceded,—and envied.

I've lately been reading quite a few extracts from letters written home by "Fresh Air" children of the city slums vacationing in the country. These little people are not old enough to be either sophisticated or world-wearied. They are, generally, rather outspoken and fairly natural creatures. Of course, like all children, they're fond of play and of good things to eat. Some of them, doubtless, are greedy little pigs, — a state which they'll change only to be greedy big hogs when they grow up. But once in a while their letters indicate a rather unobtrusive comprehension of the strange beauty with which they find themselves surrounded. One small urchin tells delightedly of the early apples he's permitted to pick up in the orchard. He's even climbed some of the apple-trees. "But there's a row of big trees out in front of our house so tall that they hit the clouds, sometimes."—Consider those last six words a minute. They strongly suggest that there's something in that lad's soul besides a hankering after half-ripe apples.

Another one writes: "There a brook out back of the barn and it ain't never turned off but keeps on runnin' all day and all night." One smiles at the city-bred boy's idea that all running water must be turned off or on by a faucet, but Tennyson's famous brook which "goes on forever" is no more poetry-stirring than this wonderful trickle which "keeps on runnin' all day and all night" from some far-away and mysterious but faucetless source.

"Improved highways are all right, but far the most beautiful road is a well-beaten cowpath winding here and there among tall trees and ambitious saplings, with buttercups and johnny-jump-ups nodding "howdy-do" as one walks through their heaven of filtered sunbeams. Geewhiz!"

Cement and macadam roads make for utility and convenience in transportation. There's a stretch I know of running as straight as a ruled line for several miles. One can see it converging almost to a point in the extreme distance. And it certainly has a tendency to make one "step on the gas" as he swings into it and sees its apparently interminable length stretching ahead. But, practical old farmer that I am, I candidly admit it never gives me the sense of utter peace and salving tranquility which comes to me when I "go after the cows" and come to a trail they've made throught overhanging woods, around rocks, over areas carpeted with pine-needles, beside an old stone wall that once was a fence, and so on down through palm-like "brakes" to the water-hole.

A little way from me used to stand a grand old maple. God had been growing it for two hundred years or so, and had made of it a towering giant imposing in its massive sturdiness, yet exquisitely beautiful to the last tip of its delicately patterned leaves. It stood by the roadside and, so far as I could see, was in nobody's way and doing no one any injury. But the new purchaser of the land must have felt differently, for he has cut it down. With what object or for what purpose I can't understand, for its huge top still lies, untrimmed and eye-blistering, over in his meadow. He clearly doesn't want it for timber or fuel. And its fall has prevented the use of quite a sizable bit of otherwise good meadow. He is a rich man and has been "cleaning up" the old place, raking brush, making "vistas," etc. Perhaps the venerable forest monarch interfered with some "vista" he desired. Or perhaps he looked upon it simply as overgrown brush, to be eliminated with the alders and choke-cherries which also grew by the roadside.

Another recent purchaser in the neighborhood, also with "money to burn," has been for a year transferring all sorts of wild growths from her swamps and hills and resetting them, higgledy-piggledy fashion, along her roadside, to stimulate if possible the wildness of their original habitat.

Thus one destroys and another transplants. And I can imagine the good God looking at both with some wonder because neither can see that He is a finer artist and a wiser landscaper than either.

Most of us farmers spend, and must spend, the greater part of our time and thoughts on dirt-grubbing. We must eat to live; we must get money to pay the taxes, and to keep up with the conventions of grossly extravagant and usually inefficient human organization in both government and society. It takes some of us all our time and all of us most of our time to meet these demands.—Occasionally we can't meet them, even doing our best and working our hardest. Then its "over the hill to the poorhouse" for us.—

But there are intervals which come or can be made to come when, if we will, we can lift our noses off the grindstone of a sordid struggle for mere existence, and take fleeting glances at the hills whence might come strength if we were receptive enough to absorb it.

The older I get the keener grows my appreciation of the sheer beauty of the world which surrounds me. Moreover, I'm just self-conceited enough to regard that capacity for seeing and enjoying beauty as a mark of superiority over the beasts, at least.

In front of me, as I write, is an area of waste land. It used to be a meadow yielding large crops of hay. But the high wages of labor have compelled the owner to abandon it and it is growing up to alders and weeds. Just at present it is a jungle of green bushes, waving sweet-flag, white and purple boneset, and yellow golden rod. My yellow tom cat is hunting through it. He is after meadow mice to eat. He has no appreciation, no comprehension, no thought, even, of the gorgeous color scheme which nature is flaunting over his head and before his eyes.

Now, I likewise like fresh meat. But I can also get an equally real and perhaps somewhat higher pleasure from the contemplation of that glowing carpet of color with which the Great Artist has covered the old meadow.

There are somethings in regard to which I admit inferiority to cats and dogs. I can neither see as keenly nor smell as acutely nor run as fast nor take care of babies as efficiently. But I can and do appreciate the flowered glory of that meadow in a way and to a degree of which no animal seems capable. It's one thing where I take higher rank. And I can't see why I should be ashamed of it; why I shouldn't be proud of it; why I shouldn't encourage and foster it.

Frankly, I don't think I should take to a farmer who, every time he passed a buttercup, should roll his eyes and wiggle his backbone and murmur, "Oh, how supremely lovely!" I candidly admit that I should admire him more if he'd pull up the weed.—For it is a weed in his crops.

But, the other day, an old farmer eagerly offered to take what was for him a long and tiring walk, to show me what he considered a uniquely beautiful tree, of such symmetry and grace of form that he had watched over and protected it for fifty years.

And I know another who doesn't feel quite satisfied with his day's work unless he has arranged it so that, at least once, it will bring him to an opening through which he can look up at the hoary crown of old Douglas Knob, waving green welcome to him in the summer-time or shining resplendent in ermine-like robes of snow during the winter.

These men can and do raise potatoes and corn and get our manure when doing that becomes their duty. But they don't glue their eyes to a dung-fork or a potato-hill. "There are hills beyond Pentland and seas beyond Forth." There are other things in life besides work, besides money-getting, besides sport, besides duty, even. There is beauty everywhere, and the Great Artificer of the universe didn't create it for no purpose nor for a mere whim nor by accident.

Nor is it necessary to go to California or Florida to find it. It blooms and bourgeons on every hill and along every intervale of every farm. It isn't to be sought only in smooth-shaven lawns or cunningly ordered parterres or in sunken gardens of the rich. It spreads in wild profusion to the sight of every man who has eyes wherewith to see it.

It is furnished "free gratis" and in incomparable profusion to every bent backed old farmer of us all,—if only we'll admit it and welcome it.

Why spend all our lives muck-raking when we have but to lift them towards the west where glow the radiant glories of the Delectable Mountains?

THE FARMER.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside.

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., set at work some years ago to find a real internal Pile remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood's, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

After all, there is something in a community effort to have the home town look well. C. B. Gelding, who hails from Iowa, said while in Danielson Thursday morning that this place is one of the most attractive of its size that he has seen in several weeks' tour of New England. He was delighted with the well kept homes, the pretty park and the neat manner in which the business section is kept up. Mr. Gelding is a westerner who never saw New England until this summer. He found all of this section particularly delightful and discovered much use for his camera in getting views of Danielson.

In what Mr. Gelding said Thursday some will find a reward for the activities which they have maintained and the energy they have expended, possibly years ago, to beautify this community. What has been done is splendid, but Danielson has other opportunities to add to its attractiveness and these opportunities likely will be improved in a not distant day when the country has settled down to the piping times of peace and prosperity.

Ask the people at Dayville and Elmville if they like the new gas service and you will hear a unanimous chorus chanting "I'll say we do!" Until the present month these communities never have had gas service in their homes. The new line run between Putnam and Danielson made it possible.

Cars from Louisiana, Virginia and Iowa were noted Thursday morning within a few minutes observation passing with the traffic rolling through Danielson. An observer says he has seen cars from 33 different states in Danielson within the past month. And in addition cars bearing registration of the Canadian provinces of Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are quite common in this territory.

Men of the Service battery are at Camp Eustis, Va., this morning. Their anticipation is for cooler weather than they have experienced in this camp in other years because of the fact that the encampment comes later in the season.

Delegations from towns in this vicinity were at New Haven Thursday attending the annual convention of the State Firemen's association.

A party of Danielson followers of boxing motored to New Haven Thursday afternoon to be present at the Pal Moran-Kid Kaplan bout in the evening. Kaplan being a Meriden boy, there was more or less local interest in the showing he might make.

John C. Lever of New Bedford was a visitor with friends in Danielson Thursday.

The annual East Putnam old home day held at Burrill's grove on the Providence road attracted attendance Thursday from villages in the northern section of the town of Killingly.

N. A. Jordan, who has been engaged in the hardware business in Danielson for a score of years has disposed of his interests and is to retire. Mr. Jordan has acquired a pretty country place at Elmville and is developing it to suit his requirements. Mr. Jordan has been a very successful business man and is well known to the trade for miles around.

The coming week will be the final one of the long summer vacation for hundreds of school children of the town of Killingly and for those of some surrounding towns. Schools will be ready to reopen on September 2 in the town of Killingly. During the vacation season such repairs as have made to school buildings and supplies obtained against the opening of the schools for another year of study.

During the war and before her marriage Mrs. Lindsey spent a number of months in Putnam and acted as assistant clerk of the draft board. When the different quotas assembled in Union hall preparatory to leaving for Camp Devens, Mrs. Lindsey entertained the boys with her singing.

STATE BANK RECEIVER KEEPS BUSY AT PUTNAM

(Special to the Bulletin)

Putnam, Aug. 21—The situation regarding the First National Bank and its cashier, G. Harold Gilpatric, who is slowly improving at the Day Kimball hospital, remained unchanged on Thursday. The afternoon of Thursday is the city's weekly half holiday and business was practically at a standstill during the afternoon. People are showing a more cheerful aspect as their personal affairs become adjusted to present conditions and in many instances it has been found that things are not as bad as first seemed.

But the question "When do you think we will get our money" ? is still on many people's tongues and business men are thus assailed a dozen or more times a day, as if they ought to know something assuring to tell the questioner.

At last report, Charles H. Coffin, the bank received, was still engaged in checking up the inventory of assets as made out by the bank examiner. Mr. Coffin has little time to give to interviews and has little to say regarding conditions at any time. He is back and forth between the bank and the office of his attorney, States Attorney Charles E. Searls, where frequent interviews and conferences are held.

The committee members in charge of organizing a new banking institution are relaxing from their efforts which resulted in subscriptions of slightly over $130,000 for stock in the proposed bank. Only $100,000 was aimed at but the campaign got such an impetus that the flow of subscriptions could not be checked immediately the amount desired was reached.

A statement coming from Washington, credited to Chief Bank Examiner William Stearns, expressing his opinion that the Putnam National Bank would be able to reopen, was read with interest in the city. It is admitted that this statement is made without knowledge of conditions as no statement had been received from Putnam. It has been stated in Putnam openly that the reorganization of the First National Bank is a practical impossibility. Notwithstanding this there has been some expression of an undercurrent of opinion that this may be accomplished. If the chief bank examiner has any such opinion, it may be wondered what effect this will have on the granting of the application for a charter for the Citizens' National Bank of Putnam, which has already been sent to Washington.

On two different occasions recently the tea room of Mrs. Ella Lathrop on North Main street has been broken into and goods kept there stolen. There was evidence that a glass cutter was used in getting into the building, which was erected early this season.

Ruts in the Main street paving along the rails of the Connecticut company's trolley line have been filled in by a crew of the state highway department. The wear and tear of heavy traffic makes necessary that such repairs be made periodically.

Progress is being made on construction of the addition to the plant of the Larkin Reed Company on East Franklin street. The addition, to be two stories in height, is being built of cement blocks.

Danielson business men have made special preparations to make Saturday one of the great bargain day events of the summer season. Acting as members of the Chamber of Commerce they have united to hold the first Dollar day scheduled this year.

The opinion was expressed her on Thursday that the next trunk line construction work that the state is likely to undertake in this immediate vicinity, other than rebuilding work, will be on the route out of Brooklyn to Pomfret Landing. Such a road would relieve the congestion of traffic on existing lines, and such is that congestion that more roads will be needed to ease it off.

Hilton Mongeau, 18 months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mongeau, is dead at their home on the West Side. Recently twin daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Mongeau.

The Danielson Rod and Gun club has another shoot planned for the 24th. A 50-bird event is on the card.

Mrs. George O. Thomas and her grandson, Thomas Day, accompanied Mrs. Harold Greene on a motor trip to Hyannis Thursday, and the party will spend a vacation there.

Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., of the Central Baptist church at Norwich, is to preach at the service at the Westfield Congregational church here Sunday morning.

Mrs. Laura C. Dean and her grandson, David Carr, of Omaha, are the guests of Attorney and Mrs. Arthur G. Bill. Mrs. Bill is a niece of Mrs. Dean.

Out of respect to the memory of our late president, Timothy E. Hopkins, the Windham County National Bank of Danielson will be closed between the hours of two and three, standard time, this (Friday) afternoon.—adv.

Dr. George M. Burroughs will entertain a number of the Danielson friends at his summer place at Eastern Point Sunday.

The late summer season brings a revival of home building in Danielson. Sites for six new dwellings in various sections of the borough have been staked out.

Attesting that he is still young and nervy, Gurdon E. Withey was engaged in painting the slender flagg staff that rises high over the roof of the central fire station. The job was one that few would care to complete for, most people being satisfied to keep their feet nearer the ground.

Next Thursday will be the last of the weekly half-holidays in Danielson for this season.

PLAINFIELD

Miss Agnes Peletier is substituting as a nurse in the Lawton Mills Corporation during the absence of Miss Joan Kirby, head nurse, who is on two weeks' vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kay and daughter have returned after two weeks' automobile trip through New York state.

A great many children in town were vaccinated at the Lawton hospital Wednesday by Dr. A. A. Chase, assisted by Miss Agnes Peltier.

Complaints have been made several times since the police force has been organized in the village of Plainfield. The town of Plainfield does not pay the full amount of the policeman's salary. The Lawton Mills pay a certain amount and are about the only ones excepting the stores on the Main street to receive any property protection. Though there are stores on the hill, Railroad avenue and Dougherty Heights, they are not included in the rounds of the policeman, except on some occasional times, such as fires, etc.

These merchants, however, not on the Main street, pay taxes which contribute toward the patrolman's salary.

On the other hand it does not seem possible that one man could cover the ground and do it properly in one evening. Another man is needed on the force. Many of the taxpayers would put up a holler if such a thing should be done, but they persist in complaining about not getting the police protection they are paying for. Another class of taxpayers claim that police protection is not necesary in a small town like Plainfield. Such citizens should take a walk down town some evenings and they would soon change their attitude concerning the force needed.

The patrolman is always on guard for fires. This seems to be the main reason why complaints are made. Should a fire break out in any of the outlying stores the building would be burned to the ground unless some one happened to be passing by.

Lucian Marcurelle, formerly of Plainfield, now of Jewett City, was taken to Backus hospital Tuesday morning where he will be operated on for appendicitis.

Walter Tootle has completed his work in Plainfield and will leave for Kansas City Sunday.

Albert Woodmansee the other evening ran his car over a stone wall. The front wheels were hanging over the wall and the brakes being applied immediately stopped the car from going over completely. The drop to the ground is about 15 feet. With the help of another car Mr. Woodmansee managed to get his car out without much damage.

Mr. and Mrs. Duvey Shippee and family are motoring to Niagara Falls and through Canada for the next two weeks.

Edward Uygren, who has been touring the state on his motorcycle for the past week, is planning on going to Canada next Monday.

Correspondence courses in radio reception and transmission are offered by the engineering extension department of the Pennsylvania State College. More students have enrolled in the radio courses than in any other of the correspondence courses offered by the department.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

FERTILIZER NEEDS PROPER ATTENTION

A concrete manure pit is a certain means of saving a part of the millions of dollars that are wasted annually in this country from careless handling of barnyard manure. Soil fertility built up and maintained by regular application of barnyard manure will allow this material to lose the greater portion of improper care or lack of care.

According to the Pennsylvania experiment station, the value of manure produced in one year by a horse is $41.67; that by a dairy cow $28.76. One half of the value of manure is in the liquid, consequently every precaution should be taken to save this part. The simplest manure pit is simply a water-tight concrete box, which prevents the valuable element of the manure from leaking away. This can be enlarged to suit requirements. For the average farm, a manure pit 16 feet wide and 24 feet long with an average depth of 4 feet will take care of the storage of manure from 20 animals. It should be made with a floor sloping toward one corner, in which a cistern is located, into which the liquid manure can drain and from which it can be pumped out. One end should be open so that a spreader can be backed into the pit to facilitate the removal of the manure.

The fertility of the farms which has been preserved through long years of cropping, has been maintained through the careful utilization of all manure.

CALVES' FEED IS IMPORTANT

As the season of pasturage closes, dairymen who wish to raise calves will need to change their feeding methods considerably if healthy individuals are to be raised. Green grass is one of the finest feeds for raising young calves as it contains practically all the essential flesh building elements as well as the minerals necessary for strong frames. When it becomes necessary to feed calves in the barn, perhaps the best clover hay should be used for roughage. This may be supplemented by silage to a slight extent with calves six months old. Beets are very good as a tonic and for succulence, but have not great value for putting on meat. A grain ration consisting of equal parts of wheat bran and ground oats is an excellent feed as well as an economical one.

If the calf, however, is light in flesh, it would be well to add a third part of corn meal and one half part of oil meal to bring the calf to the proper weights. In the winter time the use of some fattening grain such as corn meal or hominy or even fine cracked corn is to be desired as the calf needs the heat producing energy provided in the form of bone meal, charcoal and salt.

CARE OF LAMBS IN THE SUMMER

At this season stomach worms usually begin to effect the flock especially the lambs. If treatment for this pest is delayed, much damage may result. This is especially true when the pastures become very short because of the dry weather writes R. E. Boggs, sheep specialist.

The flock should be treated right away because if delayed the lambs may receive a check from which they may not recover.

The sheep and lambs should be treated with the nicotine sulphate solution. Three teaspoons of Black Leaf 40 in 1 quart of water. Give 4 fluid ounces to a sheep and 2 fluid ounces to a lamb. Fluid ounces may be measured with a graduated glass with fluid ounces marked on it. A Castoria bottle holds 2 fluid ounces.

Keep from food and water 12 hours before drenching and 4 hours after drenching.

WALKED FIVE MILES IN PREPARING MEALS

By wearing a pedometer, an Iowa farm woman found she usually walked five miles each day in preparing meals for her family of three. With the aid of a member of the cooperative agricultural extension service of that state, she studied the placing of her kitchen equipment. After rearranging it to meet her particular needs more effectively, her pedometer showed, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture, that the distance she had to walk in preparing one day's meals was but 2.5 miles, exactly half that required before, leaving her, she states, more time to read, write, and sew.

NEW EXPLOSIVE FOR FARM AND ROAD WORK

One hundred million pounds of explosive, enough to load a freight train 40 miles long, is shortly to be made available to farmers for land clearing and to the States and Federal government for road construction. This explosive, pyrotol, is to be distributed by the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture at the cost of preparation and shipment.

Pyrotol is composed largely of ground smokeless powder prepared by a process perfected by George R. Boyd of the Bureau of Public Roads. It is peculiarly adapted for blasting stumps and for work of similar character. It can be used for all open-air work without causing headaches or other ill effects and will not stain the hands or clothing. It is a low-freezing explosive and can be used with good results in all ordinary temperatures. The cartridges are of the same size and shape as the ordinary dynamite cartridge. Each box contains 50 pounds, about 150 cartridges; an each cartridge is approximately equal in strength to a cartridge of 20 per cent dynamite. It is safe to handle providing that the ordinary care exercised in handling dynamite or other explosive is used. It is denonated by the No. 6 caps commonly used with commercial dynamites.

It is probable that this pyrotol will be the last of the surplus war explosives to be distributed by the Department of Agriculture.

SUMMER SEEDING OF ALFALFA IS POPULAR

Summer seeding of alfalfa is becoming increasingly popular for a number of good reasons. The best stand is more often secured at this time, the seeding comes at a less busy season, and a previous crop can be harvested the same year and still allow plenty of time for seed bed preparation.

The important points usually emphasized in succeeding with alfalfa are good seed, thorough preparation of the seed bed, and liming. There is still another important factor in getting alfalfa established, and that is a sufficiency of plant food so that the alfalfa can make an early vigorous growth.

A good application of manure is often desirable. However, manure is apt to introduce weed seeds, which weaken and hold back alfalfa in its early growth. Acid phosphate or a good high-analysis fertilizer will tremendously increase the chances for a good stand the first winter. The first winter is the testing time for a new seeding of alfalfa. If a vigorous growth has been attained in the fall, alfalfa will withstand the freezing and thawing more successfully.

Alfalfa is exceedingly responsive to phosphorous fertilizers. Lime the soil by all means if it needs it. Prepare a deep firm seed bed and kill all the weeds you can before seeding. Use good seed and inoculate. In addition to these things, apply 200 to 400 pounds of acid phosphate per acre broadcast before seeding, mixing thoroughly with the soil by discing or harrowing. Leave a check strip where you omit the fertilizer, and you will have a fine demonstration of the profitableness of using fertilizer on alfalfa next year.

DISEASES OF APPLES ON THE MARKET

The percentage of disease, particularly rots and scald, found in apples in storage and on the market depends according to United States Department of Agriculture upon their whole past history; that is upon the conditions under which they were grown and prepared for market, the amount of disease they showed when they were shipped or when they went into storage, and finally upon the conditions under which they were held in transit or in storage. The percentage or disease depends to a considerable extent also upon the length of time the apples have been kept in storage, those stored longest being the most seriously affected. Inspection of the commercial apple crop over a four-year period showed that the box crop suffered from a steady increase in percentage of disease from October till June; the barrel crop only from December to June.

An analysis of the records of the inspection service for 5,223 cars inspected during the four-year period 1917 to 1921 is published in Department Bulletin 1253, Diseases of Apples on the Market. Considering the inspections for the four-year period as a whole, blue-mold rot occurred more commonly than any other disease. In the box crop scald was second and other rots third; in the barrel crop other rots exclusive of black rot came second and black rot came third. Summer and fall varieties showed less disease on the average, than winter or long-storage varieties.

In the barrel crop the percentage of disease was less in cars from New York, Michigan, Virginia, and West Virginia than in those from all other Eastern states considered as a whole. box crop was slightly heavier in cars from Idaho than in those from all other Western states considered as a whole.

SQUEALER TIPS NEW LONDON POLICE, THEN STEALS 5 CASES OF LIQUOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 22.—County Detective William Lewis and Lieut. Benjamin Beebe and Patrolmen David Nagle and Clarence Martin seized an automobile, which contained a quantity of Old Crow Bourbon whiskey and Hennessey Three Star brandy, early this morning on Railroad avenue. The liquor, however, was not all that the machine brought to New London for while the car was supposed to be guarded a stool pigeon, a New London man, who gave the tip to Detective Lewis got away with about five cases. The remainder of the liquor and the automobile, a Ford coupe, were placed in storage by Detective Lewis.

The machine arrived in New London about 10 o'clock and was driven to Railroad avenue. There the contents of the machine became known to the squealer, who went to the pay station in the Hotel Winthrop and communicated his information to Detective Lewis. While the telephone conversation was in progress the driver of the automobile overheard a part of the tip being given and at once made his escape, abandoning the car and the whiskey. When Detective Lewis appeared the squealer was left to watch the machine in the belief that the driver would attempt to recover the car and its contents; but as he did not show up again, the stool pigeon removed the greater part of the five cases from the automobile and got away with it. As a result of the theft there were a goodly number of "big heads" today in a certain State street establishment.

Ernest C. Goodrich, 444 Washington street, Middletown, will be among the automobile law and traffic violators, to be tried in the city court tomorrow morning. Goodrich, who is a deputy tax collector of the state, with headquarters at the capitol, in Hartford, came to New London this forenoon and parked his machine an hour and fifteen minutes on the south side of State street, just three-quarters of an hour longer than is permitted by city ordinance. Patrolman Henry Hick observed the law violation and ordered Goodrich to appear in court. Goodrich visited the police station later and declared that he was immune from arrests of this nature as he was a state employe. Captain Pinney, however, could not see the situation in that light and ordered Goodrich held for trial.

John Dombroski, 18 Adelaide street, was taken into custody by Captain Pinney and Patrolmen William Manice and Carlos Selesky, following Dombroski being found roaming about the woodland adjacent to the dye house of the Brainerd & Armstrong company, Bayonet street, and approaching Ledyard street. He is being held at the police station until such time as his sanity is determined, for it is apparent that Dombroski is of unsound mentality. Dombroski, who is middle-aged, left his home yesterday afternoon and that was the last seen of him until pedestrians passing through the woods about 2 o'clock observed the queer actions of the man. The police were communicated with and Dombroski was taken in charge. It was ascertained later that Dombroski had been in the woods throughout the night and during a severe thunder storm that occurred about midnight.

Dombroski was examined early this evening and was committed to the Norwich state hospital, the police accompanying the patient to the institution.

Mrs. Martha B. Holdridge, 75, widow of Nelson Holdridge, a former engineer on the ferryboats plying between New London and Groton, died last night at her home, 8 Pleasant street, Groton. Mrs. Holdridge, who had been in failing health for a long time was a native of Groton. She leaves no near relatives.

Mrs. George McKenna of Mystic and Douglass F. Marston of Amity street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

The funeral of Clark E. Smith, formerly master of Bartlett's Reef lightship, was held this afternoon, at 3.30 o'clock at his residence, 202 Ocean avenue, and was attended by many mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. The bearers were William H. Starr, Charles F. Potter, Stephen A. Prentis and David B. Clark. The body was forwarded to Springfield, Mass., and will be cremated.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Stoeckel, today caused the operator's license of Hershel Thompson, stationed at the submarine base, to be returned to the owner. The license was suspended recently following Thompson's conviction of infraction of the automobile law.

Lieut. George W. James, of the U. S. S. S. Camden, reported to the police today that while his automobile was parked in front of 555 Bank street last Friday a commercial truck owned by Darrow & Comstock, collided with it. The damage was slight.

Patrolman Henry Hick discovered a live wire of the Connecticut Power company dislodged from a pole, corner of Ocean and Lee avenues, this morning, when the officer was reporting for duty. The danger was reported to the power company and a gang of wire workers quickly placed the fallen wire in position.

A fellow much the worse for overindulgence in liquor was arrested today on North Bank street when complained of to Motorcycle Officer William Babcock by Richard W. Mansfield, superintendent of the B. P. Learned mission.

A letter purporting to have been written by a member of the Ku Klux Klan is causing a motorman in the employ of the Connecticut company much concern, for the communication received late this afternoon threatens him with bodily harm unless his attention to a girl, referred to as Catherine, is ended. The letter, which is written in language to indicate that the writer is of foreign nationality, informed the motorman that he would receive a bullet in the body that would either send him to the hospital of the undertaker's, as he passed over the Thames river highway bridge on his way to or from his employment, as the intended victim resides in Mystic. The motorman has been informed recently that the matter of his paying attention to the girl was discussed at a meeting of the klan, at which time it was planned to do him personal injury.

An automobile, a public service car, owned and operated by Walter Pulaski of Norwich, and a machine owned and driven by Charles Christensen of Waterford were in collision this forenoon on Main street, corner of Richards street. Both cars were damaged slightly.

The automobile owned and driven by Joseph Favoleni, 44 Prest street, and a car owned and operated by Louis R Dolbeare, R. F. D. No. 7, Norwich, collided this morning on Shaw street, at the corner of Moore avenue. Both cars were damaged.

A way out of the congestion in the highway on Bank street seems to have been found, if the city desires to take advantage of it, by narrowing the sidewalks, especially on the east or south side of the street. Beginning at the custom house, the walk is 10 to 12 feet wide, much wider than there is any necessity for, and that width is continued to the corner of Shaw street. Below Howard street the walk is in wretched condition, so that anyone with tender feet wishes the people who laid the walk so far away that they never would get back. Small stones project through the walk so that they penetrate the feet of all who go over them. The walks should be re-covered with concrete or they should be narrowed so that four feet or more of the walk could be used for vehicular. Some pull was exercised when the new walks were laid so that this section was not improved as was the other section of the street.

A number of members of the fire department are to go to New Haven Friday to witness the parade of the State Firemen's association members.

George Livermore, 8, son of Mrs. H. I. Eldridge, 51 Hempstead street, strayed away from home late this afternoon and the police were requested to maintain a watch for the youngster. The lad was located eventually and returned to his mother.

New London seems now to be getting all the dramatic companies that will be seen in New York during the fall and winter months. These companies come here to "try their plays on the dog" and to rehearse for appearance in the metropolis. Thus far this city has had the best of the plays that will be seen in New York in the months to come.

New London, as usual, will furnish the major part of the criminal cases that are to come before the September term of the superior court.

The excursion to Newport today on the New London line steamer Richard Peck was not patronized as well as have been the other excursions out of this port this season. The big steamer carried less than 300 passengers.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Robinson of New York came to New London on their way to Boston in a cut-down racing car this afternoon. Had Robinson displayed any sort of judgment he would not be in the fix that now confronts him, for Robinson was arrested charged with violation of the automobile law in operating his machine with cut-out open. Robinson came through State street and the car made so much noise that it attracted great attention. At State and Main streets Traffic Officer Wells held up the machine and then Sergeant Nelson Smith interrogated Robinson as to why the cut-out was being used. Robinson declared that he had been unable to procure a mechanic who understood making the needed repairs, but that excuse was considered faulty and Robinson was ordered to drive to the police station. He started toward the station house, but after getting to a side street Robinson speeded the car and headed for the Thames river highway bridge. Sergeant Nelson Smith hustled to the station house and procuring the speed automobile put chase to Robinson. He was finally overtaken at Poquonoc and brought back to New London, where he was held for trial in bonds of $15. Had Robinson done as he was told, he would probably not have been held, but instructed to get the muffler repaired.

JEWETT CITY

Of late, not a few inquiries have been made relative to the status of Jewett City Chamber of Commerce. Here are four, that will serve as a fair sample of these inquiries:

What is the state of the chamber's finances?

Is the chamber of commerce dead, or just walking around to save funeral expenses?

What is the matter with the chamber of commerce?

The finances of the institution, deposited in the Jewett City Trust Co., amount as, as of August 1st, $71.63. One evening, something less than a year ago, one hundred freemen of the borough of Jewett City and vicinity, pledged themselves to pay $5 per head to become members. Less than one in five of that one hundred ever came across with the coin.

At one time in its history the chamber of commerce, reckoning in the receipts from the Richmond P. Gardner recital, had $343.65 to its credit, which was subject to the following disbursements: Richmond P. Gardner, $150.60, percentage from recital; Jewett City Press, $46, recital account; Dennis Barnett, $25, rent of theater; The Bulletin, $20.30, recital account; Windham County Transcript, $1.75, recital account; Attorney John T. Barry, $21.50, legal fees; Cranston & Co., $1.50, treasurer's book; Charles F. Burgess, $2.50, recital account; Pullen Publishing Co., $4, recital account; Robert O. Eaton, $36.42, federal tax on recital; W. H. Blodgett, $12.50, state tax on recital.

The chamber of commerce is a great ways from the necessity of an undertaker's attention, yet it needs a copious application of the restorative, which can only be administered by an interested public, with right ideas and honest intention. The last question: The institution is suffering from a state of coma, caused by the seeming lack of interest which at present exists. Before it fairly got a start, it was swamped by a lot of "Do this" and "Do that" suggestions, that would have sunk a canal boat. Plenty of interested citizens of the borough still today just as much in favor of an active organization as they ever did. This chamber of commerce was organized for the purpose of engendering civic pride, making things look good to the home merchant and consumer, and the laying out of plans which should point to better ways and means for home industries and local interests.

If the chamber should do no more, its single venture must always stand to its credit, for it gave the people of this section an opportunity to hear a Jewett City boy, who has made himself an accomplished singer. The amount of cash in its treasury, is not a standard criterion, upon which to pass judgment as to its efficiency, or its desire to accomplish the best of ends.

Primarily, it is not the plan of the Jewett City Chamber of Commerce, or any other like organization, to become a money-making institution.

A bird observer living on the East Main street highlands, has followed up this summer an order of bird housekeeping that is very unusual. A wee bit of a house wren in one of his trees is either a Mormon or a bigamist, for the little chap has had two wives. Both female birds built nests in different sections of the wren apartments, and both raised a brood. Mr. Wren didn't seem to be partial to either bride—to the observer they looked alike, and seemed so to him. He helped on both nest building jobs to such extent as his dual role would permit, and at times took a turn in the household duties in both nests. The strangest thing of all is to be seen when it was discovered that not the least jealousy existed between the two little bits of brides. They met every day, on the leafy boughs which surrounded their homes, making little calls back and forth, and seemed to show a common interest in the collective family.

Five innings were played in the twilight game Wednesday evening. Gathering clouds proved a handicap to the game, which ended with the score: K. of C. 7, Ashland 8.

Mrs. Mary J. Richards and daughter Blanche of Norwich are spending a few days after a visit in Providence, with Mrs. Rosanna Gobell. Dona Gobell and family of Palmfield were also guests there Thursday.

STATE FORESTS GET MORE FEDERAL AID

At a meeting of the state park and forest commission last week, state forest officials met Harris Collingwood, representing the United States department of agriculture, to discuss forestry extension and the greater assistance in prevention of forest fires provided for by the McNary-Clark law recently enacted by congress, which will place funds at the disposal of the state, available July 1, 1925.

State Forester Austin F. Hawes explained recently that the proposed forestry extension would consist in helping the farmer practice forestry. The greater assistance in preventing of forest fires would enable the state to increase the number of lookout stations maintained, of which there are only six at present. Mr. Hawes said also that section four of the act provides for federal assistance to the state in raising forest seedlings, but the sum placed at the disposal of the state must be matched by an equal sum appropriated by the state. The same situation exists in regard to forestry extension. A request for the money necessary to make the federal grant available will be made at the next session of the general assembly, Mr. Hawes said.

Others attending the meeting were A. E. Moss, instructor in forestry at the Connecticut Agricultural college; W. V. Filley, forester in charge of the experiment station at New Haven, and Philip Butterick, secretary of the Connecticut Forestry association.

FARM BUREAU ANNOUNCES CONNECTICUT POULTRY TOUR

Announcement was made Thursday at the office of the New London county farm bureau in this city that the annual automobile tour of the Connecticut Poultry association will be held Aug. 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29th.

The annual automobile tour of the Connecticut Poultry association is every year becoming more popular and more worth while. The practice of alternating between state and out-of-state tour is firmly established, this being the year for the out-of-state trip.

Through the courtesy of the Long Island Poultry association and the New York State Institute of Applied Agriculture, a very interesting and attractive tour has been arranged on Long Island. The tour will also include a trip to the New York city markets.

To meet the demand for leaders in parent-teacher associations, many of the universities and state normal schools gave special courses for this work in their summer sessions this year.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY

New York, Aug. 21—Reactionary price tendencies prevailed in today's stock market, which was again called upon to absorb an unusually large volume of profit-taking sales. Bullish demonstrations in Dupont, Corn Products and United States Cast Iron Pipe failed to stem the tide of selling in other standard rails and industrials, many of which dropped 1 to 3 points.

Some irregularity took place at the opening, due to the usual evening-up of speculative accounts after a brisk turn in either direction. So great was the supply of some of the popular shares that they could not be disposed of, except at concessions in quoted values. This encouraged a resumption of short selling in some of the volatine shares which was given added impetus by the stiffening of money rates and the announcement of a new stock offering by Mack Truck and the circulation of unfavorable rumors concerning St. Paul earnings and financial plans.

United States Steel common closed more than a point lower at 109 7-8, while American Can showed a net loss of nearly two points at 134 7-8. Baldwin was run up to 126 1-2 and then dropped about two points from the high for a small fractional loss. Studebaker, however, moved up in sympathy with most of the other motors, touching a new top at 35 1-2. About twenty other issues also broke through their previous high prices.

Nash Motors recorded an extreme gain of 9 1-2 points at 126 1-2 and then slipped back to 124. Stromberg Carburetor advanced nearly 3 points. Announcement of a 20 per cent. increase in common stock brought fresh realizing into Mack Truck which closed nearly four points lower at 102.

Copper shares lost ground on reports of an easing in red metal prices. Shipping continued to display a firm tone. Marine preferred and American International Corporation recording new highs at 43 1-2 and 29 7-8 respectively.

Texas Gulf Sulphur failed to respond to the placing of the stock of a $7 annual basis. This action already having been discounted. Considerable interest was aroused by speculative activity in corn products. Trading in which has been restricted by high corn and low sugar prices. International Business Machines, R. H. Macy, National Lead, General Electric and Wilson and Company preferred lost two to three points.

Rails were mixed but losses again exceeded gains. "Nickel Plate" rallied more than a point and the International Railways of Central America issues continued their rise to higher groud, but net losses of one to nearly 3 points were recorded by the St. Paul issues. New Haven, Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson, Chicago Northwestern, Atlantic Coast Line, Illinois Central and several others.

Money rates displayed a firmer tone. Call money held at 3 per cent. that marked scarcity of offerings in the "outside" market, below that figure. Time money rates were advanced 1-4 of one per cent. but there was little increase in activity. Commercial paper also stiffened with the bulk of the prime names moving at 3 1-4 per cent.

Foreign exchange rates pointed upward for the first time this week. Demand sterling advanced 2 1-3 cents to around $4.51 and French francs ruled about seven points higher around 5.46 cents.

BOND MARKET

New York, Aug. 21—Reactionary tendencies prevailed in today's bond market as the hardening of time money rates caused general withdrawal of buying support. U. S. and foreign government obligations, domestic railroad and public utility issues all drifted lower, although selling pressure was not particularly heavy except in a few isolated cases.

The advance in time funds and commercial paper, marking the first turn in the money situation in many weeks, had a decidedly chilling effect on bond trading, which has derived its main stimulus through the summer from the prevailing low rates. With increased demands resulting from reviving trade and the crop movement, there was also a perceptible decrease in the amount of call money offered at 2 per cent. with indications that this rate would be forced higher before the end of the month.

Liberty bonds were the first to reflect uneasiness over the money situation, active issues declining 2 32nds to 10 32nds. Some liquidation of foreign government and high-grade rail securities which had been acquired on the basis of their higher yields also resulted.

Individual features of trading were supplied by the Wilson & Company concertible issues. St. Paul railroad and Carolina, Clinchfield and Ohio liens. Reports that the terms of the Wilson reorganization affecting the company's bonds would be especially drastic caused a sharp break in the convertible 7 1-2s, which at one time were about 7 points lower, a net loss of 4 3-4 points on the day was recorded, with the 6s losing 3 points.

Intimation by bankers that the St. Paul railroad refunding program would be deferred until next spring led to unloading of these issues which had been pushed up recently by speculative buying, based on the success of other railroad refunding operations. Carolina, Clinchfield and Ohio 6s jumped two points following announcement that the Atlantic coast line and Louisville and Nashville jointly had accepted the least of the road.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Aug. 21—Widespread hot weather, highly beneficial for the corn crop, led to active general selling of corn today, and brought about a sharp break both in the corn market and in oats. The wheat market, too, sympathized. Corn finished 3 1-4 to 4 5-8 net lower, December 111 3-8 to 111 5-8 with oats 1 5-8 to 1-4c down. Wheat closed unsettled at 1-2c to 1c. Net decline, September 126 5-8 to 126 3-4 and December 131 1-2 to 131 5-8. In provisions, the outcome was five to 40c drop.

Lowest prices of the day in the corn market were touched just before the finish, and showed a maximum set back of 4 7-8c from yesterday's closing quotations, that is about 8 1-2c loss compared with Monday's top figures. Although the weather forecast indicated that cooler temperatures would reach the eastern edge of the corn belt by Friday, the fact that meanwhile the sudden rise of the mercury together with welcome sunshine appeared to be visiting the territory where most needed gave such great impetus to selling that no important rally was witnessed after the downward swing of values had got well under way.

Reports that five more cargoes had been purchased in Argentina to come to this country attracted some notice in the corn pit.

On the other hand, receipts were exceptionally small, the total being just 62 cars.

Wheat prices had a decided upward tendency until the weakness of corn became pronounced. Export business in wheat was of larger volume, and there were unfavorable weather conditions in western Europe, in Canada and in Argentine. Large receipts of wheat, though, as well as corn weakness, proved finally to be heavy handicap on wheat bulls.

CURB MARKET

New York, Aug. 21—Transactions in curb securities today were concentrated chiefly on public utility issues, American Light and Power scoring another dazzling gain of 17 points to 413. Commonwealth Power added 4 points to yesterday's advance, closing at 105 3-5. American Gas and Electric also gained about 5 point.

Motor shares were in good demand, General Motors forging across 60, later reacting slightly, but with a fractional gain for the day. Durant Motors was well bought. Ford Motors of Canada and Dupont also were active.

The oils were under pressure by increased production and additional reduction in Pennsylvania crude oil, several of the Standard Oil issues losing a point or more on the day. South Penn. Oil dipped 5 points in early trading but recovered most of it, closing 1 1-2 points lower.

Fractional losses occurred in some of the radio shares which seemed to be in supply.

FAMILY MARKET

Native apples on the markets now include the Gravesteins, Williams and Astrachans. The Astrachan is supplied in very small quantites, price ranges higher for this particular grade. The William apples seem to be the outstanding apples on the market at present. The next in rank include the Duchess and Gravesteins, which are considered high grade apples. The Gravestein is a richly flavored apple, makes a very good eating apple, as well as for cooking purposes.

A shortage of native vegetables has been a determining factor in the upholding of high prices. An exceptionally dry summer has caused a scarcity of native products. Tomatoes in spite of the dry weather have developed quite rapidly, as shown by the lower range of prices. Quick sales are made at $1 a basket, price ranges this week are 25 to 50 cents a basket lower than the previous week. Corn is selling on an average of 25 cents per dozen this week, according to the quality and demand. Shell beans are supplied in moderate quantities to the markets, most sales being made at $1 a bushel.

COSTELLO LIPPITT

Costello Lippitt, ex-mayor of Norwich, secretary and treasurer of the Norwich Savings Society, chairman of the board of directors and former president of the Merchants National bank, former treasurer of the State of Connecticut and widely known in banking and Masonic circles throughout the state, died Thursday afternoon at 5.50 o'clock at his home, No. 55 Williams street. He had been in poor health for several months and had been seriously ill for some days past.

Mr. Lippitt, a descendant of an old Rhode Island family, was the son of Rev. Norris Greenleaf Lippitt and Eliza M. Leffingwell Lippitt. His father, a native of Killingly, born in October, 1817, was, in 1846, licensed as a preacher and entered the service of the Methodist church. He preached at North Killingly and moving to Norwich in 1852 supplied the church in Eagleville. He preached in the Methodist churches in Norwich and in many of the Methodist churches in New London and Windham counties.

Costello Lippitt was born December 12, 1842 in East Killingly, and was 19 years old when his parents moved to Norwich. He received his education in the district school of East Killingly, the public schools at Norwich and graduated from the N. F. A. in 1860. He then entered Wesleyan University, was graduated in 1864 with a degree of A. B. and in 1867 the degree of M. A. was conferred upon him by that institution. After his graduation he returned to Norwich and in the following October (1864) he was employed as clerk in the Thames National bank, being in charge of the stock book; he was there when the capital stock of that bank was raised from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

In January 1865 he accepted a clerkship in the Norwich Savings Society, his position being the lowest one in the bank. Charles Johnson was president of the institution at that time and Benjamin Huntington was secretary and treasurer; the deposits then were about $4,000,000. Mr. Lippitt through industry and ability worked his way up and in 1881 was elected secretary and treasurer to succeed Mr. Huntington.

Costello Lippitt was a republican. In 1908 he was elected mayor of the city by his party, this being the first time he had ever accepted office. He served as treasurer of the state of Connecticut from 1911 to 1913.

For 15 years previous to July 1901, he served as a member of the board of trustees of the Connecticut Hospital for the Insane at Middletown, when he resigned. He was a member of the board of directors and trustees of the Norwich Savings Society, and a member of the board of directors of the Merchants' National bank. He was also a trustee of the Norwich Free Academy and was secretary and treasurer of the Eliza Huntington Memorial Home until recently, succeeding his father on the board. In 1903 he was elected the first president of the board of trustees of the Norwich Hospital for the Insane and served as such until his death.

Mr. Lippitt had a distinguished career in Masonry. He was raised in Somerset Lodge, No. 34, F. and A. M., in this city in 1866, becoming a charter member of St. James' Lodge, No. 23, in 1872. He was exalted in Franklin Chapter, No. 4, R. A. M., in the same year, received into Franklin Chapter, No. 3 R. and S. M., in December, 1866, and was its thrice illustrious master in 1872-3. In 1873 he was grand steward of the grand council. He was knighted in Columbian Commandery, No. 4, K. T., in 1873, and was later elected eminent commander.

For 30 consecutive years he held office in the commandery. He was past grand commander of the state, was grand treasurer of the grand commandery of the state and president of the Past Grand Commanders' Association, Knights Templar of Connecticut.

In Scottish Rite Masonry he was equally proficient; he was a member of King Solomon Grand Lodge of Perfection, Van Rennsealaer Council, Princes of Jerusalem, Norwich Sovereign Chapter, Rose Croix, Connecticut Sovereign Consistory of Norwich, and served three years as commander-in-chief of the last named body.

He also belonged to Sphinx Temple, Mystic Shrine, at Hartford. On September 20, 1898, at Cincinnati, he was made a member of the Supreme Council of the Sovereign Grand Inspectors General of the 33rd and last degree for the Northern Masonic Jurisdiction. He was a member of the board of directors of the Masonic Temple Corporation and treasurer of the same.

At the age of 14 years Mr. Lippitt united with the East Main Street M. E. church and later transferred his membership to the Central M. E. church and then to the Sachem Street M. E. church; in 1895, when the Trinity M. E. church was organized he was one of the leading spirits and became president of the board of trustees. For over 50 years he served as superintendent of the Sunday school of the M. E. church in this city and for over 40 years was organist of the various churches in which he held membership.

He was a member of the American Missionary Board of the Methodist church and had a wide acquaintance in Methodist circles, and belonged to one of the societies in connection with the Wesleyan university.

On August 16, 1864, Mr. Lippitt was united in marriage with Emily Hyde Standish of Norwich, adopted daughter of Nathan Standish. Mrs. Lippitt died May 20, 1889, at the age of 46 years. By this marriage there were two children, Mary B., who married C. J. Wolcott and Norris S. Lippitt, born December 25, 1867.

May 31, 1891, Mr. Lippitt married for his second wife, Gertrude H. Lamphere, a direct descendant of Stephen Hopkins, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Mr. Lippitt was prominently identified with the Willimantic Camp Ground where he maintained one of the finest summer cottages in the grove for many years. He was extremely active in the management of the camp ground, retiring from his connections there about two years ago.

Mr. Lippitt was a lover of flowers and took a great personal interest in his flower gardens at his home and his summer cottage at the camp ground.

Mr. Lippitt's last request was that his friends and the organizations with which he has been connected for so many years refrain from sending flowers to his funeral.

Surviving are his son, Norris S. Lippitt, three grand children, Marion B., and Marguerite S. Wolcott of California, and Mrs. Theodore Z. Haviland of Paterson, N. J., and one great-grandson, Theodore Z. Haviland, Jr.

Mr. Lippitt was one of the leading citizens of Norwich. He was widely known and popular with his many friends and acquaintances. He was of a very kindly, generous and obliging disposition and held the confidence of a large circle of friends, in both the business and social world, who sincerely regret to hear of his death.

JOHN TROLAND ERECTING UNIQUE SUN DIAL

Along with other things, John Troland of No. 2 Winchester Place has developed an aptitude for designing and engraving sun dials, of which he has given several good examples. At present he is erecting one on his own premises that will be useful and ornamental.

John Paracenti, a local artist has been erecting a pedestal for the dial composed of concrete, which may be roughly described as of Doric order, being a round pillar, ten inches mean diameter, surmounting a square base and rising about three feet including the capital.

The dial itself is of slate one inch in thickness, in hexagon form, beveled edge and seventeen inches from point to point, procured from the quarries by the Peck McWilliams Company, weight 19 pounds. Within circles are shown the hours and the quarter hours of the day, upon which will fall the shadow of a copper gnomen or stile indicating the time. This stile presents a profile face of old Father Time looking due north, set in nickeled studs, giving a sage and solid appearance to the work. Specially designed symbols on the dial represent the sun who "shines for all" a winged hour glass under "Tempus Fugit", and this motto:

UNIQUE SUN DIAL

"I mark the hours from morn till even,
But there is endless day in Heaven!"

Other inscriptions give the words, "Year of Our Lord 1924", the latitude and longitude of Norwich, and also the engraver's name and age at the time of the design, all of which are artistic and original.

It is proper to state that a dial must be calculated relative to the latitude of the spot where it is to be erected. We sometimes hear of American tourists bringing from the old country dials, which, however valuable as specimens or heirlooms, are useless as time keepers except they be placed on the same parallel as that for which they were originally drawn, said Mr. Troland, and in setting up a dial we find that it is the geographical and not the magnetic line that must guide, for the magnetic pole diverges some degrees from the meridian.

These points make dialing an interesting study, and in fact it was a part of the mathematics in the schools of former years and it may yet be found in the older arithmetics of that time.

Sun dials are of very ancient origin. Prof. David A. Daboll, of almanac fame, with whom Mr. Troland has been in correspondence and who is a veteran authority in sidereal and planetary lore, notes the fact that sun dials were in use 742 years B. C. mention being made of one in Holy Writ at that date, as "The dial of Ahaz, king of Judah," in connection with a remarkable answer to prayer in behalf of King Hezekiah, and remarkable phenomena on the dial, all recorded in second book of Kings, Chap. 20, also in book of Isaiah the Prophet, Chap. 38. Prof. Daboll is at Gales Ferry for his health. He is 84 years and 4 months of age.

NEMROD GROTTO HOLDS CLAM BAKE AT SHORE

About 75 members of Nemrod Grotto, M. O. V. P. E. P. left Norwich, Thursday afternoon, bound for Brightman's Pond, near Atlantic Beach, via automobile, to enjoy a stag clam bake at the beach. The bake was served at 5.30 o'clock by Mr. Barnes and was thoroughly enjoyed. The arrangements for the outing and clam bake were in charge of Alex Finlayson. The Grotto is also planning for a moonlight sail in the near future and the ladies are to be invited on this occasion.

A Money-Saver

Engineers at the office of the Delta Barrage in Egypt did not want to pay a man to stay at the reservoir miles away just to read the gauge. They decided to make the water report its own level by telephone. Now they just take down the receiver and the number of the gauge reading is automatically spoken to them. A float connected with the telephone does the trick.

Used Gold to Decorate

While gold is now the standard of value throughout the world, in the days of old Greece gold and silver were commonly used in the decoration of buildings.

A man may be worth a lot of money and yet be a very poor sort of man.

Origin of Navel Oranges

Navel oranges, of which California sends out 8,000,000 boxes a year, were introduced into the United States from Brazil by the Department of Agriculture in 1870. The first experimental grove contained fewer than twenty trees. One of the original two trees brought here may be seen in Washington, D. C., still and the other is exhibited in California.

Experience

We spend about one-third of our lives in sleep and another third in play or recreation. A considerable portion of the remaining one-third is spent in eating. If we then indulge in the luxury of having a few contagious diseases there is little wonder that poverty overtakes so many of us.

Geophone

The geophone is an instrument invented during the World war for the purpose of detecting enemy mining operations. The first one was made by the French and had a radius of 75 yards. The United States developed one that had nearly one-third greater range.

A Real Disaster

Like a Thunderstorm

A big knockdown-and-dragout argument is like a thunderstorm. There are mutterings and growlings for long afterward.

We have no delight in reading a newspaper which "never hurts our feelings." Who would have a diet of nothing but butter, unsalted at that?

Oysters Must Have Salt.

Oysters cannot live in the Baltic sea, the reason being that it is not salt enough. They can only live in water that contains at least 37 parts of salt to every 1,000 parts of water.

Must Furnish Dust

The impecunious nobleman is willing to humble his ancestral pride in the dust—if the heiress will supply the dust.

Death Rate Is Declining.

The death rate of the United States steadily declines. Registration which now includes eighty-five per cent of the entire population shows deaths last year to have been only 11.8 per 1,000.

When They Mourn

Men whose feelings are easily hurt cannot possibly be a bore—unless they openly mourn about it.

Protect the Child

Exposing a child to any form of contagion so that he may have it and be over with it is just as sensible and reasonable as to hold his finger in the fire so that he will henceforth know that fire burns. There is no disease that children "have to have" and the older a healthy child grows the less likely is he to suffer from common contagions.

A Good Substitute

If one can't look either handsome or intellectual, one should at least be able to look dignified.

A baseball player seldom strains at a gnat, but he frequently struggles with a fly.

Where Women Are Barred

According to the census there are 35 occupations of the total number of listed occupations in which no women are found, while there is but one occupation that is without men. The last enumeration even listed 250 men as chambermaids and 11 men as nursemaids. Only one woman was listed as a butler.

Modern Touch in Caravans

All the better-equipped caravans that trek out of Aden across the desert are provided with vacuum bottles—a modern convenience that makes the thirsty traveler independent of the ofttimes widely scattered oases.—Compressed Air Magazine.

Spoiled the Dinner

An unexpected visit of some relatives threw a North side home into a flurry in an attempt to produce a very tempting dinner for the hungry guests. As the call for dinner came, the smallest member of the family ran to the dining room and seeing the chicken, which was the crowning glory of the feast, broke out with: "Oh, mother, is that the chicken that had the broken leg?"—Columbus Dispatch.

Among the Well Bred.

Among well-bred people, a mutual deference is affected; contempt of others disguised; authority concealed; attention given each in his turn; and an easy stream of conversation is maintained, without vehemence, without interruption, without eagerness for victory, and without any air of superiority.—Hume.

The Swamp Angel

The "Swamp Angel," was an eight-inch Parrott cannon, so-called by the federal soldiers, that was used in the siege of Charleston, S. C. It burst August 22, 1863, and was sent to Trenton, N. J., where it now occupies a granite base on the corner of Perry and Clinton streets.

Who's Who

When one hears that "everyone is a little crazy" he mentally takes stock of his eccentricities and wonders which is the one.

Jealousy

Foul jealousy! that turnest love divine to joyless dread, and makest the loving heart with hateful thoughts to languish and to pine.—Spenser.

Not Now

What is happiness? may have been the main question once, but hasn't what is happening superseded it?

WARNS DRIVERS TO KEEP UP WITH TRAFFIC

Approximately 12,000 letters to all motorists were distributed Sunday throughout the state by the state police asking all drivers to "keep up with the line of traffic." It is estimated that at least 50,000 people read this open letter which emphasizes the importance of each motorist maintaining a good average speed to the end that no car behind him may attempt to cut in front of him and thus be the cause of an accident. The letter refers to the department's previous letter of May 3 and 4 in which motorists of the state were stationed all over the state Sunday distributing copies of the letter to passing automobilists. The letter follows:

"To All Motorists:

"The state police department of Connecticut wishes at this time to thank the motorists who have responded to our appeal of May 3rd and 4th to assist in the elimination of accidents on our state highways.

"In the month of July the state police have made 260 arrests for reckless driving. Many of these arrests have been made for 'cutting-in,' passing on hills or dangerous curves, etc.

"Many drivers have been led to take chances because the car ahead was moving too slowly. The driver of a car who comes under the classification of a 'concrete crawler or moucher' creates a dangerous traffic condition. Each driver is under a responsibility to maintain a reasonable responsibility to maintain a reasonable average speed which shall not be too slow.

"Do not give the fellow behind reason for cutting around you. Keep up with the line of traffic. If you need to stop for any reason, pull your car entirely off the traveled portion of the highway.

"This is not an invitation to drive at a reckless rate of speed. It is the purpose of this letter to point out another traffic hazard and to renew our request for your co-operation.

"Very truly yours,

"ROBERT T. HURLEY,
"Supt. Dept. State Police."

KEEPING ACCOUNTS REVEALS WEAK POINTS IN FARMING

What farmers are doing through keeping and analyzing their farm accounts under the direction of agricultural extension worker is illustrated by an Iowa farmer who, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture, has been able to obtain an appreciably larger return for his labor through changes that a better understanding of the strong and weak points in his farming system suggested. This farmer has kept accounts over two years. He found at the end of the first year that crops which he fed to livestock brought him more money than when sold outright and that his methods of handling his hogs were efficient. His figures showed him, however, that his cows were poor, averaging only $36 per cow for dairy products. Comparing his figures with those of other farms in the state, he also found the number of acres cultivated per man on his farm, as well as the number of acres per horse, were below average.

Acting on the information his account book gave him, this farmer rented more land and replanned his 13 small, irregular fields, making them into 9 fields of better proportion, so that the crop area per man was increased 26 acres and the area per horse increased 3 acres. He sold two scrub cows and bought three cows of good dairy record. When he figured his accounts for the second year and compared the two years, he found that the income from the farm, after paying all expenses and interest on the amount of money invested, had been increased over $350.

BUTTER FAT PERCENTAGE IN THE HERD

Many dairymen in the summer months, when the cows are on the pasture, frequently get a very low butter fat percentage from their herd. Probably at this time of year when most of the cows in the herd are producing heavily, the fat percentage of the milk as reported from the creamery or cooperative milking plant is at its lowest.

Owners of Holstein cattle usually feel this slump the most. A method that has been used to considerable extent among large Holstein breeders to secure a better fat percentage for the herd milk volumes is as follows: when the cows are milked, the first quart—in some cases, pint—taken from all four quarters, is emptied into a separate container to use for feeding calves or for separation to make cream. The remainder of the cow's production is gathered as usual. This first milk tests very much lower in butter fat than the later or the main flow milk at any milking. Removal of this amount of the lowest testing milk, will correspondingly give a much higher percentage for that which is to be shipped to the milk plant.

There are a good many herd of dairy cows in this county containing very good quality milk producers which have no adequate means of testing the butter fat producing facilities of the individual animals. It is possible that such an association may be formed in the near future. Some of the principal benefits to be secured through a cow test association would be the elimination of cows incapable of producing a sufficient quantity of milk or butter fat in a year to pay interest on the money invested in them after feed and labor costs have been deducted from the milk checks which they bring in.

That's Different.

The difference between casting your bread upon the water and loaning money to friends is that the bread cast upon the waters comes back after many days.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Blessing at Times

Jazz music and radio loud-speakers have rendered great service to the deaf. Deafness isn't the curse that it once was.—San Diego Union.

An Adventurer

A good clerk appears to be personally interested in what you want to buy. He appears so, because he is. Each sale is a little adventure for him.

Ocean's Salt Content.

Variations in the salt content of different parts of the North Atlantic are to be surveyed which will result in more accurate knowledge of the paths taken by ocean currents, as different currents usually differ appreciably in the amount of salt they contain.

Khaki Adopted in 1898.

Need for a khaki colored uniform for the American soldier, although it may have been felt before, was not acted upon until the Spanish American war in 1898. The British had long before used it. It is now in general use in many parts of the world.

An Industrious Female.

A female lobster will lay from 3,000 to 75,000 eggs, according to its size and age. The eggs are glued to the under surface of the body and are carried about for ten months before hatching.

Girls Born in May.

Thousands of Hunters.

A considerable percentage of the human race is enrolled under the banner of destruction of wild life, says Nature Magazine. In the United States alone there are six million hunters, and tens, if not hundreds, of thousands of trappers.

Alaskan Eskimos Use Reindeers.

Two-thirds of Alaska's 200,000 reindeer, which originated from the United States government importation of 1,280 animals from Siberia beginning in 1892, are owned by Eskimos, who use them for food, clothing, and as beasts of burden.

Sultan Once Owned Sea.

The Dead sea was formerly the personal property of the sultan of Turkey, and its shores were guarded by armed soldiers who prevented the Arabs from drawing so much as a pail of water, which they sought for the salt it contained.

Deer's Swimming Suit.

In winter the fur of the deer is specially adapted for swimming. The hairs are composed of air cells and when the coat is about an inch long it will suffice to float him. Most of the bucks shed their antlers in January.—From Nature History.

Common Sense.

"Common sense, in a rough, dogged way, is technically sounder than the special schools of philosophy, each of which squints and overlooks half the fact and half the difficulties in its eagerness to find in some detail the key to the whole."—George Santayana.

Velocity of Sound.

The velocity of sound varies with the medium through which it passes. In dry air it travels at the rate of 331.36 meters per second; through water its velocity is 1,435 meters per second.

Magyar Superstition.

Among the Magyars it is a popular superstition that a woman who has a craving for salt in the early morning must be a witch, and on no account should her taste be gratified.

Cold Prospect

The promotor—"I can convince you if you will lend me your undivided attention." Mr. Nickelpinch—"Nothin' doin'. I lend nothing without security."

RADIO EXPERTS THEORIZE MARS IS TRYING TO "TUNE IN."

Regular Signals Received in Vancouver Have Led Experts to Seriously Consider the Theory — Signal Has Been Noticed at the Same Hour Every Day For Four Weeks or More—Signals Were so Powerful That They Could Not Be "Tuned Out."

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 21.—The regular signals blotting out other messages which have led radio experts seriously to consider the theory that Mars is trying to "tune in" were received at the Point Grey wireless station again today and were also heard by wireless expert at the merchants' exchange here.

The signal has been noticed at the same hour practically every day for four weeks or more," declared C. W. Mellish, wireless operator at the government station at Point Grey today. "It is absolutely distinctive and cannot be attributed to any known instrument or to static or to leaking transformers in Vancouver."

This morning the signals which dominated the air lines, was heard at 6.30 and at 7.12; at the same time to the minute that they came in on the previous days. It again came in four groups of four dashes—or rather four "dashes" so powerful that they could not be "tuned out."

The sounds have not been considered seriously by the operators until the last day or two, Mr. Mellish stated.

DETAILS OF OBSERVATION OF PHENOMENA OF MARS

Flagstaff, Ariz., Aug. 22.—Many of the observed phenomena of Mars are similar to those one would expect to see in corresponding seasonal activities on different parts of our own planet, if viewed from space as we observe Mars, said a statement issued from Lowell observatory and signed by Dr. V. M. Slipher, Professor O. O. Lampland, Professor E. C. Slipher, and Dr. W. W. Coblentz, who have been studying the planet for the last month.

Dr. Coblentz is of the United States Bureau of Standards, and is interested in the study of heat radiation from Mars.

During the near approach of Mars in 1922, Dr. Coblentz and Professor Lampland studied heat problems and now with improved instruments are establishing observations made at that time. The statement continues.

"The morning side of the planet is at a lower temperature than the afternoon side, which has been longer exposed to the sun's rays. The dark regions show higher temperature readings than the light ones, and a gradual rise in temperature is recorded on the surface of the southern hemisphere where summer is now advancing.

COMMUNICATION WITH MARS BEYOND SCIENTIFIC MIND

Paris, Aug. 23 (By the A. P.)—Mars theoretically is habitable, according to Professor Guillaume Bigourdan, official astronomer at the Paris Observatory, member of the Academy of Sciences, and president of the bureau of longitudes, but communication with Mars, he thinks is rather beyond his scientific mind for the present.

"Is Mars inhabited," he speculated aloud. "It has an atmosphere and therefore life is possible. The temperature at the surface of Mars is lower than ours. To give a means of merely approximate comparison, it could be said that for a place occupying on Mars a position corresponding to Paris on our globe, an annual mean temperature which is 53 1-2 degrees Fahrenheit here, would be on Mars 13 to 14 degrees colder. This would permit animal and vegetable life.

"But the possibility does not imply that it is so."

Discussing possible communications with Mars, Bigourdan continued, "our astronomical observations naturally are not for the purpose of searching for hypothetical martians. We leave that daring enterprise to those who wish, it is said, to communicate by wireless with the inhabitants of this distant world."

COOLIDGE PUTS REPARATIONS SETTLEMENT BEFORE DEBTS

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 22—President Coolidge, it was said here today, wants the reparations problem completely settled and peace definitely established in the world before extending invitations to another conference on the limitation of armaments which he has proposed.

Meanwhile the administration will not seek to push negotiations for settlements of the debts of foreign nations due this country, lest it interfere with solution of the reparations situation and putting of the Dawes plan into operation. Nor does it consider the time practicable for an arms conference.

President Coolidge disclosed his views on official affairs publicly today for the first time since he has started his vacation a week ago, meeting with newspapermen. Today also is practically the first time he has broken the veritable seclusion he has kept on his vacation at his father's home.

He has received only a few intimate friends during the week and described himself today as well rested and refreshed by his stay at home. Earlier in the day he spent an hour pitching hay at "Cousin Ed" Blanchard's farm.

On domestic affairs, the president was said to be very encouraged over the business outlook in this country, particularly in view of the successful outcome of the international conference on the Dawes reparations plan.

Likewise he was reported as pleased over the political situation, including that in Maine, although reports reaching here have been of a "casual" nature. Mr. Coolidge has not discussed politics with Chairman Butler of the national committee since coming here and he is said to have no plans for taking part in the campaign excepting to devote most of his attention to duties of the office.

The president made it known today that he has asked the army to conduct itself with such tact in plans for defense day that no difficulties will arise between the government and civil authorities.

KLANSMEN INSTRUCTED TO VOTE AGAINST LAFOLLETTE

Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 22.—Dr. H. W. Evans, imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, in a statement here today said that the strength of the invisible empire would be thrown against the presidential candidacy of Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin, while a neutral stand would be taken in the contest between President Coolidge and John W. Davis, the democratic candidate.

"LaFollette is the arch enemy of the nation," the statement said. "No man who endangered the success of his nation in time of war is fit to hold any office, much less occupy the position through which the country must stand or fall.

"Both Coolidge and Davis are nationals and Americans, aides of the klan in the attempt to 'Americanize America,' and for this reason the klan will take no part in the political struggle as far as they are concerned."

TORRINGTON MURDER SUSPECT MAKES COMPLETE CONFESSION

Torrington, Aug. 22.—Lorenzo Sanna, held as a material witness in the murder of Ralph Deleo, at 48 Wall street, Torrington, last Thursday morning broke down and made a complete confession to County Detective Anthony Tomanio and Captain Nicolla Calabrese, of the Torrington police this afternoon, the officials declare.

Sanna, who was a roommate of the murdered man, said that continual nagging and derogatory remarks concerning his appearance, made by Deleo for the past two or three months had rankled within him so that last Thursday morning when he awoke, between 2 and 3 o'clock, he got out of bed and finding an axe in the bathroom returned and delivered the fatal blows to the sleeping Deleo.

According to the reported confession, the night of the murder, Deleo had retired first. Sanna following him about a half hour later. He soon fell asleep, but awoke shortly after 2 o'clock with all the continual bantering and insulting remarks of Deleo on his mind. He arose, without lighting the light, and groped his way into the bathroom where he found the axe. He crept back to the bed where Deleo was sleeping and struck two blows with the axe. Sanna said that he could feel the hot blood on the bed. Deleo struggled in the bed after the blows were struck and fell out on the floor, where he was found by Mrs. Cattenno and the police. Sanna again laid down on the blood-filled bed but could not sleep and rose and dressed about 6 o'clock. He did not tell Mrs. Cattenno of the murder, he said for fear of scaring her.

According to the reported confession, Sanna says Mrs. Cattenno was not involved in the murder in any way and police say that beyond being aware of the attitude of Deleo toward Sanna, she knows nothing of the actual murder.

FREIGHT CAR CONSTRUCTED IN 48 WORKING HOURS

Florence, S. C., Aug. 22.—Lowering by almost an hour the record set last year by the Delaware and Hudson railroad shops, the Atlantic Coast Line car shops here are believed to have established a new world's record for freight car construction.

A freight box car, on which work was begun at 7.30 a. m., Wednesday, was completed, including the painting and stenciling, at 3 p. m., arrived at a loading platform at 3.51 p. m., received 150,000 pounds of tobacco and was in transit to Winston Salem, N. C., 154 miles away at 3.56 p. m., arriving there at 4.30 a. m., yesterday.

On another basis of computation actual construction of the car required a few minutes more than 48 man hours.

Loeb and Leopold Quail As Appeal is Made For Leniency of Punishment

Chicago, Aug. 23.—(By The A. P.)—"The killing of Bobby Franks was a senseless thing, an unreasonable, unexplainable and foolish act that could have been conceived and executed only by a diseased mind," said Clarence S. Darrow, 67 year old veteran of criminal court battles, in his plea today before Judge John R. Caverly for the lives of Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb.

"Why did they kill little Bobby Franks?" asked the gray haired pleader, pointing a shaking forefinger at the judge. "Not for money. They had that. Not for spite; not for hate. They killed him as they might kill a fly or a spider—for the experience.

"Because somewhere," and here the strident tone sank to a pitch of regret, "in the infinite processes which went into the making of the boy or the man, something slipped, and now these unfortunate lads sit here hated, despised, outcast, and with the community shouting for their blood."

The appeal proved too much for the self control of the culprits. Throughout most of the afternoon they sat tense. Loeb following every movement of the pleader, Leopold growing pale beneath his customary dudy flush.

But when Mr. Darrow's eloquence pictured disgrace to the families, the grief of mothers, the sorrow of fathers, the blasted hopes for the boys themselves. Loeb flicked tears from his cheeks and Leopold stumbled from the court room with bowed head.

So overcome was the latter that he struck blindly against a partition narrowing the entrance to the "bull pen." The impact drove him sidewise, but he did not raise his head.

Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, and his assistant prosecutors sat motionless. Earlier in the day Mr. Crowe had interrupted Walter Bachrach, junior counsel for the defense, as the latter sought by the evidence and written opinions of the prosecution's own scientists to show that Leopold and Loeb had "paranoid personalities." But no voice came from the chairs of the state's forces while Mr. Darrow was speaking.

A small riot preceded the opening of the afternoon session. The struggle to gain admission to the already crowded court room ended only when the reinforced police carried out Judge Caverly's order to clear the entire building.

At the outset of his argument Mr. Darrow declared that the millions of dollars possessed by his clients' families had been a positive handicap to the defense. He spoke too of the attitude of local newspapers, which, he charged, had influenced public opinion against the Leopolds and Loebs.

"There are times when poverty is fortunate and this is one of those times," he said. "Wildly extravagant stories were published without basis of fact. They said this was to be an effort to save the two boys by the use of money.

Mr. Darrow denied that, pointing out that the experts called by the defense were to receive fees based upon regular charges for professional services, and that he, himself, and his associates had agreed to take such an amount as the Chicago Bar Association thought proper.

He declared that the state's attorney was asking for a death sentence in the face of conditions that made it contrary to precedent, asserting that only one murderer had ever been sentenced to death in this country after a plea of guilty. He took a fling at Mr. Crowe, pointing out that it was the latter, while chief justice of the criminal courts, who had sent that man to the gallows.

Then Mr. Darrow frankly admitted that the defense had pleaded guilty because they "were afraid to place cause before a jury."

He said he and his associates fully realized the heavy responsibility they had placed upon the judge, and added:

"If responsibility is divided by twelve it is easier to sway it. But if these boys hang there can be no division of responsibility. You can never explain a hanging by saying that other courts overpowered you."

Take up an analysis of the case itself, Mr. Darrow read from a scrap of paper the epithets which had been applied to the crime by Thomas Marshall and Joseph Savage, assistant state's attorneys. "Cowardly, dastardly, fiendish, cruel, premediated and coldblooded," he read, and then proceeded to argue against the fitness of each of them.

Hanging he said would be more cowardly and coldblooded than the crime itself. The killing of Franks "was one of the least dastardly and cruel" he had ever known about, he said. And in justification of this statement declared that the standard to be applied here was the suffering of the victim.

"Bobby Franks suffered very little," he said, "he was dead within fifteen minutes after entering the automobile."

Mr. Darrow declared "stupid" the theory of the state that the $10,000 ransom money was the motive for the crime. He pointed out Loeb's private checking account of $3,000 and the testimony of the secretary to Leopold, Sr., that young Leopold was free to get money from the secretary for the asking.

"The murder was not for money," he charged, with scorn emphasized again by the shaking forefinger. "It was the senseless act of immature diseased children, wandering around in the dark whose lives we cannot thoroughly understand."

Mr. Darrow overlooked no opportunity to philosophize against the futility of hanging as a preventive of murder. In one such interval he quoted the text of a poem, the soliloquey of a boy on the gallows. On another occasion he declared the world had long been and for long would be a "slaughter house."

Just before the session ended Mr. Darrow began to discuss the effects of the crime on the families.

Mr. Darrow will resume his plea tomorrow and it is expected will use all the two hour half-holiday session for that purpose.

Dem. Nominee Davis Denounces The K.K.K

That or Any Other Organization Raising the Stand of Racial and Religious Prejudice.

In a fighting address to the democracy of New Jersey, Mr. Davis condemned that and any other organization raising standards of racial and religious prejudice, then he called upon President Coolidge as the standard bearer of the republican party to join him by "some explicit declaration" in "entirely removing this topic from the field of political debate.

In naming the klan in this, the second address of his campaign the democratic nominee again brought into the open an issue which rent the democratic national convention that nominated him and led to the memorable Saturday night battle in Madison Square Garden which culminated in a record vote and a majority of four against denunciation of the Klan by name in the party platform.

Having discussed it rather fully in his acceptance address, Mr. Davis apparently did not intent to refer to it again in his address here. He told his audience that since his arrival here from New York last night he had been asked by more than one person as to the views he entertained toward the Klan. Decision to state his position clearly once and for all, as he put it, is understood to have crystalized at a conference which Mr. Davis had last night with several party leaders at the home of Governor Silzer. Beside the governor those reported to have participated included Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, democratic national committeeman from this state; Joseph P. Tumulty, former secretary to President Wilson, and Thomas J. Spellacy director of the eastern headquarters of the national campaign organization.

Mr. Davis voiced his declaration regarding the Klan at the conclusion of a general address in which he vigorously scored the republican party on the record of the scandals disclosed at Washington and pointed out the chief points on which the two parties differ.

Apparently few in the audience looked for such a declaration. When the nominee, with out-thrust jaw and vigorous gesture, first named the Klan, there was a hush. But it was only for an instant. Cheers broke from the thousands gathered on the Camp Silzer parade grounds and hats, handkerchiefs and pennants were waved enthusiastically.

Again and again he was interrupted by cheering and there were cries of "good boy" and "that's the stuff" from his audience. Mr. Davis said at the outset that the issue was one that had no proper place in this or any other campaign and that he mentioned in the hope that he might dispose of it once and for all so far as he was concerned.

Reminding his hearers that in his Clarksburg acceptance address he had affirmed his "personal belief in the great guarantees of religious freedom and religious toleration which have made this country what it is," the nominee declared he had sought to give his views in terms sufficiently broad to include any and all forms of bigotry, prejudice and intolerance.

"On that declaration I stand," he said. "Whenever any organization, no matter what it chooses to be called, whether Ku Klux Klan or by any other name, raises the standard of racial and religious belief as a test of fitness for public office, it does violence to the spirit of American institutions and must be condemned by all those who believe as I do in American ideals.

"Hear me for one further word. I repeat that these matters must not be permitted to divert the attention of the public from the vital questions now before them to this end and with this end only in my mind, I venture, here and now, to impress the hope that the nominee of the republican party will see fit by some explicit declaration to join me in entirely removing this topic from the field of political debate."

MESSENGER BOY FOUND VALUABLE SECURITIES

New Haven, Aug. 22.—Henry Candefer, a messenger boy, picked up a package said to have contained thousands of dollars' worth of securities in the local postoffice corridor today. He took the package immediately to the postmaster. When a few moments later the owner called for the package, which he had carelessly dropped, he was so overjoyed at its recovery that he failed to inquire the name of the finder, who went unrewarded.

Non-Partisan Talk Given by C. G. Dawes

To Group of Several Hundred Residents of Westbrook and Adjacent Conn. Shore Towns.

Westbrook, Conn., Aug. 22—Charles G. Dawes, republican candidate for vice president made the first impromptu front-porch speech of his campaign today, addressing a group of several hundred residents of Westbrook and other Connecticut coast towns, gathered at a reception accorded him at the Quotonsett Golf club.

The reception was non-partisan, the democratic selectman of Westbrook going with the republican selectmen to welcome the nominee. Mr. Dawes for that reason announced that he would not make a partisan address.

"It is entirely non-partisan to say, however, that long speeches are not conducive to clearness of statement and in my opinion they are not conducive to the creation of conviction," said Mr. Dawes. "And in this campaign I am going to try to speak short—not simply because it is popular, for I understand how popular it is, but because by short speaking and clear speaking I can leave, I hope, some impression upon the minds and consciences of my countrymen. Now in this campaign with the long winded discussions of the material things and the things which relate to our ordinary conditions there is going to be a discussion of the things that are fundamental. The American people themselves have decided to look at the ground under their feet.

"A tax has been laid on the constitution of the United States upon which we all stand. Questions of common citizenship are involved. Conditions today are too serious to trifle with. And all I am going to try to do in this campaign is to speak the truth as I see it, and as sincerely and as forcibly as I can, discuss these fundamental issues along with those other questions which divide us on less important things."

Leaving Westbrook late in the day, Mr. Dawes, accompanied by Mr. Wilson, stopped at East River, another shore town, en route to New Haven. At East River the nominee spent some time at the summer home of Charles Hopkins Clark, publisher of the Hartford, Conn., Courant, and there had a short conference with J. H. Roraback, republican national committeeman for Connecticut, and Lieutenant Governor Hiram Bingham. Both gave the nominee encouraging reports as to sentiment for the republican national ticket in this state.

TO LEARN TRUE CONDITION OF DEFUNCT PUTNAM BANK

Putnam, Aug. 21—A protective committee, to learn so far as possible the true condition of the assets and liabilities of the wrecked First National bank, closed after its cashier, former State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric had attempted suicide, and to take whatever steps are possible to reopen the bank, was named tonight at a meeting of between fifty and sixty stockholders of the institution. These stockholders represented 1,136 shares of the 1,500 shares of the bank outstanding and had assembled together upon invitation of six stockholders representing 10 per cent. of the stock.

Irving W. Davis, of Danielson, a bond salesman for Putnam and Company, of Hartford, was elected chairman of the meeting and Daniel J. Byrne, state banking commissioner and treasurer of the Putnam Savings bank was named secretary. The following resolution was adopted:

"That the stockholders of the First National Bank of Putnam here assembled do appoint John B. Byrne, a Putnam resident; Byron D. Bugbee, a retired merchant and member of the state board of control; Nathan D. Prince, vice president of the Windham County National bank, of Danielson, and vice president of the Hartford, Conn., Trust Company, of Hartford; John P. Grosvenor, proprietor of the Ben Grosvenor inn of Pomfret and Dr. George E. McClellan, retired physician and surgeon of Woodstock as a protective committee of the stockholders for the following purposes:

"(1). To ascertain as soon as may be possible the exact condition of the affairs of the bank and if practical to arrange for the reopening of the bank on a sound financial basis and under the best possible management.

"(2). To confer with the receiver and to take any proper action in assisting him in the proper realization upon the assets of the bank.

"(3). To take any proper action for the protection of the stockholders of the bank.

"(4). Voted that the protective committee be given full power to fill any vacancy in the committee and add to the committee as they are fit."

The meeting was attended by eight or ten women who are stockholders of the bank.

The way of the transgresser may be hard, but it's usually pretty smooth.

SCOUT PLANES FAIL TO FIND TRACE OF MISSING ITALIAN

Planes Were Forced to Give Up Search Because of Dense Fog—Italian Airman Has Not Been Heard From Since He Was Sighted by American War Vessels During Early Stages of Flight—Announcement is Made That There is No Cause For Alarm—Believe That Lieut. Locatelli Has Landed on a Fjord.—Army Air Service Officially Notified of Arrival of American Fliers in Greenland.

Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 22 (By the A. P.)—Scout planes which were despatched today from the American warships patrolling the North Atlantic to look for Lieut. Locatelli, Italian aviator, who left here with the American fliers yesterday, but failed to arrive at Frederiksdahl, Greenland, were forced by dense fog to return to their mother ships that evening without having found any trace of the missing airmen.

This was learned in a message received here tonight, from the Danish supply ship Gertrude Rask, which is at Angmagssalik, on the northeast coast of Greenland.

"Although very little news from Greenland was received today, it is believed here that there is no cause for alarm as to the fate of the Italian flier, who has not been heard from since he was sighted by the American war vessels during the earlier stage of the American fliers' hop from Iceland to Greenland.

Since yesterday, it is understood that the weather off the Greenland coast has been good, the winds favorable and the sea smooth and it is believed most likely that Lieutenant Locatelli made a landing on one of the fjords between Frederiksdahl and Ivigut on the west coast of Greenland.

The Gertrude Rask, which took up her station at Angmagsalik when it was expected the airmen would fly to that point, reported that she was clear of ice and that she expected to arrive here by Monday.

ARMY AIR SERVICE RECEIVES OFFICIAL NOTIFICATION

Washington, Aug. 22.—The army air service was officially advised tonight that the American world fliers had reached Greenland.

The information was contained in a message from the cruiser Milwaukee, which said that Lieut. Locatelli, the Italian aviator who started from Iceland with the Americans on their 825-mile hop, when last heard of was preceding the Americans by forty minutes.

The dispatch, which was undated was signed by Lieutenant Bissell of the army air service, and was filed by way of Louisburg, N. S., it said:

"Smith and Nelson (the American aviators) arrived safely at Frederikdal. Nothing definite from Locatelli who when last heard from was preceeding our planes by forty minutes details later."

The brief dispatch was read eagerly by officers, although the safe arrival of the Americans in Greenland had long been known from press dispatches.

During the day a dispatch was received by way of London from Lieutenant Marescalchi of the Italian navy on board the cruiser Richmond to Wing Commander Mario Calderara, air attache of the Italian embassy here, reporting that no word had been received from Lieutenant Locatelli.

Officers remained on duty here tonight, as they had continuously since the aviators took off from Iceland hoping to receive further advices concerning the last Italian aviator.

SMALL BOY DROWNED AT OCEAN BEACH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 22.—The first fatality of the season at Ocean Beach occurred this afternoon when James Eisenstock, 6, son of Mrs. Lillian Eisenstock, 6098 North street, Hartford, and temporarily residing at 357 Bentley avenue, Ocean Beach, was drowned while in bathing at the shore resort. The child made no outcry, and had he done so an immediate rescue could have been made, as there were hundreds of bathers on the shore at the time. It is believed that the youngster suffered a severe attack of indigestion and became helpless before his predicament was realized by the other bathers. A pulmotor was used ineffectually upon the child after several physicians had attempted to produce artificial respiration.

The child went to the beach early in the afternoon and about 2 o'clock entered the water, and close to where other bathers were enjoying the swimming. Among the bathers was Miss Pauline Chambers, colored, of 21 River Bend avenue. The young woman happened to look in the vicinity of where the child had been wading and she observed that the youngster was drowning, for the child was being carried on the water's surface and with the body limp. The young woman gave an outcry and bathers rushed to where the child was helpless. The first of the bathers to reach the child was Joseph Goldenberg, 697 Sigourney street, Hartford, who seized the youngster and hastened to the shore with him. That life was then extinct there is little doubt, for within a few minutes a half dozen physicians responded to a hurry call, but their efforts failed to revive the child. As a last resort to cause signs of life to return a telephone message was sent to Lawrence hospital for a pulmotor, and that instrument was rushed to the beach in the ambulance. Physicians used the pulmotor over an hour, but without signs of life returning.

COMMUNIST FORCES REICHSTAG TO ADJOURN

Berlin, Aug. 22.—(By the A. P.)—A lone communist today succeeded in defying the reichstag's rules of order and President Wallraf's bell for more than three hours, finally forcing an adjournment of parliament and compelling the cabinet members to retire from the government bench without having submitted the government's statement on the work of the international conference in London.

President Wallraf was helpless in the face of the communists' obstructionist tactics as the house rules do not permit of such an expedient as police intervention and Dr. Ernst Schwarz, a graded school teacher and communist deputy, therefore laughed off the president's order to quit the chamber.

Chancellor Marx, Foreign Minister Stresemann and Finance Minister Luther, who were prepared to discuss the London agreement, looked on in disgust while the reichstag's house committee sought to find a solution to the ludicrous situation.

Brussels, Aug. 22.—Belgium's economic evacuation of the Ruhr, which is a preliminary step to the military evacuation, began today when M. Hannecart, at the head of a Belgian technical delegation, left for Duesseldorf charged with the task of liquidating all the Belgian civil services.

LARGE REGISTRATION AT GIRL SCOUTS' CAMP

Gales Ferry, Aug. 22.—Now that the camp season is nearly over it is interesting to review the registration of Girl Scouts at Camp Merritt here. The following list shows the sections of New Egland represented at Camp Merritt and the number of weeks of vacation spent from July 5th: 139 scouts from Hartford, West Hartford, East Hartford, Windsor and Wethersfield, 349 weeks; 6 scouts from Simsbury, 12 weeks; 11 scouts from Tariffville, 12 weeks; 1 scout from Bristol, 2 weeks; 2 scouts from Seymour, 4 weeks; 1 scout from Bridgeport, 2 weeks; 2 scouts from Darien, 12 weeks; 8 scouts from Madison, 16 weeks; 3 scouts from Meriden, 6 weeks; 2 scouts from Norwich, 4 weeks; 21 scouts from Waterbury, 102 weeks; 2 scouts from Watertown, 4 weeks; 1 scout from West Cheshire, Conn., 2 weeks; 2 scouts from Rockland, Mass., 12 weeks; 30 scouts from Westerly, R. I., 32 weeks; total, 221 scouts, 572 weeks.

The average length of camp vacation has been about 2 1-2 weeks per scout. The schedule of Camp Merritt is adapted for the two-weeks' stay, but the fact that 33 scouts have stayed a month or more and that 16 have stayed for the season shows that the scouts are interested in the program beyond two weeks and enjoy the out-of-door life.

Camp Merritt activities are organized especially to help scouts to progress in their scout work. That is one reason why scouts enjoy staying beyond the two weeks, for they can go from tenderfoot to second class and to first class and merit badge work.

The following scouts, most of whom have been here all the season, or were here last year, have accomplished the most in swimming: Pearl Spirt of Waterbury, Jean Hogan of East Hartford, Carol Hopkins of Hartford, Angelica Carabello of Hartford, Betty Gage of Hartford and Dorothy Fowler of Hartford.

Much credit is due to the swimming instructors, Miss Helen Rose and Miss Beatrice Johnson. It is of interest also that the following scouts proved themselves sufficiently capable to assist in the swimming periods: Virginia Merritt of Troop 6, Hartford; Jean Hogan of Troop 1, East Hartford; Carol Hopkins of Troop 22, Hartford, and Pearl Spirt of Waterbury.

TWO BURGLAR SUSPECTS ARRESTED IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Aug. 22.—Following a chase through central streets early today, police captured two men who gave their names as Roy H. Tolbert, 25, of 181 West 135th street, New York city, and Anniello Porrocaro of 95 Everitt street, Boston, who were locked up on charges of burglary and idleness. The men were discovered by police following a burglary at the hardware store of the John H. Bassett company on Chapel street, where several hundred dollars' worth of rifles, revolvers, cutlery and other goods were taken. A quantity of the stolen articles are said by the police to have been found in the possession of the two men. In court the cases were continued until Aug. 28.

5-YEAR-OLD BOY DROWNED IN POND IN WATERBURY

The boy was picking berries on the bank near the dam when he lost his footing and fell in. His body was recovered 25 minutes later by Motorcycle Policeman John Mates.

The youngster with several other boys had climbed through a hole in the fence that surrounds the pond.

WILLIMANTIC

Over one hundred and sixty members of the girls' welfare organization of St. Mary's parish brought to a close their weekly meetings at Recreation park with a delightful outing and picnic at Crystal lake, Ellington, Thursday. Six trucks and an automobile were loaned for transportation purposes and a number of mothers and friends of the girls accompanied them. Bathing was the first thing on the program and was followed by luncheon. The group then enjoyed motorboat rides around, also took rides on the merry-go-round and had other amusements. The sporting events then got under way. Prizes were offered for the winners of the contests. In the 100 yard dash for women, Mrs. Boucher and Mrs. Desrosier broke the tape in the lead and Joseph Cyr outclassed the men in the party. Miss Esther Handfield led the girls. For a tug of war, prizes were awarded as follows Girls—Irene Lord, Alice Jolie, Jeannette Lariviere, Edna Kelley. Women—Mrs. Lord, Miss Lefreune, Miss Blaine, Miss Lariviere, Miss Lord, Miss Dubois, Mrs. Normandin, Mrs. Phaneuf, Miss Lamarche, Miss Rondeau, Miss Johnson, Miss Houle, Miss Verte(eullie, Miss Dumas, Miss Bernier, Miss Labelle and Miss Tellier. The party left the lake at 6 o'clock in the evening. The affair was in charge of the director, Rev. H. C. An unofficial survey of the progress in sidewalk building in the city shows that each year the walks of Willimantic are steadily nearing the 100 per cent. concrete mark. Tar and cinder walks are rapidly being replaced and this year, as in the past, entire neighborhoods have been beautified by the laying of new walks. The advantages of concrete are recognized and it appears the ambition of every property owner to secure better walks. The record for sidewalk applications this year is a remarkable one considering the fact that the city has been affected by the industrial slump.

Fred Service of South Willington came to the police station Friday morning and reported to Chief Allan MacArthur that the right rear fender of his automobile had collided with a bicycle owned and ridden by Albert Beauchemin of 16 Ives street earlier in the forenoon, near the junction of Railroad and Main streets. The boy was not injured, but there was some damage caused to the wheel. According to Service, the Beauchemin boy came from behind and in making a turn into Railroad street misjudged his distance and struck the fender of the car. No action was taken by the police.

"Is every fisherman a liar, or is every liar a fisherman?" A local restaurateur was heard to ask that question Friday morning. He was emulating other friends of George Shepaum and "Fatsy" Minihan who had just listened to their fish story. These two disciples of Izak Walton went to the winds of Colchester the night previous and treated the shy bullheads of Small pond to some choice bait. The fishermen brought back some good sized members of the fin family, but it was noticed that they did not bear hook marks, and the natural belief here is that the fish died of indigestion and were picked up as they floated on the top of the water.

On Main street, near the foot of High street, there was a collision of automobiles Thursday night when cars owned by Fabryan Luciante of 20 Mansfield avenue and George H. Russ of 23 Whiting street came together. Luciante was traveling east on Main street and Russ was proceeding in the opposite direction. The former turned into High street and in doing so his machine collided with that driven by Russ, causing some damage which Luciante agreed to pay for. The police were notified.

CAMPERS SORROW FOR DEATH OF COSTELLO LIPPITT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic Campgreund, Aug. 23.—Beautiful weather brought out over a hundred in the morning watch service, held in a sunny corner, of the grove. Rev. W. H. Bath, of Norwich District superintendent, had charge, owing to the fact that Rev. J. W. Carter of Jewett City was delayed in coming. The leader spoke briefly on the theme, Joy, and a number of testimonies were given.

The several periods of institute instruction were carried on during the morning by Dr. Durgin, Dean Althearn and Mrs. Cora Downs Stevens.

At 10.20 Prof. Clelland continued his instructive expositions of Scripture, his theme being Micah. He lived near the Philistines, where he could see the threatening powers of Assyria and Egypt. Like Amos he was a peasant-former. Micah stressed the fact that no geographical or ecclesiastical boundaries hem in the kingdom of God, but that it lies within the hearts of men in their individual communion with God. Micah's great message was "What doth God require of thee but to do justice, love mercy and walk humbly with thy God?"

At the Stafford Springs House at 1 o'clock the speaker was Rev. W. H. Bath, district superintendent, and at 6 Rev. J. R. Miller, of East Thompson.

The children's meeting was held in Epworth chapel at 1 p. m., conducted by the Norwich District Junior League superintendent, Miss Ruth LaFarge, of Hockanum.

At 2 p. m. the speaker was a former Norwich District Epworth League president, Rev. Victor V. Sawyer, of Attleboro, Mass.

Prayer was offered by Rev. F. L. Grant, of Warren, Mass. Mr. Sawyer read from Paul's letter to the Philippians, and Phil. 3:6 was his text, "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." Jesus reveals the heart of the Father, the brotherliness of men, the power of choice for God, the opportunities for service, and shows us how to meet the crises of life. Mr. Sawyer was also the evening speaker.

The group picture of institute faculty and members was taken by the large evergreen tree, near the upper entrance to the campground, right after dinner yesterday.

At the close of the afternoon address the annual institute picnic was held in a grove below the lower entrance of the camp, and was under the leadership of Rev. Frank W. Gray of Rockville. Games and stunts were enjoyed, after which there was a basket lunch.

The leader of the Saturday morning watch is Rev. H. H. Conklin, of Danielson. The preacher Saturday afternoon and evening is Bishop John W. Hamilton, of Washington, D. C.

A large audience fills the tabernacle each evening. The usual praise service was held at 7 o'clock Thursday evening. Prayer was offered by Rev. W. E. Dunnack, of Burnside. The sermon was by Dr. J. Francis Cooper, president of East Greenwich Academy. He read Romans VIII. He first spoke of the work of the academy, which he said had been going under one name or another for 122 years, and since 1841 has been under Methodist control. His text was Romans 1:16. The reason we should not be ashamed of the Gospel of Christ is because it is ideal, it is an obligation, it brings comfort, and because it proclaims a heaven for believers.

The institute held a grand pow wow at 8.30, which was under the direction of the fourth vice president of the Norwich District Epworth league, Rev. F. W. Gray of Rockville. The four tribes which make up the institute membership, the Mohawks, Pequots, Senecas and Mohegans, each tried to outdo the others in amusing stunts. Previous to this a piano solo was given by Wilfred Haywoods, of Pawtucket, who responded to an encore, When the Minister Comes to Tea, was excellently rendered by Miss Mabel McKinley of Norwich, who gave an encore. Miss Lucille Gray, daughter of Rev. F. W. Gray, skillfully played a piano solo and was likewise encored. The Mohawks then put on the drama, Tiz-a-bug, the King. This was followed by a solo, 'Tis Morning, by Miss Lenore Elwood, of New London. She responded to an encore. The Pequots followed with a radio concert conducted by Rev. R. C. Stimpson of Vernon and Quarryville, who with an assistant managed a marvelous radio contraption as tribe members sang by the screened piano. The Senecas interested the audience with a pantomime melodrama, the text of which was read by Mrs. F. W. Gray. With Rev. Jerome Greer as reader, the Mohegans entertained with a thrilling film scenario, A Daring Rescue. At the close, A. D. Zabriskie and assistants served ice cream and cakes to the audience as they marched by his table. Miss Ruth Fisk of Danielson acted as cashier.

Noted About the Grove.

A beautiful bouquet of gladioli and lilies adorned the piano Thursday, which had just been brought up from the submarine base at New London by one of the executive committee of the camp association, Courtland E. Colver.

Visitors included Mrs. F. L. Lathrop, daughter Marion and Miss Mary J. Ford, of the West Side, Norwich.

C. B. Rider of New York is making his first visit to Willimantic camp ground.

The campers have greatly enjoyed the splendid weather. Cool and sometimes showery nights have been succeeded by pleasant, warmer days.

New arrivals at the East Hampton House are Mrs. Samuel Thatcher and Mrs. George K. White.

At the South Manchester House are Mrs. Lelia D. Abbey, Miss Florence Wilson, Miss Ethel Palmer, Miss Marion Brookings and Miss Barbara Fenton, from South Manchester; Mrs. Leonard Main and grandson, Douglas, Stonington, and Miss Gertrude Main of Hartford.

Mrs. Julia Hutt, of South Manchester is at her cottage, 59 Wesley Circle for a fortnight.

At the Uncasville House is the caretaker, Mrs. Agnes J. Phillips of New London; also Mrs. A. C. Kellogg and daughter, Elizabeth, Miss Alice F. Potter, Miss Rena Unger, from Uncasville; Mrs. A. Ward, Mrs. Oliver Avignon, Mrs. Olin Beebe and daughter Carrie, from Vernon.

The news of the death of ex-Mayor Costello Lippitt, as told in Friday's Bulletin, brought genuine sorrow to many of the cottagers on the camp grounds. For many years he and the late Mrs. Lippitt were familiar figures upon the grounds, and were ever active in carrying forward the work of the association. Mr. Lippitt occupied his fine cottage on Haven avenue, Pinehurst, and daily in the afternoon gave pleasant greetings as he climbed the hill, coming from his work at the bank, or from his office in Hartford, where he was state treasurer some years ago. For many years he was on the executive committee and other committees of the campmeeting association.

The trolley tracks have been laid on Main Street and work on this street is about ready for excavation by the steam shovel. Handling traffic is a hard problem just at present and traffic officers were kept busy directing worried motorists in the right directions.

STRIKE AT WARREN MILL SETTLED DURING FRIDAY

Stafford Springs, Aug. 22.

The strike of the employes of the dyeing department of the Warren Woolen Company plant, which has been effective for the past two weeks, terminated this morning when several of the strikers returned to work and others made application to be taken back. The ten per cent. increase in wages for which the men struck, was not granted by the company and the strikers returned with the same conditions prevailing as existed two weeks ago.

This morning the cases of John DeDait, Angelo Barel, John DeCouti and Guido DeDait, all of this town, and all former employes of the Warren Woolen Company in the dye-house, were nolled by Deputy Judge E. K. Taft on the payment of costs, amounting in all to $10.50. The men were arrested Thursday by Officer Henry Heinold of the State Police barracks, on charges of intimidation, after complaints were made to the police by the Superintendent and officers of the Warren Woolen Company. The men had threatened and detained the strike breakers who had been replacing them it was claimed, and the arrests followed. Robert H. Fisk represented the men this morning, and yesterday arranged with their friends to furnish bonds for their release, pending their appearance in Court this morning.

Following an understanding between the Assistant Prosecuting Attorney, Willis H. Reed and counsel for the men, that no further obstruction or intimidation of the present employees in the dyeing department would occur, the cases were nolled.

August 7th twelve employes of the dyeing department quit work, after being refused the 10 per cent. increase in wages demanded. The Company continued to refuse the increase, which it felt was not justified, while the strikers were equally opposed to terminating the strike. There were several complaints previous to yesterday about the behavior of the strikers, but no action was taken until State Policeman Heinold was called and made the arrests.

MAXWELL
Initiates a New Order

The public in general probably has no adequate realization of the great advances which have recently been made in motor car engineering.

It is a fact that the good Maxwell, together with the Chrysler Six, has literally accomplished a revolution in motor car results.

If you have not familiarized yourself with the good Maxwell since Chrysler engineers began their work with it, you cannot begin to appreciate what it means to thorough satisfaction and economical, care-free motoring.

Its engineering design and its fine materials are directly responsible for the statements of owners, that the good Maxwell now costs less to maintain than any car they have ever known.

When you ride in the good Maxwell, be prepared for a quietness and a smoothness that you probably never expected from a four-cylinder engine.

One reason why you don't feel any trace of vibration when you ride behind the Maxwell motor, is the fact that the reciprocating parts of the engine are balanced to the fraction of an ounce.

Another reason is a floating platform spring mounting under the front end of the motor—a wonderfully effective device which is exclusive to Maxwell.

Owners will tell you that gasoline economy generally averages 24 miles to the gallon.

With this economy is coupled performance that would be gratifying in a car of far greater cost and power.

You accelerate from 5 to 25 miles an hour in eight seconds, when you drive a good Maxwell.

Its engine, with displacement only a fraction over 185 cubic inches, develops power that will take you anywhere a car can go—and some places where some cars cannot go.

The car is a revelation in ease of steering. Its ease of riding is equally remarkable.

If you really want to know how far four-cylinder engineering practice has advanced—take a ride in the good Maxwell. Nothing else can give you a full realization of the new order of things which the good Maxwell has initiated.

Broadway Theater

The management of the Broadway theater has always shown a disposition to give its patrons the best that is obtainable in the motion picture market, and that it has succeeded there is not the slightest doubt. As a further evidence of getting only the best for the picture - going public of this city we cite the fact that beginning tomorrow they will show the most unusual and as the same time the greatest production that has yet reached the silver sheet, namely After Six Days, featuring Moses and the Ten Commandments, in 10 reels. In speaking of this subject it brings to mind a news item we read recently, that there were more copies of the Bible sold each year in this country than all the ten "best sellers" put together, which proves conclusively that the inhabitants of the United States are not as bad as a lot of foreign lecturers would picture us. We never imagined, however, that one producer would burden himself with the task of transplanting the Old Testament into one evening's screen entertainment; nevertheless this has been accomplished in such a manner that it has met with wonderful commendation wherever it has been shown. It is said that it took over five years to make this picture and we believe it; it is said too that it required a cast of over ten thousand people, and further it is said that the production cost over $3,000,000. We wish to congratulate the management of the Broadway theater for their foresight in booking After Six Days for we feel sure that it will prove most interesting and at the same time highly entertaining.

Short subjects include a little novelty made during and at the Wampeer Ball recently held in San Francisco Here you'll see twenty five stars woven into a unique comedy novelty.

A comedy, news and enlarged orchestra are the other attractions.

When one considers the fact that the Ten Commandments is playing everywhere at $1.65 prices it certainly is a treat to be able to see it at the prices to be charged by the Broadway management.

There is the possibility that one may declare nearly everyone else but himself for a time, but eventually the world becomes wise. You Can't Get Away With It.

Gouverneur Morris, taking the foregoing quotation as his theme, has pointed out an object lesson which millions of girls have learned from bitter experience. William Fox has produced a motion picture from the story, which ought to serve as a lesson in advance to millions of others.

It goes to tell of a working girl, unequipped to battle with life, who accepts the luxury her wealthy employer offers at the price of self respect. She pays and so too, does he. They both learn that You Can't Get Away With It.

From rural sections complaints of farmers are coming in that motorists are making raids on their gardens and carrying away quantities of food stuffs, such as sweet corn, summer squash, green tomatoes, etc. These complaints are but repetitions of others heard in recent years—since the use of the automobile was become so general. It seems needless—probably hopeless—to point out to these raiding automobilists that stealing from gardens is a serious offence against the law. Getting caught at it—and it is not difficult to trace strangers, each automobile having license plates, will mean severe puniahment. A farmer works too hard for what he gets to be preyed upon by less worthy and less honest people.

Growing out of the bank disaster in Putnam, many senseless stories and rumors are gaining circulation in all the surrounding territory, including Danielson. These unfounded stories are unwarranted and dangerous and do no one any good.

PUTNAM

The Putnam police were called upon to investigate an automobile accident Friday in which three automobiles figured, but only one was damaged, that of Leo Duseault of Putnam. The Duseault car was forced off the road and struck the highway fence, damaging the car to the extent of $25. It is stated that a car driven by George Ethier of Putnam tried to pass the Duseault car on an incline south of the David Clark corner, Killingly avenue, just as another car came down the hill in the opposite direction. This caused the confusion that resulted in the accident.

With subscriptions to the proposed new Citizens' National bank over $194,000, and more coming in daily, the most talked about feature of the local situation Friday was the statement emanating from the office of the comptroller of the currency in Washington, which many people took to mean that the First National bank would be reorganized and again open its doors. While this may come to pass some time, there is nothing in the statement from Washington to that effect. If the statement is digested carefully it will be noted that it was given out admittedly without any knowledge of conditions at the Putnam bank and only went so far as to state that the old bank would be given every opportunity to reorganize and renew business. This, it is said, is always the attitude of the comptroller of the currency. If a bank goes into a receiver's hands and can later work out its own salvation, it is allowed to do so. It has been stated publicly, on the best of authority, that there is no chance of the First National bank ever functioning again as a bank. If there have been developments to change this aspect of the situation, it has not been divulged from the source of the original information that in its then condition no person or persons would dare to take over the old institutin and that, as expressed by Mr. Searls at the citizens' meeting, "it is as dead as a cooked goose." Mr. Searls' only qualification to this remark was that he was reday and willing to be convinced that the bank was not dead.

In spite of what has been stated, the citizens' committee empowered to proceed with the formation of a new bank will proceed along that line until the possibility of the old bank reopening becomes established. No statement as to the possible reopening of the old bank has come from the receiver or bank examiners, still on the job at the bank here, but it is understood that, linked with the statement from Washington, has been some inference drawn from statements made by some of the bank directors that reopening was within the realm of possibility.

It is now stated that subscriptions to stock of the proposed new bank will be received up to $225,000 in the event that it should be deemed advisable to increase the capital and surplus, originally placed at $150,000, to that amount. Subscriptions received since the original amount sought was reached have, however, been accepted conditionally.

The feeling so strongly evidenced at the last general citizens' meeting, that Putnam wants a bank owned and controlled by those resident in the local banking community, still prevails. It is not believed for the best interests of this community to have a bank opened by interests and money wholly outside of the community. In the event that the old bank can be reopened under reorganization of local interests, those working to establish a new bank would, without doubt, withdraw; but if an attempt should be made to reorganize with the help of foreign interests, the situation would bear a different aspect and can only be met if it arises.

It is understood that there is a movement being undertaken quietly to prepare to furnish a bond when Gilpatric is presented in the U. S. district court to plead to the indictment against him, at which time a bond will doubtless be ordered. Those interested in this movement are still loyal to one who befriended them in time of need.

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS DUE TO TANLAC TREATMENT

Mrs. Benson Says World's Famous Tonic Banished Troubles a Year Ago—Was Miserable Following Flu.

"Tanlac has certainly meant health and happiness to me, for I have not had a sick day since it banished my troubles over a year ago," declared Mrs. Lena Benson, 146 Lancaster St., Portland, Maine, recently.

"Influenza left me so weak and miserable that I thought I would never be myself again. My appetite was woefully lacking, I could eat only soups, broths and toast and was as thin as a shadow. And nervous—why, I was nearly frantic and would go for a week without sound sleep, I had terrible pains all through my body and suffered so I would just sit down and cry.

"I will always bless Tanlac. It ended every ailment, built up my weight and made me stronger than ever, I now eat meats, potatoes, cabbage, etc., and all the fixings, sleep and feel fine, and my friends all remark how healthy I look. I would not be without Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills, for constipation; made and recommended by the manufacturers of TANLAC.

THE NORTH ATLANTIC FLIGHT.

In view of the excellent progress that has been made by the American aviators in their flight around the world there has been a growing confidence in their ability to successfully compete the circuit. This grew as they accomplished their flight across the Pacific, as they progressed down through Japan, China and southern Asia. It was anticipated that their flight across Europe would be accomplished without difficulty and the one big impediment to the completion lay in getting back home across the Atlantic. Even then it had not been anticipated that so much trouble would be experienced from ice which clogged the harbors of Greenland along the east coast.

Getting from Iceland to Greenland forced the changing of plans and route. It made it necessary to cover the greatest distance of the whole circuit in one hop, and because of the uncertainty of the weather and the load of fuel that had to be carried for the long trip there was a feeling of uncertainty about the safe arrival at Fredericksdal. Such, however, appears to have been unwarranted. The skillful operation of the machines during the flight of 826 miles was in keeping with the fine flying that has been done throughout the trip, and it brings them now to within one hop of this continent and so close to the United States that it should be but a few days under the proper conditions before they are once more on American territory.

Every hop serves to strengthen the belief that the first flight around the world is about to be completed. It has been shown that such an undertaking is faced with grave peril. Others have tried it and failed. United States aviators have already accomplished what no other fliers have. They have already gained distinct honors by their flying and once they reach their own country there is little reason to believe but what they will there will be a new record established. How long it will last, if obtained, no one would dare to predict.

HANDICAPPED FIRE SERVICE.

Great value is attached to a rapid response to a fire call if the work of the fire fighters is going to be as effective as possible. It is during the early stages of a fire that the most telling work can be accomplished. Prompt measures directed at the point where the fire starts accomplishes the same benefit of the proverbial stitch in time saving nine.

The motorization of fire departments was therefore regarded as a most effective means of getting quick action and better results. It has unquestionably accomplished much in this direction. It has been apparent that much quicker responses could be made than when the apparatus was drawn by horses and time saved has prevented losses in life and prophe fast developments, which does not suffer from a similar situation.

But fire departments are not alone in their appreciation of the value of motor transportation. Autos have today almost supplanted the horse in city streets, and it is in no way surprising when the chief of the Buffalo fire department declares that in spite of the motorization of fire departments, "the firemen today cannot reach the scene of the blaze as quickly as in the old days of the horse drawn vehicles, due to the ever increasing traffic congestion."

In speaking for Buffalo, Chief Davis points out the troubles of other fire departments. There is hardly a city which has its parking problems and which is required at frequent intervals to change its traffic regulations in order to meet the fast developments.

Streets which are clogged with automobiles, especially those which are parked, and which create congestion, must of necessity prevent speed, and that prevention when the fire apparatus is held up is a serious matter. The parking problem is one which involves more than the fire department for it interferes with ordinary vehicular traffic, but where the fire department is blocked and prevented from rendering the service for which it is prepared and intended, there is a situation presented which calls for early and effective relief.

DEBT PAYMENTS.

There continues to be heard some talk about the cancellation of the war debts by this country, or at least a scaling down of them, as the result of the agreement which now seems likely to be concluded as the result of the conference in London.

According to the representatives of Italy they possess a feeling of confidence that this country will depart from its demand for the payment of war debts and that it will yield to the pleas of the European countries much in the same way that the European countries have yielded in order to bring about the acceptance of the Dawes report.

Just what the Italian representatives are basing their opinions on is not clearly disclosed. They feel that the European countries have made certain sacrifices in behalf of the settlement of the deplorable European situation, or sacrifices that will be directly beneficial to them, but just what reason there is for this country to recede from its position because they have compromised among themselves is not revealed.

European countries invariably put their demands so high that they can accept reductions and still be satisfied. The United States is making only legitimate demands. It has no desire to contribute to the war funds of Europe and by collecting the debts this country believes that it will be offering one of the best war preventives.

This country hasn't been seeking concessions. It doesn't believe Europe has any to offer. It wants none. It realizes that the European countries have realized through the war settlements, but we wanted no part therein.

Great Britain has realized the importance of settling the debts. Some of the smaller nations have, while there are others which have delayed for various reasons without denying the existence of the obligations. The settlement of the reparation problem permits of arrangements being completed concerning debt payments, for which no pressure has been brought to bear thus far.

GOOD ADVERTISING.

If you have done any traveling in this southeastern part of Massachusetts you have probably noticed that there isn't a road of any consequence on which the way to Brockton is not designated. Presumably it prevails in a much wider area and of course there is a purpose in all this. Brockton is getting ready for its fair and it doesn't intend that anyone shall be kept away by not knowing how to get there. But in addition to those who are interested in going to the shoe city for that purpose the manner in which the name of the city is kept before the traveling public helps to create a desire to see what kind of a city it is that engages in such an effective kind of advertising, for while the only thing on the arrow is the word Brockton it is nevertheless good advertising.

The idea is one that might be employed by other cities which have fairs, Norwich included, or by communities which are desirous of giving all possible aid in bringing visitors to its doors with the least possible trouble. In these days well posted roads are necessary. It is not required by those who are residents of neighboring towns but by that great army of automobilists which is daily seeking out this place or that, as well as places of special or historical interest.

Norwich has more reasons than the county fair to attract visitors. So has Brockton and other cities, and the frequency of the posted signs indicating the road thereto provides not only valuable aid but excellent publicity. Strangers are particularly desirous of this very assistance.

NEEDLESS NOISE.

Needless noises may not be restricted to any one particular kind. The list might surprise you if you undertook to prepare it, but there is no doubt but what the automobile horn under the guidance of those who fail to think what the effect may be upon others occupies a place near the top.

There is such a thing as a judicious use of the auto horn and there is also the wild and unjustified honking. In regard to this situation the Scientech club of Indianapolis, in deploring the disregard of the rights and welfare of those seeking relief in hospitals, has adopted a resolution pledging themselves "to use all proper means to discourage all annoying noises and particularly in the vicinity of hospitals. We urge and recommend to the board of safety of the city of Indianapolis that necessary provision be made for enforcing the city ordinance and punishing those who make such loud and unusual noises in such zones of quiet."

This gives recognition to the annoyance that comes from needless noises, and it gives special recognition to the disturbance of hospital patients, but sight should not be lost of the fact that all those who are annoyed by unnecessary noise are not in the hospitals, though there is no telling how much their removal there may be hastened by such conditions.

The idea of keeping down the amount of noise in the vicinity of hospitals deserves hearty endorsement, but for the same good reasons there is excellent ground for exercising the same degree of care elsewhere. Consideration for others is something that gives no promise of being over cultivated. When it can be so easily done and bring such relief to a much greater number than those who make the noise realize, it deserves more attention.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

General Dawes speaks in Maine today and, as usual, he will have something to say.

The man on the corner says: Don't fail to take in that close up to the planet Mars tonight.

With the flight to Greenland accomplished the way to a successful circling of the globe in the air seems cleared.

More than those at the shore have a chance now to brag about how many blankets they have to pull on in August.

Vacations cannot end too soon for those cats and dogs which have been left at home to depend on the mercy of the neighbors.

While the vacation season is coming to an end, there is some satisfaction to be felt over the fact that the fairs will soon be here.

Germany might have prevented the occupation of the Ruhr. It has an opportunity now to hasten the withdrawal of the French forces.

Norwich hasn't been and isn't able to meet the demands for electric power. How long before it will be necessary to spend another quarter of a million on the municipal plant?

The earth will be nearer to Mars on Saturday than it has been in a century. It would be a fine time to touch off that rocket with a message to the Martians which one professor has been promising for so long.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

What does the expression, "America for Americans" actually mean? ought to mean something big, and possibly it does. As we hear these words fall from the lips of the platform orator, we clap our hands with the rest of the crowd, and say to the nine-pin sitting next to us, "isn't that great?" But as the applause dies down, and these words slowly sink into our thick cerebelluma, we find ourselves asking this question, what does it mean? On the walls of a certain banquet chamber were these words written: "Mene, mene, takel, upharsin." Now these words sounded well, in fact they had quite a musical sound, but they were the announcement in letters of fire that a certain nation was doomed. If by "Americans" you mean that this country should always continue under the exclusive control of those who have descended straight from Plymouth Rock, you are simply reading the death warrant of America. There are not enough of the old Puritan stock left either in quantity or quality to do the work this mighty nation requires.

If, however, by that magic word "Americans" you mean first grade men and women, whatever be their creed, race or color, whose meat and drink it is to abide by the Constitution of the United States, and who are willing to work tooth and nail to make this nation the one outstanding country of the earth, then let all the people shout "Amen!" The history of the past has shown clearly that the only thing that will make a nation last is the infusion of new blood mixed with holiness. But that new blood must be of the highest. It must be free from physical, mental and moral disease. That new blood must seek to enrich America and not to exploit her. This better order will not come while so many aliens are smashing the supremacy of law in the face. "Let us get only the best, and put only the best in power" be our national watchword!

The "coming of Mars" is the leading idea in the minds of astronomers just at present. Please do not laugh at the statement, and "neither let your heart be afraid," because this "coming" does not mean landing at New York, but approaching within 36,000,000 miles of this planet, which will occur today, the nearest Mars has come to us in one hundred and twenty years. But when we remember that the red planet at the other extreme of its orbit is 156,000,00, miles from us, it shows that it has become quite friendly, and wants to hear every word of these presidential speeches of acceptance. What else have we sufficiently attractive to induce her to make a perilous journey of 120,000,000 of miles? Great Preparations are being made to determine, if possible, if this red planet is inhabited. If so they must be differently constituted physically than we.

If there was ever a need for the application of the principles of civil service reform in public affairs, that time is now. Because the roots of lawlessness are found in partisan politics the Connecticut Civil Service Association makes this pronouncement: "We believe the fundamental need everywhere is to provide for a system of appointment, promotion and removal in the civil service, founded on the principle that public office is a public trust, admission to which and promotion in which shall depend upon proved fitness, and removal from which shall be only for non-political reasons." This would ward off the iniquitous practice of paying off political debts by appointment to office for which there was no particular fitness. It should be competence and not mere usefulness in times of election that should qualify for office.

We believe that sending threatening letters to a judge while listening to evidence tending to palliate the sentence for crime, however horrible that crime may be, should be severely reprimanded. Our system of jurisprudence is built on justice, and it is the duty of our judges to see that justice is administered in all cases. Our laws recognize that even criminals have certain rights that ought to be protected. Take away this right, i. e., trial by judges and juries and you introduce mob rule which ends in lynchings which is not the administration of justice, but only the gratification of brute passions. It is more than a relapse back to the old Hebrew custom of "an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth," but it introduces anarchy which defeats all progress and ultimately assassinates civilization itself. The life of Judge Caverly has been threatened unless he immediately sends Leopold and Loeb to the gallows. In other words the rabble would control our courts of law.

If the vermiform appendix, which is giving so much trouble in these days, could only write its biography it would doubtless be interesting reading. Has this semi-organ taken to rampaging only in recent days, or has it always "raised Cain" under some other name than appendicitis? A more difficult question is, what is the pesky thing there for? To the writer's mind it is strong evidence that man is the product of a long evolutionary process. In previous animal life the vermiform appendix was a real organ that functioned properly, but in the ascending scale of life it became less and less needful. In a feeble way it now attempts to function while the physical system no longer requires it. Appendicitis is nothing more than the spasm of a dying animal, and in axes to come the improved form of life will have no vermiform appendix.

"Away from sight is away from mind" is a saying more pathetically true than it ought to be. How soon do we forget men of the first order, who impressed their powerful personalities upon their day and generation! When the writer was a boy—and that is less than one hundred years ago—no man, by voice and pen, was more influential than Henry Ward Beecher. He occupied the same place in the sphere of morals and religion that Horace Greeley did in the political field. But today rarely is either man mentioned in public print. No man, living or dead, is more quotable than Beecher. I ran across this the other day from him: "Some men want to have religion like a dark lantern, and carry it in their pocket, where nobody but themselves can get any good from it." Here he puts in a nutshell the difference between religion as something to be mulled over in study or cloister, a mere intellectual formula, and that living, useful thing that alone can give to man his highest working hypothesis.

Before long the platform performer—highly paid in most cases—will enter upon his campaign of political salvation, i. e., from his point of view. We can already see him with face flushed, voice strident, both fists clenched, arms slashing the air, consigning wicked republicans, or foolish democrats, or "progressives" who are both wicked and foolish, to that "bourne from whence no traveller returneth." Whether all this talk will do any good or not is a question, but, at any rate, it will get the bile out of the orator's system, which in many cases has already reached the acute stage, and—what is of far greater importance—will put a few dollars into their pockets which are needed in mending their badly broken political fences. The writer's advice is that we do not throw rotten eggs at them nor shoot them when they appear on the public platform.

NORWICH MEN SETTLED HUNTINGTON, MASS.

One Hundred and fifty years ago the first tavern and grist mill were being built at Huntington, Mass., and settlers were commencing to make homes under the new charter granted by the legislature in 1773 making this locality the town of Norwich, Mass., according to a recent article in the Springfield Republican.

The history of the town dates back farther than this, however. In the year 1736 the Great and General Court of the Province of Massachusetts Bay appointed and authorized John Stoddard, Ebenezer Pomeroy, and Thomas Ingersoll to purchase rights of land in Housatonick township (near Pittsfield) in bringing forward a settlement of Indians above Mountment mountain. The deal was made with David Ingersoll and in exchange they gave him 4800 acres of undeveloped country a part of which now makes the town of Huntington. This piece of land started east of Rockhouse mountain (about one mile below the town) and followed along the west branch of the Westfield river, past the present site of Chester, and then went about one mile from the present town house in Montgomery and when that town was incorporated in 1780 a large part of this town tract was included.

When the town of Norwich was incorporated in 1773, this grant was entirely included and formed the south end of the town. The small mountain called Rockhouse was the corner and from this point the tract was bordered by Norwich on the northwest, Westfield on the southeast, Glasgow, now Blandford on the southwest and Montgomery on the northeast. The east, middle and west branches of the Westfield river were included in this tract and the original road from Westfield through this town to Chesterfield and Worthington forded the river at Rockhouse, continuing along the east bank of the east branch. This road is still in existence and can be seen along the railroad track and up through the woods and pastures of the farms on the east side of the town.

Isaac Mixer's Tavern

Along this road Isaac Mixer bought a parcel of land and built the first tavern called Mixer's Tavern. The exact location is not known but it is believed to have been about one mile north of the town near the east end of Norwich bridge where the old road from Westfield to Chesterfield connected with the old stage route from Hatfield and Northampton to Pittsfield. The tavern was built and license granted in 1764. The Moore farm, one of the best farms in this section, is located about one quarter of a mile from this point and was for many years the resting place for travelers. Horses were exchanged here for making the Northampton-Pittsfield stage trip.

Most colonies of Massachusetts were originated by the Legislature giving grants to a certain number of proprietors to hold as tenants in common. David Ingersoll, who was then the proprietor, granted portions of this land to settlers and when this section was sold in 1762, there were 19 families here.

In the year 1762 when the colony was embarrassed as to finances, this section, known as Grant No. 9, was sold with 16 others. It was bought by William Williams for 1500 pounds. He did not take possession and it later passed into possession of John Chandler, Timothy Paine and John Murray. The 19 settlers, who were here at this time, had trouble with the new owners and all but three families pulled stakes and left the section. The new comers cut the property into 100-acre lots and let the settlers who came here draw claims with the following provisions: That they agree to build a house, cultivate a certain quantity of land, help build roads, and maintain a church.

Drove Cows and Sheep to Town

The people who came here to settle were poor, but willing workers. They found the country very hilly and rocky and when one sees the many miles of stone walls running over these hills, he can imagine how many hours of untiring effort these old-timers must have spent in clearing the land for cultivating. They found that the land was best fitted for sheep raising and for many years thousands of head of sheep grazed on the hillsides. Many of the settlers made a business of driving droves of cows and sheep from the larger places to this town in the spring, caring for them during the summer and driving them back to their owners in the fall. To show the sturdiness of these people it is said that one John Smith, a tall, muscular young man, who, not having means of conveyance was obliged to travel here on foot, from a town many miles distant. He carried his belongings on his back. Among them was a five-pound iron kettle. The headstone at his wife's grave which is on Chester Hill is dated 1767 and is the oldest in town.

Each lot was numbered and the minister's lot, consisting of eight acres, was No. 18. The church now standing on Chester Hill was built where his house stood and the school house and burying ground are also on this lot. None of the first houses now remain standing.

Where Would They Worship?

The first church was built in 1767. In honor of one of the proprietors, the town was named Murrayfield and incorporated and the first town-meeting called in 1765. The early settlers, men of extraordinary strength and endurance, with adventurous spirit, were hot-headed and the first town controversy started the following year. The trouble started over the finding of a suitable place for worship, the hill folks wanting to have the church on the hill, and the folk in the valley desiring to have it below. In 1765 a special town-meeting was called and it was then voted to have a minister who would preach half of the Sundays on the hill and the other half at a house near the Middle river. This arrangement did not satisfy the people and so prominent men from the surrounding towns were called in to investigate and the following agreement was drawn up:—

That: Preaching will be held on the hill two-thirds of the Sundays and one-third in Mixer's Tavern near the river. The people carried on this arrangement for three years until 1772 when a vote was passed at a town-meeting that all services at the river would be discontinued and the church building on the hill be used for all future services.

This led the settlers in the river section, what is now Huntington, to petition for a separation from the township of Murrayfield. The men most interested in this separation were originally from Norwich, Conn., and in 1773 after the legislature had granted the separation, the town was called Norwich. The first valuation list shows 55 tax payers.

Families Followed Mill Building

The first grist mill was built in 1764 on the bank of the middle branch.

Other mills were built shortly after this and within a distance of three miles along the river there are trenches and remains of eight of these old mills.

As mills were built families commenced to settle here and soon a large community was established with the center of the town where the park now stands, forming a popular stopping place at the cross roads. A tavern was built there and operated by a family of Falleys and this section was for some time known as Falley's cross-road, later changing to Chester Factories and in the year 1855 was known by the present name of Huntington. There is now a population of over 1600 with paper mills, woolen mills and several sawmills and woodworking plants.

Mrs. Fiske Twice Won Recognition

Minnie Madiern Fiske, who came of a theatrical family spent most of her girlhood on the stage, was a star at 16 retired, and when she returned to the footlights had to work her way to public recognition once more.

In New Orleans, where she was born, plain Marie Augusta Davey, her mother was an actress known to the public as Lizzie Madiern, who reared the little one in the theater. At three the baby made her debut as the Duke of Yorke in Richard the Third and before she was ten she had appeared with many of the stars of the day. Small for her age, bright and with a tangle of auburn hair, she became a favorite.

Theatrical work requires changes and her schooling was obtained in New Orleans, Cincinnati, St. Louis and other cities, but she assumed them in the class room. She played child and old woman parts and at 12 portrayed Louise in The Two Orphans. At 16 she became the star, Minnie Maddern, in Fogg's Ferry, and appeared in Caprice. Other successes followed and she became prominent in the dramatic world.

At 24 she married Harrison Grey Fiske, and retired from the stage, appearing only occasionally for charity. After two years of rest she returned and opened her tour in Hester Crewe written by her husband, but it had to be withdrawn at the end of a week. And the public had changed or had forgotten, so time was necessary for it to realize that Minnie Maddern Fiske was the Minnie Maddern of former years.

Appearing in some of Ibsen's plays Mrs. Fiske attracted favorable attention. Then came her production of Tess of the D'Urbervilles which won immediate and lasting success. Later she presented Becky Sharp, Marv of Magdala, Leah Kleshna, Rosmersholm and other notable productions. She managed her own companies, fought the Theatrical Syndicate, and became more popular than ever.

Today she is considered one of America's greatest actresses and also is beloved and admired for her interest in public affairs both within and outside of the theatrical world.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Crown Prince Olaf of Norway, who has announced his intention of visiting America at an early date, is a first cousin of the Prince of Wales, who sails for America today. Only a little more than a month ago the heir to the Norwegian throne reached his 21st birthday, which event was made the occasion for a popular celebration in Christiania. Appleton House, near Sandringham, England, was the birthplace of Prince Olaf. His mother was the English Princess Maud when she was married to Prince Charles of Denmark. Their son was christened Alexander Christian Edward Frederick. Two years after his birth came the severing of the united kingdoms of Norway and Sweden, when the Norwegian throne was offered to and accepted by the young Danish prince. So it was that the Princess Maud of England became Queen Maud of Norway. Prince Charles of Denmark became King Haakon VII., and the infant Alexander became Crown Prince Olaf.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Helping the Sick Girl

"Well, I must hurry back to the Dear Old Bramble Patch," thought Little Jack Rabbit. "Lady Love will be getting anxious. Then, lipperty lip, clipperty clip, down the mountainside he went, until he came to the Shady Forest Trail.

"I must reach the little bungalow before dark," he sighed, hopping faster than ever, for he didn't want to spend the night in the dark forest. And neither would you or I, little reader, for a forest is the most lonesome place in which to spend a night, except maybe a graveyard. Oh, yes indeed!

After a while, not so very long, he came to a little hut but half hidden among the trees.

"Guess I'd better take a peep before knocking," he thought and, tiptoeing up to the door, he tried to look through the tiny keyhole. But all he could see was a little clock singing tick, tickey tick, tick, tickey tock. Hopping around to the window, he jumped up on a small barrel and looked in. It was dim inside and for a few minutes he could see nothing plainly. Gradually, however, he made out a cot in one corner an dthe next moment saw someone move beneath the quilt.

Guess I'd better take a peep before knocking

Slowly turning to the door, Little Jack Rabbit knocked and waited. For answer a voice, very faint, asked: "What brings you here?"

Turning the knob, the little rabbit boy hopped in softly. A little girl with large eyes and wan cheeks, her chin cupped in her hand, was gazing expectantly toward the half open door.

"I'm so hungry," said hte bunny boy, politely, "I thought perhaps you might be able to help me."

"Oh, I'm hungry, too," sobbed the little girl, and she went on to tell how her two step sisters had cruelly deserted her. "When I became too ill to bring in wood and sweep the house, they said I was in the way and went to seek their fortunes in the town."

"I'll hunt up food and bring in wood," said the obliging bunny boy, although so faint from hunger that he could hardly hop. However, where there's a will there's always a way, little reader, and before long a big fire was burning on the hearth and the little bunny and the girl were feasting on wild strawberries, and chatting away merrily.

"I must hurry now if I'm to reach the dear Old Bramble Patch before dark," said the bunny, and bidding the little girl goodbye, off he hopped faster than ever. And before very long he was in the arms of his dear little bunny mother, telling her all his adventures.

Stories That Recall Others

Tongue Troubles.

Betty is a great talker. It was often said of her tongue that it was loose at both ends and it wagged in the middle. But when she ate she quite often bit her tongue. One evening at supper she bit her tongue and then burned it on something hot. After a few tears and a little sympathy, she replied: "I guess I'll take my tongue out when I eat and put it back when I talk."

NATIONAL GUARD ENTRAINS THIS MORNING FOR SOUTHERN CAMP

Scheduled to arrive at Camp Eustis, Va., Sunday morning, Battery B., Captain William R. Denison and First Batallion and Headquarters Combat Train, Captain H. F. Burdick, of this city, units of the 192nd Artillery, Connecticut National Coard will entrain at the New Haven road station this (Saturday) morning at 10:38 o'clock, standard time, for their annual fifteen days tour of duty in the southern camp. The armory was the scene of much activity Friday night, the officers, non-commissioned staff, and enlisted men's details being kept busy until a late hour completing the last minute preparations for the long trip.

The packing of the baggage and equipment for the two companies was complete Friday night. There was considerable interest in the activities in the armory basement where until midnight the cooks were engaged in making up huge boxes of sandwiches which with coffee, will be served the guardsmen during the train trip.

About a half hour before train time the companies will march from the armory to the railroad station. They will leave here on the regular 10:38 train for New London. At New London they will march to the armory in that city where they will join the other units of the 192nd Artillery. The regiment will entrain on a special train that will carry them to Virginia.

ISSUES PROCLAMATION FOR DEFENSE DAY

Declaring that it was "not in a spirit of boastfulness, but in a spirit of self-examination" that Defense day was to be observed, and "that to be prepared for war is one of the most effective means of securing peace," Governor Charles A. Templeton Friday issued the following statement:

"To the People of Connecticut:

"In order that this country may enjoy peace and have strength to resist aggression and maintain the right, a reasonable degree of military preparedness is necessary. To this end, the president of the United States has designated Sept. 12th as National Defense day.

"It is appropriate that this day should be selected for such an observance. Six years before there was fought the battle of St. Mihiel, the first offensive in which American soldiers participated as an American army. It was a turning point in the war.

"But this day is not for the purpose of celebrating a military feat. It is to be observed, not in a spirit of boastfulness, but in a spirit of self-examination. Our country's state of unpreparedness when in 1917 we entered the war was shocking. A year elapsed before our strength began to make itself felt. If our nation had been attacked at the outset, as Belgium was attacked, we should have suffered terrible losses. We were unprepared then; we are not much better prepared now. If the lesson is not heeded, our young men will some day be sacrificed for lack of preparedness.

"To be prepared for war is one of the most effective means of securing peace. We all hate war, but war may befall notwithstanding our hatred of it. We love peace, but others may break the peace. Therefore we must maintain a defensive establishment, and every citizen and every dollar must be available in the event of war. This is not militarsim—it is the opposite of militarism.

"National Defense day is a test of the availability of the men and resources of the United States in case of an emergency. In signalling that strength, let it not be forgotten that, while arms are important, our citizens must be the ones to wield those arms, and that without the spirit of patriotism and self-sacrifice neither manpower nor arms can prevail.

"In furtherance of the president's purposes I commend to the people of Connecticut the loyal observance of this day. And I recommend that, along with this demonstration of a willingness to do our duty, we pledge ourselves to the maintenance of that spirit of moderation, kindliness and sympathy toward other nations, of whatever race or color, which alone can preserve peace in the world. For without the spirit of peace there can be no peace.

(Signed) "CHARLES A. TEMPLETON,
"Governor."

Brigadier General George M. Cole, who with Lieut. Col. D. Gordon Hunter and Lieut. Col. Orville A. Petty compose the state committee appointed by the governor to supervise and direct the participation of Connecticut in Defense day, said Friday night that a meeting of the state committee with the chairmen of the various sub-committees appointed at a recent meeting would be held next Tuesday at the state armory to report on the progress already made in different parts of the state.

General Cole stated that more than seventy replies had been received from mayors of cities, first selectmen of towns and wardens of boroughs in answer to letters sent out asking cooperation, and that all but two had promised the fullest backing in the observance of the day.

"This is not a mobilization day," said General Cole emphatically. "It is a defense day in every respect. It is rather a test of our weakness than our strength." Present plans, he said further, contemplated participation of the schools in some places where public patriotic exercises will be held. He stressed the idea that whatever was done in any community would largely depend on the sentiment of the citizens.

"As regards military activities," said General Cole, "we have already announced our intention of assembling the Connecticut National guard at the armories of the several units. They will be inspected and the commanding officer will report to the commanding general of the First corps area at Boston the condition of the troops. The officers of the organized reserve corps will also co-operate to help make National Defense day a success."

FLETCHER POST ENDORSES STATE COM. ARMSTRONG

The meeting of Robert O. Fletcher Post No. 4, American Legion, was held Friday night in the legion rooms on Main street with a good attendance. Commander H. A. Bruckner opened the meeting and two new members were admitted.

State Commander E. P. Armstrong was present and the post went on record 100 per cent strong for his re-election as state commander of the American Legion. The Norwich delegates will vote for him at the state convention to be held at Torrington next week. The post also went on record as endorsing the state fund, recognizing the good it has done.

The American Legion as a body is opposed to any legislation that might be offered, which would change this form of relief for disabled veterans, their widows and orphans. There is no other way for the disabled to get relief except through the state fund, as many veterans are ready to testify and if it were taken away, as some veteran organizations would have it, it would work a hardship and injustice to many who need it badly.

The post delegates to the department convention are to leave Norwich next Wednesday afternoon by automobile for Torrington. The Norwich post will be represented by District Commander William A. Anderson, Samuel Jennes, County Adjutant Harry W. House and Percy M. Chapman.

YOUTH DISAPPEARS WITH $550 BANK DEPOSIT

The police, who have been working on the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Holly Rosoff of 23, Pearl street, Friday morning shortly after 9 o'clock, after he had left the Motor Mart Co., of 321 Main street, to carry $550 to the Bankers Trust Co., reached the conclusion Friday night, that the boy headed for Springfield.

The boy was sent out about 9 o'clock by Abe Krieger to deposit the money, with several checks, in the Bankers Trust Co., and when nothing was heard from him in about an hour Chief Linton was notified and the police in surrounding towns asked to be on the lookout for Rosoff. The boy had been trusted with sums of money previously and his disappearance Friday lent mystery to the case.

Some people who know the boy seemed to feel Friday night that he did not leave Norwich of his own free will, fearing that he might have met with someone who had knowledge that he was carrying a large sum of money. Rosoff is about 17 years of age, five feet, six inches in height, dark complexion and when last seen wore a cap, long trousers and brown coat.

The family returned to Norwich in time to enable their son, Russell, to leave with Battery B, this (Saturday) morning for Camp Eustis, Virginia. Another son, Clark Fraser, is also a member of Battery B, and will en train with his company for camp.

OLD MAN MINICK PLEASES PALACE AUDIENCE

Old Man Minick, a new comedy in three acts, by George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber, was presented Friday evening at the New Palace theatre, and to say that the audience was pleased with the play would be putting it mildly.

The title role of Old Man Minick was safe in the hands of O. P. Heggie, well known to theatregoers from his appearance in the Whistler role in The Baronet and the Butterfly. His character interpretation of the old man, 71 years of age, who caused a whole lot of trouble for his son and daughter-in law, bringing down the house at almost every line.

The plot of the play centered about the doings of the old men, who comes into the home of his son, intending to live there for the rest of his life, shows careful thought by the authors. The lines are those that have been spoken many a time in homes throughout the country, and probably everyone remembered similar circumstances which, when brought out on the stage, quickly got over to the audience.

Mr. Heggie's words, actions and facial expressions would be hard to improve upon, and his bewilderment when he sees himself getting in wrong with everyone is true to life. The title role of Old Man Minick could have been placed in no better hands.

Nettie Minick, played by Phyllis Povah, the daughter-in-law who is subjected to turning her pretty apartment over into a temporary old man's home, afforded opportunity for clever character acting, and in the second scene gave Miss Povah an opening for emotional acting, especially after she had been humiliated before the women's club of which she was the leader. Miss Povah is an actress of ability and her ability to display emotion was splendid, her audience being quock to recognize her ability and applaud her efforts heartily.

Frederick Burt, playing the part of Fred Minick, the son, handled his part in a most creditable manner, his playing of the devoted son and husband, confronted by the greatest question in his life, losing his wife or getting rid of his father, being handled in an admirable manner.

The entrie cast is well selected and balanced and there is opportunity for all to display their talent during the play. Charles S. Burrows, as Mr. Dietenhofer, and Albert Hyde, as Mr. Price, two old cronies of Old Man Minick, are outstanding characters, as is Lula, the maid, played by Emma Wise, who gets many a laugh with her sharp replies to Mrs. Minick. Others worthy of mention for their ability in their assigned roles are Antoinette Perry as Lil Corey and Sydney Booth as Jim Corey; Beatrice Moreland as Annie, thesharp tongued maid; Mildred Southwick as Marge Diamond; Ralph Bunker as Al Diamond, and the four club women, Mrs. Smallbridge, played by Lavinia Shannon; Miss Crackenridge, played by Mary Hubbard; Mrs. Lippincott, played by Jessie Graham, and Mrs. Stack, played by Ann Winslow.

The pla is decidedly talky and the second act is finely written, this act with the meeting of the club women encountering Old Man Minick and his friends from the Old Men's home proving to be xetremely entertaining, laughter being almost continual, and a storm of applause ringing out with the curtain. The play will be repeated this (Saturday) afternoon and evening, after which it will go to the opera house in Providence for a run.

To Omit Service Sunday.

There will be no services at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church on account of the camp meeting at Willimantic Sunday.

BUDDIE MAC BEATS FAVORITE IN FEATURE EVENT AT NORTH RANDALL

North Randall, Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 23.—(By The A. P.)—Buddie Mac, J. P. Walen's Wilko gelding, driven by Charley Lacey, Illinois horseman caused the biggest upset of the Grand Circuit racing here today when he defeated Merriman, odds-on favorite of the free-for-all class pacing purse $2,500 feature of the get-away card. A $10 result ticket on Buddie Mac paid its holder $807.50.

Merriman had no trouble in annexing the first heat, setting a fast pace and winning handily but in the second heat he was overtaken by Buddie Mac, near the wire and was beaten in a hard drive. The Murphy gelding went into a break in the third heat and was never able to overtake Buddie Mac and Jimmie McKerron.

Although the card was to have been decided in two out of three heats, all except the two year old class trotting went into extra heats, the 2.16 pace and the 2.06 trot going into four heats.

The fourth heat of the 2.16 pace was raced in a driving rain, which began after the first heat of the 2.05 trot. It was so dark that no betting was recorded in the last two heats of the day.

The fourth heat of the 2.05 trot was not raced because of the muddy condition of the track. Marmaduke, which had two seconds and one first was declared the winner.

Dissatisfied with the drive of William J. Morrow, Toledo, owner and driver of Christie Mac, in the second heat of the 2.11 trot after he had won the first heat, the judges substituted Fred Egan in the third heat. Egan returned the horse a winner. The judges then announced that Morrow had been set down for thirty days.

ELIZABETH STREET EVENS UP SERIES WITH LAKE STREET

Friday afternoon at the Fairgrounds the Elizabeth St. Juniors captured the second game of the little world's series, defeating Lake Street 8-5, thus evening up the series. Yesterday Oliver Thayer of Lake Street won his game, but failed in his attempt at an iron man stunt.

In picking Leslie Mullins to turn back the visitors, Coach Sheridan chose wisely, for in holding his opponents to five scattered hits and pasting out four, Mullins proved himself to be a premier hurler. As in yesterday's game Mullins starred at bat. In addition to holding Coach Corcoran's men in check he managed to hit safely twice out of four times at bat.

For the winners Sadinsky, Anthony and Siegal played a sterling game. Siegal is perhaps the best man in the league for waiting out the opposing twirler. Drew of Lake Street caught Thayer in fine style, as well as getting two hits.

The deciding game will be played at Duwell field Monday afternoon. On the result depends the championship of the eight local playgrounds, the handsome loving cup on display in the show windows of the Ailing Rubber Co., and also ten points which will aid materially in the race for the championship banner, signifying the general excellence of the playground winning it.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch

The team in the field has a two run advantage. There is a runner on third and one out.

How should the infield play?

The team in the field should play back, although this gives the team at bat a better chance to score a run. But with a two run lead, the fielding team can afford to let the runner cross the plate, if it prevents the batting team from getting in position to tie the score. You see if the infield plays in, the batter has a fine opportunity of dropping a soft ball over the infield or of driving one through the infield. That puts him on base and also scores a run. But if the infield is playing back, the chances are much better that they will field such a ball and retire the batter, even if the runner on third scores.

Arrows 5' Braves 1

Thursday evening the Arrows upset the dope by beating the Braves 5 to 1. Johnny Greene the Arrow's premier hurler lived up to his reputation as a strike-out merchant, ten of the Braves' strikers whiffing the ozone. He narrowly missed a shut-out when after two were out in the last inning an error let in a run. Burns his battery mate caught a fine game. W. Burns, Greene and Kampf featured at the bat for the Arrows. Hamel featured in the field. Greene allowed but two hits while Rankin was nicked for eight.

Braves and Nutmegs Tie.

Friday evening at the Fairgrounds the Braves and Nutmegs batled six innings to a 1 to 1 score. The game was a hotly contested affair and was marred by a few arguments from time to time. The game will be played out at a later date.

SENACA A. A. TEAM TO PLAY AT BASE TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 22.—The Submarine Base will meet the fifth and last team from New Haven, when the Senaca A. A. nine will oppose the gobs at the Base athletic field this (Saturday) afternoon. Although the gobs have turned back three of the four Elm City teams to invade the Base grounds this season, they expect no easy time in this battle Saturday.

The losing streak of the sailors has reached the alarming total of two straight games, and the gobs figure that it is about time that they have mended their ways and traveled a more straight and narrow path. The Base has been playing in spurts this year, and had seven consecutive victories at one time until the Newport Torpedo Station up and spoiled a good record. It is most likely that the Base will use their most influencing methods to return victorious, for if they should lose this contest, they will most likely lose another next week when the State Hospital is opposed.

The Base mentor is at present undecided as to who will be perched on the pinnacle for the gobs and this will not be decided until it is time to start the game.

Albany Beats Out Hartford

Hartford, Aug. 22—Albany had a batting rally in the seventh inning which with the aid of errors, brought three runs and Hartford was nosed out today 4 to 3. The champion were unable to hit Ross for runs in the latter half of the game.

Profs. Take Extra Session Game

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 22—New Haven defeated Worcester 5 to 2 in 10 innings today. Roser tied the game in the ninth with a home run. Smith hit a homer with one on in the tenth. Bender retired in the seventh with the index finger of his right hand dislocated from a ard hit grounder by Duckett.

SINGLE MEN EVEN UP SERIES WITH BENEDICTS; LEONARD ALLOWS ONE HIT

"Teddy" Coleman may have engraved his name on the roll of honor that hangs in the hall of fame on the East Side, but Roy Leonard has written his a notch higher and it stands out even more prominently than that of the much-talked-of Coleman. While Coleman pitched two stellar four-hit games for the Married Men, Leonard turned in a one-hit game Friday evening although he lost the game 6 to 4. The Married men are strong on pitchers but are weak in the fielding department as was shown in last night's game when the Married Men made 14 errors, none of them being excusable by a long way.

The Single Men although they scored eight runs were entitled to none had the fielding been half way decent. The chief offenders were Coleman, Belair and Whacko Riley. Two of Coleman's errors were due to poor headwork but he can hardly be blamed as he is a pitcher and not a third sacker. Belair and Riley are supposed to be good players but had an off night, their errors being made on wild pegs.

The real fielding star of the game was Jimmy Pedace, general all-around player, who last evening played second for the Single Men in a style that was becoming of a big league infielder. None of Jimmy's playing was spectacular but it was of a high order and deserves mention.

By last night's victory the Single Men evened up the series with the Benedicts at oneall. Manager Pedace predicts that from now on it will be a clean sweep for the Single Men even if Leonard does pitch the remaining games as it is expected he will after the excellent showing he made last night. Manager Cook said last evening that as Tod Coleman had developed trouble with his arm that in all likelihood Coleman will be shifted to the outfield and go in only as a relief pitcher. The loss of Coleman means a great deal to the Married Men but not much now that Leonard has shown up even better than Coleman.

Some of the best umpiring of the series was seen in last night's game when Cy Perkins, an old veteran of the diamond, took charge of the game. Cy umpired in grand style and his decisions met with favor and there were no protests from either team or from the fans. It is sincerely hoped that Cy will be retained as arbiter.

There is not much than can be said about the game outside of Leonard's pitching, Coleman's errors, and Charlie Dickerman's hitting and base-running. The following box score tells the story of the game. The score:

MIXED DOUBLES FEATURE PLAY AT BROOKLINE

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 22.—With the national men's lawn tennis doubles championship final match put over until tomorrow, play on the Longwood Cricket club courts today was given over principally to producing the finalists for the national mixed doubles title. Another meeting between Miss Helen Wills of Berkeley, California, who holds the women's singles championship and Mrs. Molla B. Mallory of New York from whom she took it, develops tomorrow as a result of their teams winning from international combinations.

Miss Wills and Vincent Richards, playing together in this tournament for the first time, turned back Miss Eleanor Goss of New York and Rene La Coste, French Davis cup star.

It was only slightly more difficult for the playing—through championship Mrs. Mallory and William T. Tilden to defeat Mrs. G. W. Wightman joint holder with Miss Wills of the national women's doubles champion and Jean Borotra, French Davis cup captain, these scores, 6-4, 6-4.

Miss Goss earlier in the afternoon had won the women's invitation tournament by administering to Miss Helen Jacobs the 15 year old California girl prodigy her first defeat in the east, where she is playing for the first time on grass courts. The child had little opportunity to get started satisfacorily under Miss Goss' driving offense, and lost 3-6, 2-6, but experts said she showed great promise and was developed better than Miss Wills was at this stage of her career.

In the national veterans' doubles championship the title was won by W. L. Pate and Samuel Hardy of New York in a match with R. N. Dana of Providence, and G. A. Lyon of Boston. 6-3, 6-4, 10-8.

The National father and son championship went to the A. Chapins of Springfield, who defeated G. F. Wales and son of Waban, 6-4, 6-2.

JOHNNY MURPHY ENTERED IN COUNTY ATHLETIC MEET

Although the entries for the various events on the big athletic program to be held on the last day of the Norwich fair are not coming in as fast as the promoter would like it is not unusual that this condition exists, but it would simplify matters considerable and assure the success of the meet from every standpoint.

The latest entrie at hand are thoe of John P. Murphy, Holy Cross star and a Norwich boy, who is particularly interested in the quarter mile event. Joe Jackson, another Norwich boy has filed his name for entry in the sprints. He represents the Centenial A. C. of Norwich. William MacLaren, representing the Yankee A. A. of Norwich is another entry in the dashes and the 440 yard run.

To date nothing has been heard from any of the tug of war teams in this vicinity who would like to tackle the Ashland five.

The prizes, for which the fair association has appropriated considerable money, will be placed on exhibition in one of the local windows about the middle of next week.

Send your entries to P. W. Chase at Jewett City, Box 51, or Tel 100.

TAFTVILLE A. A. TO PLAY RIVERVIEW TEAM TODAY

The first game of the series between the Riverview Club and the Taftville A. A. will be played this afternoon on the hospital grounds. The game will start at 2.45 p. m. daylight time and Moran will hold the indicator. The Taftville A. A. has not won a series from the Riverview Club in the last two seasons, being defeated four times in the last five starts. "Chip" Dugas is managing the mill town aggregation during the absence of Tracy Clark, and is busy whipping his hired hands into condition for this series.

The Riverview Club will go to the plate in the following order: Coujillard 1b, Noell cf, Mills ss, Frechette 2b, Burns 3b, Allard rf, Laffey lf, Belair c, Posick p.

The third and deciding game of the series between the Riverview Club and the U. S. Submarine Base will be played next Wednesday afternoon Aug. 27th, on the hospital grounds. Further announcements relative to this game will appear later.

ARRANGEMENTS UNDER WAY FOR CARPENTIER-TUNNEY BOUT

New York, Aug. 22.—Efforts to arrange another match between Tunney and Georges Carpentier are now being made, it was announced today by Francois Descamps, manager of the French fighter who lost the American light heavyweight champion on a technical knockout in the 15th round of the battle here on July 24.

Descamps said that the Tunney engagement was the only one now being considered and that negotiations for a bout with Jimmy Slattery at Buffalo had been broken when attempts were made to have Carpentier weigh in at 168 pounds instead of at the light heavyweight limit of 175.

PADDOCK TO TRY FOR RECORD IN RACE TODAY

New York, Aug. 22—Charley Paddock, famous coast sprinter who lost the Olympic 200-metre championship to Jackson Scholz this year by the proverbial eyelash, proably will make his farewell appearance on an eastern track tomorrow when he is slated to try for a new world's record at 250 yards in special race held in connection with the senior metropolitan track and field championships.

Paddock expects to return to Los Angeles shortly and was told friends he intends to hang up his spiked shoes for good. Tomorrow he will attempt to lower a mark that has been on the books for thirty-six years. The 250-yard record was set at 25 4-5 seconds in 1888 by Brig. Gen. Charles Sherrill, then a Yale star.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY AN OPTIMIST

There was once a man who smiled
Because the day was bright,
Because he slept at night,
Because God gave him sight
To gaze upon his child.
Because his little one
Could leap and laugh and run,
Because the distant sun
Smiled on the earth, he smiled.

He smiled because the sky
Was high above his head,
Because the rose was red,
Because the past was dead!
He never wondered why
The Lord had blundered so
That all things have to go
The wrong way home here below
The overarching sky.

He toiled and still was glad
Because the air was free,
Because he loved and she
That claimed his love and he Shared all the joys they had!
Because the grasses grew,
Because the sweet winds blew,
Because that he could hew

Because he lived he smiled
And did not look ahead
With bitterness or dread
But nightly sought his bed
As calmly as a child.
And people called him mad
For being always glad
With such things as he had
And shook their heads and smiled.

THE CREATION

The earth, the firmament on high,
With all the blue ethereal sky,
Were made by God's creative power
Six thousand years ago or more.
This world is round wise men declare,
And hung on nothing in the air,
The earth around the moon doth run,
The earth moves on its center too.
As wheels and tops and pulleys do.
Water and land make up the whole.
From east to west, from pole to pole
Vast mountains rear their lofty heads,
Rivers roll down their sandy beds.
Wide lakes expand among the trees,
Great islands rise above the seas,
Peninsulars and capes project,
Straits, channels, isthmuses connect,
While all in harmony combine,
To praise Almighty power divine,
Man, too, was formed to till the ground,
Birds, beasts, and fish to move around.
The fish to swim, the birds to fly,
And all to praise the Lord most high.
From Smith's Geography.

MAKING BROWN BREAD

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: It has been some time since I have written. I had a very nice time at Twice Twenty's picnic. The day was hot but the shade from the big trees and a little breeze made it very nice.

A while ago I wrote about the use of money. The thought of it seems to linger with me still. How much good one can do with it if gotten honestly and they have a plenty! How much trouble one can see from it gotten dishonestly! It is surprising how one person can put so many others in trouble just by being dishonest.

I want to tell you how I make brown bread sometimes. If I have sugar cake or molasses cake that is getting dry I put it to soak in water, or sour milk if I have it. When it is soft I add a cup of yellow meal, and one half cup of flour, a little salt, 2 tablespoons of molasses, and one teaspoon of soda. This needs baking in a hot oven for an hour. I have a cup of cake crumbs if not more, it needs to be mixed soft so the meal will swell. One can put in a few huckleberries or raisins if one likes.

ROSALIND.

TRYING TO RAISE FLOWERS

Dear Social Corner Friends: Was surprised to find my name in roll call last week as I wrote under the name of Ormandine when the Social Corner first started, and had not used that name for a number of years, though I have written to the Corner under other names. But now I will be good and cling to my first pen name and use no other.

When I read the letter from one of the sisters who wrote about her nice flowers and how much water she had used to keep her plants alive, etc., I did laugh and I wished she could see my yard and the things in it. We worked last spring getting our flower beds ready and we planted seeds and set out some of the plants I had kept alive through the winter. I had forty-five plants all winter. Then we set 30 hills of gladioli bulbs and 20 of dahlias. Well everything came up and grew nicely and every night we turned out pails of water and sprinkled all the growing things and we looked forward to the time when our labors would be rewarded by heaps of blossoms.

About the time when the things should have been blooming the landlord took a notion to have all the houses on the street painted and it was done and there was nearly as much paint on the plants near the house as there was on the house. Then our neighbor in the next house went away and left a cat and her two kittens to shift for themselves and they came over and took up residence among my dahlias. Of course between the plants and the house was cool and shady and an ideal place for cats! The children who live near would gather around to play with the cats and they weren't always careful where they walked either. Then one day two big dogs chased the cat and she ran for her home behind the dahlias and the dogs followed and after the show was over that flower garden looked as though there had been an army through there and since then I have been so discouraged I have not bothered to keep things growing.

Last year I had lovely dahlias of different colors and this year only three of the dahlias bloomed and those dark red. The gladioli grew nicely and one bloomed out of a bed 20 hills. That one blossom was pale yellow. The lily of the valley had two blossoms. The June pinks two blossoms and the sweet william and pansies all did well but after all the work and time spent we do not feel repaid with the few blossoms we had. But perhaps I will have better luck next year—(if I am around here then.) Anyway the house will not be painted again and I shall "watch out" that cats do not "camp out" in my flower garden again.

Now will somebody tell me who Sister Winnie was. It seems she had had wanted to join Club No. 5 which our dear Sister Etta Barber tried so hard to organize but she did not meet with much encouragement form some of the Plainfield sisters. I am wondering if Winnie lived in P.

After keeping silent for so long think I have done enough for this time, so will stop.

ORMANDINE.

GREETINGS FROM RURAL DELIVERY

Dear Social Corner Friends: As our name appears in the roll call we will answer present as we have done many times while on duty in the courtroom. The sister who is ill at the hospital in Willimantic has our sympathy and we hope she will soon be able to be on her feet again.

Balsam Fir would have met many good friends if she had hustled around while she was in Connecticut. We would have been much pleased to have seen her down this way.

Pana's Boy: Have you forgotten you owe me a letter? Ask Keziah Doolittle, your neighbor, if she knows me.

Twice Twenty: I was also glad to read of your fine trip, and a change will do you good.

Vacation time is fast fading away and it will soon be time for us all to look to business on the first floor. Not for many years have we read of as many Corner picnics as during the past summer. Will not take up any more space this time as I hope there are many others writing for the Corner page.

RURAL DELIVERY.

SOME RECIPES

Dear Sisters: I am sending a few recipes that may please.

Peppers Canned for Garnishing: Wash the peppers (one peck is enough to last a family through the winter) cut a slice from the stem end each and remove the seed, then cut in continous rounds in 1-4 inch strips, using a pair of scissors. Cover with boiling water and let stand three minutes. Drain and plunge into ice water. Again drain and pack into pint jars. To 1 quart of vinegar, add 2 quarts of sugar, boil 15 minutes pour over the peppers and overflow the jars, put in new rubbers and cover and store in a cold place. They are delicious with cold meats or cut with celery and French dressing as a salad for dinner and also when mixed with cream cheese for a sandwich. (Get the peppers fresh from a farmer if possible.

Sauce for Beets: The following sour sauce for beets makes them almost a new vegetable: 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons butter, 1-2 cup of water in which beets are boiled, 1-4 cup vinegar, 1-4 cup of cream, 1 teaspoon of sugar. Melt butter add flour, add water, add cream, vinegar, sugar, salt, pepper, pour over the sliced beets and reheat.

THANKS FOR POSTAL CARD SHOWER JUNE 7

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends and Sisters: I wish to thank you one and all with all my other friends for all my lovely cards and booklets also all my presents, my friends for lovely potted plants and a box of wild flowers from Webster. Also I send my thanks to True Blue for her kind gift and another kind friend for her pretty remembrance. After looking over and counting my cards and booklets guess how many? Well, I had just one hundred and eleven and I was pleased to think I had so many kind and dear friends. The postman brought me 60 cards at one time. Do you wonder he nearly collapsed. Thank all my friends from near and far as some came from Detroit, Mich. I have been late getting my letter in but the old saying is better late than never, so will get it in before my name is in the roll call. I have been very fortunate this summer having been to four of the picnics so far. At Central Village, True Blue and myself were all that went I think but we surely were most enjoyably entertained and we met some very nice sisters but I see one whose pen name was Winnie has passed on. I was real glad to have met her for she was very pleasant and hoping we would all meet again in the fall. Then I was a Versailles where we did have a beautiful time and a big attendance with many thanks to Student and Lo, both faithful workers. Though our day at Leffingwell church was hot, we all enjoyed our nice dinner with many thanks to our kind hostesses.

Our Beach picnic was just the best ever. True Blue and I went down by trolley with some of the other sisters. Had a very pleasant ride down but it surely does make any one feel sad to see how dry and burned up every thing is looking. All the gardens look so poorly. Almost the first thing when we got there was quite a smart little shower but it didn't last very long. Then it was so hot, but we had a nice cool place over in the pavilion where we could see everything and everybody as they passed back and forth to the bathing beach. The beach was thickly covered with bathers all the whole length there being one of the biggest crowds of the summer, so some one said. There was quite a number of the Corner Sisters there from different places. And who do you think should come along but our dear sisters Whirlwind and Foxglove. Well we were glad to see them and to think how courageous they were to come so far to be with us bringing Foxglove's mother. I did not get a chance to speak with her but hope she forgave me. I found Nellie Bly waiting when we got to the beach to help enjoy the day with us. Then after spending a perfect day at the beach True Blue's auto met us at New London and our ride home was very nice and pleasant, thanks to Mr. True Blue. Am so sorry to hear Auntie No. 1 has met with an accident, do hope she is very much better by now, also her hubby. Does anyone know how Gard is? She has bad eyes. Who knows where Bridge is? Do come to some of the picnics.

And where is Old Fashioned Mother?

Stranger in the City: Where are you?

Effie M: What did I hear?

With many thanks to the kind editor. Hope all the sick ones are very much better.

SAVILLA.

SHOCKED AT WINNIE'S DEATH

Editor Social Corner: I shall have to plead guilty to not answering earlier to the roll call but will say present. It was with a shock that I read in the paper of the death of Winnie a short time after our pleasant meeting at Central Village. She was one of the most enthusiastic of those present, except Rural Aunty, and Winnie's Youngest, and the rest of the family have my heart felt sympathy.

Twice Twenty: I intended to have been present at your gathering but got the date twisted with Aug. 28 the date of the tri-county Pomona meeting, with the result that I shall get to neither.

Should have enjoyed talking with Rural Delivery about patch work and "sich like."

Koohia: Can't you drop your fancy work and come to the meeting at the Girl's' club rooms at Central Village, Sept 10? Come this way and carry your cousin over. I think that she would enjoy it.

Rural Aunty: I know that you enjoyed your vacation for as you said it was the first one that you ever enjoyed. It was longer and must have been better than the one that we had at Quonochontaug in "auld lang syne." Mrs. Historian thanks you for the card. The description of your trip was fine and I do enjoy reading of the trips taken by the Cornerites. Let's all try and get to Central Village, Sept. 10. Place, the Girl's club room.

HISTORIAN.

A 700 MILE AUTO TRIP

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Here I am in answer to my name. Just returned from a seven hundred mile auto trip through Vermont and New Hampshire. Want over the Mohawk Trail but to me that isn't to be compared with the beauty of the mountains farther north.

The first night we spent in a farmhouse in Arlington, Vt., Didn't know until morning that we were in the town with such distinguished people as Robert T. Lincoln, Dorothy Canfield Fisher and Kent the artist. Didn't affect my sleep one bit.

Two nights we were at a cottage on Lake Dunmore at the foot of Mt. Moosalamoo, near Middlebury. While there we crossed Lake Champlain to Ft. Ticonderoga. It's a beautiful ride over from Dunmore facing the Adirondacks.

One day we traveled two hundred and ninety seven miles. Visited Burlington, Montpelier, Barre and crossed into New Hampshire as far as Keene where we were tired enough to sleep most anywhere.

After five days spent in five different states I was glad to get home and of all the beauty spots old Connecticut looked pretty good to me. A while ago someone (Betsy Bobbit, I think) said, "See Connecticut first." Quite true.

Long live the Corner.

NEIGHBOR EVEREADY'S SISTER

SCHOOL DAYS

Dear Editor and Sisters: I will answer the roll call, and although I have only been a member a few short months I have enjoyed it very much.

I was much interested in the letter of Eveline Burr entitled. Old School Days. It immediately took me back to the time when I went to school in a country school house. Memory brings back a large room full of girls and boys, of various sizes and ages from five years to eighteen or twenty years. I still remember many of the pupils individually.

The spelling class reached entirely across the room. We spelled for "the head" and there was much changing as the best spellers moved towards the head. On the last day of school the teacher read from the record that my chum and I had been at the head an equal number of times, so the prize was divided.

How well I remember studying Smith's small geography. As I am fond of poetry I committed to memory a little poem on The Creation, which is still familiar to me after all these intervening years. I am sending a copy of it.

Then too it brings to mind a little poem by John G. Whittier, entitled In School Days, which I will send some time. I will try to write to some of the sisters soon. Best wishes to all.

PALMLEAF.

PICNIC IN LEBANON AUG. 27

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: I am glad to be able to give an invitation to an outdoor meeting of Club No. 3 to be held under the maples between my home and that of Polly Peppermint and Sincerity on Aug. 27. If stormy the next day. Bring your usual dishes, and something for the dinner and we will try to make it pleasant for all who come. To find us come to the post office in Lebanon and from there you can see us. Those who have been here come again. Those who haven't will enjoy a visit to this beautiful town.

An idea which may be old to others seems new to me of slipping a strip of card board under a loose wire over the top of a fruit jar to make it clamp down tight. I never have been successful in bending the wire.

With best wishes for all the Corner folks, I am still,

THE SAME ONE.

RESPONDS TO ROLL CALL

Dear Social Corner Sisters: As my name was on the roll call last week will hasten to answer present. I have not been able to attend as many of the meetings as I should have liked to, for various reasons, but hope to do better in the future. Am interested in all the sisters' letters.

PLEASANT GUIDE.

OLD STONINGTON POINT

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: In these days of progress and activity, it is a delight to come upon the old seaport towns along the New England coast. Their individual charms are far more attractive to nature lovers than the grandeur of the nearby seaside palaces. Poets and artists have built their colonies close to these old whaling towns where the quiet, homely life, novelty of old time surroundings, and the healing of the sea may stimulate them to produce in words or brush their tender melodies of the ocean.

My mental picture of old Stonington Point is that of a lovely, dreamy village by the sea, having the peculiar charm that goes with the sea, unchanged as in the days of my childhood, where many a beautiful hour was spent, and where one might be lulled to rest by the soughing roll of the sea. Yet, distinctive in its quaintness, oddly constructed houses and historic interest, with characteristics not unlike those of the artist, whose mind in harmony with nature's loveliness comes to its doors to describe with the genre of an artisan, its beauties to the waiting world.

Stonington Village is built upon a finger of land extension into the ocean, and the standing line of houses is, presumably, the original fishermen's colony on the point. The primitive houses on either side of the narrow street which threads the point have retained their simple individuality, and are built closely together on the edge of the street after the fashion of the fishing towns along the Atlantic coast and of the old world, in unique comparison with the pretentious gardens not far distant. At the end of the street crouches the whitewashed lighthouse, which has passed through its era of interest, and since 1823 has guarded the town, and another at the end of the breakwater is in practical use. These are the true sentinels of this delightful sea girt town. The village has not yet been spoiled by progressive innovators, and its very loneliness, as with the sea, is its charm.

The Borough of Stonington was incorporated in 1801, but the town's history dates back to 1649, or 1651, and many of the old houses, built in style, for those days, untouched by time, aside from the fishermen's settlement, are still standing. The first house built by William Chesebrough in 1649 and the "Ghost House" at Wequetequeck cove in 1700 by Capt. Nehemiah Palmer, famous in the old whaling days, are tragic with romance and tradition, all accentuated with the passing years.

The central interest on the point is the green where are assembled the cannon and bombs with which a handful of men so successfully defended the old town in the war of 1812 in a three days bombardment by a British Squadron of five ships and 160 guns, at which time, according to quotation, "the people were given one hour to leave the village."

Stonington Point is washed on either side by the arms of the sea, another characteristic of these old fishing towns. Little Narragansett Bay whirls its white capped waves between the point and the peninsula extending from Watch Hill. Beyond may be seen the breakwater, Fisher's Island sound, Fort Mansfield, Watch Hill and the many islands.

Numerous coves, inlets and rivers contribute to the makeup of this magic picture. Little Narragansett bay, Wequetequock cove, the Pawcatuk river, the tributaries of Long Island sound, and afar the mighty Atlantic are all within the horizon, and the eye lingers long over this magnificent sweep of land and sea.

But again the eye turns from the clustered houses on the point to the solitary lighthouse which crouches at its edge, across the water to the dim outline of Watch Hill and Fishers Island, and far away to the shore line of Mystic, Mystic Island, Noank, the beach colonies that have developed in recent years, and the above towering outlines of Lantern Hill, each possessing its own tale of interest.

And with the mists of the morning and the shadows of the evening I leave dear old Stonington Point to her dreams and to her reveries of by gone days, to the gentle imagery of the artists who will ever sing in sweeter words than mine of its old time fascinations, to the trembling light of the solitary lighthouse, whose wavering glow will ever be the fisherman's welcome signal, and to the lingering cadences of the rolling sea which will ever wash its shores and murmur a perpetual dirge to the memory of its founders who are sleeping within sound of its music.

THE LITTLE SPINSTER.

ELIZA JANE'S RAISED CAKE

Dear Social Corner: Here I am, even if I am awfully slow in saying present; to my name at the roll call, but you know its "better late than never." It has not been my good luck to attend many picnics this summer but I did go to Selinda's and we certainly had a good time.

Here is a recipe for a raised cake that can be made in the morning and be out of the way before dinner.

Raised Cake: Take 1 cup of warm milk, 1 cup bread flour and 1-2 compressed yeast cake beaten together. I beat with an egg beater until smooth as it is very thin. Let it rise two hours, keeping in a warm place. Then add 1 cup sugar, 1-2 cup lard, 1 egg, 1 cup flour, 1 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, salt, nutmeg and cinnamon, raisins and citron to taste. Bake immediately in a slow oven. Hope some of the sisters will try this and report.

Scottie: Thanks for card. Hope you had a nice vacation.

Lucy Acorn: Should like to see you up this way. Can't you come up and go to a picnic up this way and spend a night or two with me? Hope there will be some more before the summer is over. With all good wishes for the Corner.

ELIZA JANE.

TAKING A GOOD TIME WITH YOU

Dear Social Corner Sisters: When I saw my name in the rol call I realised I must answer it.

Some sister writes about attaining high ideals. To do so would be a supreme delight but I am not as capable of expressing such news as Jennie, Cady, Little Spinster or Calla Lily, but I do oppose the things that make you unhappy.

Summer is the vacation season. During August all the hotels and boarding houses at the seashore and mountains, as well as various lakes and country resorts are crowded with people in search of rest and recreation. It goes without saying everybody, old or young wants a good time during this annual outing. Now there is only one sort of a woman who is sure to enjoy herself wherever she goes or what ever happens and it does not matter much whether she is old or young, rich or poor, pretty or plain. Her vacation will never be a failure if she plans to take her good time with her.

The woman who firmly believes and resolves before starting on her trip to enjoy to the utmost every little pleasure that comes her way and not to mind the many petty inconveniences that are sure to arise, the occasional irritability of her companions—for tempers are easily ruffled in hot weather if you don't watch out and try to gloss every annoyance with a laugh and pleasant nod—can not help having a good time.

It is a homely old adage that "honey catches more flies than vinegar" yet is possesses a great deal of truth even applied to the pursuit of the often elusive good time of summer vacation.

The person who greets the world with a smile and a cheery nod always finds it a much pleasanter place to live in than the one who shows a peevish and discontented attitude towards everything and everybody. If you look deep enough and analyze the root cause of discontent you will find that it is invariably the outcome of a selfish, critical spirit.

The Japanese have an ancient symbol of three monkeys sitting back to back, one with paws over its eyes, the second with paws over its ears, the third with paws over its mouth.

That quaintly suggests a way to contentment and happiness. Around the base of the pedestal on which the animals are sitting runs this inscription. "I see no evil, I hear no evil, I speak no evil." We might go farther and say I think no evil. In this way a woman can take her good time with her wherever she goes, and happiness by the certain law of attraction will draw near and she will literally take the good time with her.

RYE BROCK.

SUCCOTASH AND OTHER DISHES

Dear Cornerites: My recipe for succotash is old for grandmother used to make it but we though the most delectable dish.

Get green young tender lima beans. With these I cook a few thin slices of good sweet salt pork. The corn should be picked fresh. I score my corn with a sharp knife down through each row of kernels. Then I slice off the top very thin and scrape the rest down with the knife or a dull silver knife.

Place beans in kettle with the cobs, slice your pork and peel potato and cook them altogether 30 minutes then remove the cobs and cook until beans are done. The cobs improve the flavor so. Many laugh because I boil the cobs but they all admit the succotash is the best ever and are very enthusiastic over the idea afterwards. Add corn to the beans just before serving, also salt, pepper, butter, sugar and milk. If the succotash is the least might watery add flour but if make correctly it is a most delectable dish and is just like a cream. Of course grating the corn thickens it a bit.

Fruit Jelly: 1 envelop of gelatin, 1 cup cold water, 1 cup hot currant juice, 1-2 lemon juice, 1-2 cup pineapple juice, 1-2 orange juice, 1 banana.

Coffee Gelatine: 1-2 cup cold coffee 2 cups boiling coffee, 1-2 cup of lemon juice.

Eggs on Spinach: Use left over spinach, fill individual shirred egg dishes, heat thoroughly, make hole in the middle of each one. Pour in half teaspoon butter, drop in an egg and bake in a quick oven until the egg is set.

Huckleberry Muffins: 3-4 cup of butter, 1 cup sugar, 4 eggs, 1 cup milk, 3 cups of flour, 2 teaspoon baking powder, 2 cups huckleberries.

SOFT MOLASSES COOKIES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I meant to have answered present right after my name was called, but kept putting it off as one is apt to do in the summer when we can get out of doors and see all the wonderful things there are for us to enjoy. I wish all of you could have seen my large bed of foxglove when it was in bloom this summer. The plants were five feet high, and the blooms were very large and beautiful. My Canterbury bells were lovly too. They were the real calycanthema with different colors and blendings.

I have several shades of blue larkspur and hollyhocks, roses, double white petunias, lemon lilies, Iris, phlox, asters, gladioli, dahlias and lots of other kinds.

My large geranium bed is very bright and pretty.

Marcissus: I think your gladioli bed must be beautiful. I'd like to see it.

Blue Bird: I could give you plenty of chives.

Kentucky Wonder and I went to Twice Twenty's picnic and had a very pleasant time.

1492: I am glad you and Twice Twenty liked my molasses cookies. I presume I have made between seven and eight thousand of them. Will send rule.

Red Rose: You have a wonderful memory and twas nice you didn't miss the blackberry pie.

Balsam Fir: The poem you sent in Growing Old is all right. I have learned it and have spoken it several times. I wish those who have short poems that they like especially well, would send them in.

Nyna: I'm glad I met you.

To the sister who sent in the cure for cramps, I will say, that when I read it I decided when I had another cramp I'd try it. Well, the next morning while I was putting on my shoes I had one in my leg and I lost no time in crossing my shoes, and the cramp left as quick as a wink.

I know not where His Island life
Their fronded palms in air
I only know I cannot drift
Beyond His love and care.

Soft Molasses Cookies: 1-2 cup sugar, 2-3 cup butter and lard, 1 egg beaten well to 1-2 cup N. O. molasses, all 1 level dessert spoon soda and let it rise to the top of cup, then add the egg mixture, 3 tablespoons cold water, 1 teaspoon vinegar, salt, 2 cups pastry flour, 1 teaspoon sugar, flour to roll.

THE PRICE OF FREEDOM

Dear social Corner Friends: I am taking back to the Library today a book which I have found so informing, so full of common sense, so uplifting, and at the same time so fascinating, that I do wish many of my Corner sisters might read it. This is The Price of Freedom by our president, Calvin Coolidge. Perhaps I should not have thought to ask for it at the library had not my attention been called to it recently by a letter to the editor of The Bulletin by Mrs. Marinda C. Robinson. She gave some quotations from it which made me desirous of reading the whole, and in recommending it for women's clubs she said, "Our women's clubs cannot find a better book to analyse and digest than this one, for here they will find in a condensed form summed up the basic principles of Americanization founded upon our system of religion and education." The book consists of addresses made on various subjects and of course, at various times, each chapter comprising one address. The busy woman can pick out a chapter here and there as she pleases if she has not time for the whole but most of us, I am confident, will take time when we have once begun. The address on The Place of Lincoln is a gem. May I quote just a few lines? "In the common meaning of the term he had no chance for learning. For him there was to be no university. Even the way to a log school house was almost closed; but he had that which overcomes all these. He had that which broke through the bonds of an almost letterless and bookless frontier. He had a deep yearning to learn." These words hit the nail on the head don't they? That last sentence tells the story. "He had a deep yearning to learn." It is so easy to say, "I never had a chance to get an education." Our greatest trouble is we do not improve the chances that we have. What is the class of books that the majority of people take from the public libraries? Fiction. It requires several copies of many popular novels to half way keep up with the demand for them while books that develop the mind, inform and at the same time fascinate, stand, unread, on the shelves. This book The Price of Freedom is overflowing with pithy sentences dozens of which I should like to quote here but space will not permit. We are so prone to forget how splendid America came to be—We take things so for granted. It will do us good now and then to think upon the foundations on which our republic rests. We review the past not in order that we may return to it but that we may find in what direction, straight and clear, it points into the future."

"But if our republic is to be maintained and improved it will be through the efforts and character of the individual." We do not need more of the things that are seen, we need more of the things that are unseen."

A few of the chapters are, "The Support of Civilization, The Purpose of America, The Meaning of Democracy, The Price of Freedom, The Destiny of America. I feel grateful to Mrs. Robinson for calling attention to this book and now that I have found it so satisfying I feel that I too should recommend it. Do let a bit of fancywork or cleaning go, if necessary, while you read this work for we must remember that we are citizens as well as home makers and that on us as well as on our brothers rests the responsibility of America's future. Ours was a rich heritage. In what condition shall we pass it on?

Yours for the good of the Corner.

MANY BLUEBERRIES CANNED

Dear Social Corner Friends: I thought I would write to answer the roll call. I have not been writing much lately as I thought I would give room for the sisters to answer the roll call.

Rural Aunty: I must tell you that I have been very busy for I have 50 quarts of blueberries canned. Won't they be nice this winter when the snow flies?

Lonesome: I have not forgotten the address, or you either. I was expecting you to come after me to go to Twice Twenty's picnic. I hope when we go to a picnic again we will go time enough for dinner. I hope you have not been too lonesome this summer.

It will soon be time for our September picnic again. I hope to meet the sisters again.

I have a dear old friend in Central Village who will be eighty-nine in September and she reads the Social Corner every week and she is very interested in it. She says if she was only a little younger she would join our Corner. Now sisters, what do you know about that? I will close with best wishes to all.

ROSY POSY.

MEMBERSHIP IN THE CORNER

Dear Editor and Friends: I am glad to be a member of the Social Corner family and to answer present to my name at the roll call. My first letter was printed July 24, 1915. My first card from a Social Corner sister trying to find out "who was who" was from Keziah Doolittle and was soon followed by a letter telling me who I was, where I lived and where my former home had been. My first call was from Saturday Eve, who had but recently been initiated, and came to invite me to attend with her a meeting of Club No. 1 on Valley street, Willimantic. Since that time I have attended over twenty similar gatherings all of which have been enjoyable occasions, but few, if any, more so than the first, which left a lasting and very happy impression. Many changes have come to us all and some of our most devoted and loyal members of earlier days have answered the last call and are with us here no more. My first invitation to anyone to join the Corner was to Last Rose of Summer who, when I stopped off at her home from one of the picnics, demanded that I give an account of myself and tell where I had been and what for. She was so charmed with my story that she decided to cast her lot with us and I am sure has not regretted her decision.

Variety is the spice of life and because of the variety of the subjects of the letters, there is always something on the page to interest everyone. The recipes and household helps appeal to some, the reports of Club meetings and trips to various places of interest to others, while reminiscences of days long past and gone have been wonderfully interesting. I believe, however, if a vote could be taken as to what the most helpful thing has been, the majority would say that the old friendships renewed and new ones formed have outweighed all else. We have become better acquainted with some of our neighbors and added many valued names to our list of acquaintances. I sometimes wonder why we so often say that old friends are best and how long it takes for a new friend to become an old one.

Much has been said, written and read
Of old friends standing true:
That to hold the old is like hoarding pure gold,
That old friends are / better than new.

To me comes a thought, by experience bought
Presenting a broader view:
That the same strands of gold which we love in the old,
May be seen shining bright in the new.

RECOMMENDS COLUMBIA LAKE

Dear Editor of the Social Corner: Seeing my name in the paper I shall answer the roll call. I have enjoyed myself this summer taking many automobile trips to different placed I had never seen before. If one wants to go to a quiet spot on Sunday to rest I would suggest that they go to Columbia lake where it is very quiet and restful.

I would like to hear a word or two from Dorothy Bradford as I have not heard from her for a long time and hope she is not ill.

I do not want to take up more than my share of the Corner so will close now and wish all the sisters a very nice summer and hope they have all good the terrible spell of heat we had a week or so ago without any trouble.

CANNING WITHOUT COOKING

Dear Sisters of The Corner: Addie Graves says for the last few years she has been adding to the list of her recipes things that may be canned with no cooking or with a very little fire. There are only two undesirable features about this way of preserving fruits or vegetables and those are the following: vegetables will require more containers, and fruit will generally require an equal amount of sugar. In the cases of fruit, they must of necessity, be very sweet, but

Back Weak and Painful. Mrs. Miller Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rotan, Tex.—"I am writing to let you know how I have been benefited by taking your medicine. After my second baby was born my back was weak and hurt me continually, so I thought I'd try Lydia E. I had been bothered with my back for over a year, and it would hurt me until I could not do my work, which is keeping house for three and cooking and washing dishes. I tell all my friends if they have any kind of female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. You may use this testimonial if it will help any one."—Mrs. C. R. MILLER, R.F.D. He was fined $20 and costs and paid.

Blake, 18, spending the summer at Groton Long Point and residing in Springfield, Mass., answered to a complaint that Aug. 16 on Elm street, while returning from Atlantic Beach at 12.15 at night he passed four automobiles in the same direction and three in the opposite between Beach and Broad streets, and averaged 30 miles. He pleaded guilty and was fined $25. He paid.

SOCIAL CORNER

one can do only as many that way as one wishes to have as sweet as jelly or jams, and cook the remaining amounts with as little sugar as possible.

All berries if thoroughly crushed and mixed with sugar will keep canned raw.

Blueberries, huckleberries, currants or cherries may be preserved by packing them in glass jars, shaking them down well and then filling the jars with molasss, letting the air escape. Seal the jars and set them in a cool dark place. When the fruit is needed, pour the contents of the jar in a strainer and let the molasses drain off. Wash the berries, and use them as fresh ones.

To make jelly without cooking, wash the fruit and strain it through a colander or fruit press—anything that will reduce it to a pulp—then strain it through a jelly bag. Add equal part of sugar and stir with a wooden spoon for a half hour or more until every grain of sugar is dissolved as in this lies the secret of keeping. Then pour into glasses and set uncovered in a cool, dry place for a week or two—until a thin, sugary crust has formed on the top, when it may be covered like any jelly and set away being careful to keep it in a cool, dry place. It will be firm and solid as jelly after standing a few days.

Peaches preserved without cooking: Pack ripe selected peaches in a stone jar and cover with boiling water so that all the fruit is immersed. Then put over the jar a thick fold of cloth so as to retain the steam. Let them stand until the water is almost cold. Then take out peaches rub off the skin. Now put a layer of peaches in the bottom of the jar then a layer of granulated sugar (covered thick) then add another layer of peaches and sugar and so until the fruit is all used—having the sugar the last layer. Pour in juice immediately and keep in a cool dry and dark place.

Beet Pickle: 4 cups raw cabbage, 4 cups boiled beets, 2 cups sugar, 1-2 cup grated horseradish, pinch red pepper, black pepper, paprika, 1-2 teaspoon salt, and vinegar to cover.

Chop the beets and cabbage, add other ingredients and mix and pour into a glass jar and seal.

To can without cooking: choose perfectly sound, ripe tomatoes, place in a sterilized stone crock and a few cloves may be added. When the crock is packed and well covered with equal parts of vinegar and cold water a piece of flannel should be placed on top with the edges down in the liquid. Place a cover on small plate over the top of the flannel to keep them down. Cover with a paper, and tie down securely. A mold may form, but will not hurt the tomatoes.

Pare very thin six large cucumbers, chop fine and add a small tablespoon of salt. Let it drain in a colander an hour, add 1 large onion chopped fine, 1 teaspoon of white pepper, 1 pint of white vinegar. Stir well together and put in a wide mouthed bottle. Seal air tight and let stand at least a month before using. If air tight it will keep for years.

Peaches canned without cooking. Pare and halve the peaches, pack them as closely as possible in a can without any sugar and when the can is full pour in sufficient water to soak into the crevices—five or six hours later pour in more water to replace what has been soaked up. Seal the can and the work is done.

Pickled Celery: These are the proportions 1 1-2 cup celery 1-2 pint of vinegar, 1 tablespoon of pickling spices. Cut the celery into pieces 3 or three inches long pack into jars and fill with spiced vinegar.

Fill a can with small ripe tomatoes, pack as closely as possible—when the can is filled pour in sufficient water to soak into the crevices. Then pour in more a little later to soak in where the other has been soaked up, add 1 tablespoon of salt to the quart can of tomatoes. Seal the can invert it, let stand 3 hours and you then can store them away.

Chow Chow without Cooking: 1 peck green tomatoes, 1-2 peck of green peppers, 1-4 peck of onions, 2 large cabbage, 1 cauliflower. Chop all finely and pack in a layer of salt between using at least 3-4 pint of the above mixture. Willys-Knight Announces that Eliminates Vibration

Another triumph for Willys-Knight is listed in the announcement of the Lanchester Balancer, a new British invention, as standard equipment. It removes the annoyance of engine vibration.

This adds an ultimate perfection to the recognized excellencies of Willys-Knight—it adds perfection of riding ease to the grace, the power, the performance, the durability that have earned prestige for Willys-Knight.

Car owners have desired this improvement since the first automobile was built. The best technical talent of the industry has unceasingly sought it. It has presented a problem seemingly insurmountable.

Willys-Knight now gives America the solution of that problem. It makes the impossibility of yesterday the accomplishment of today. It reaches the apex of modern motorcraft in—the vibrationless engine.

It is the same engine—the same quiet, superb sleeve-valve motor that improves with use and develops greater power under grinding operation. But now it endows Willys-Knight with a velvet smoothness of operation never before imagined by the enthusiasts who own and drive the car.

The Lanchester Balancer marks a wide forward stride in automotive engineering. Its effectiveness has astonished car owners and engineers alike. It is the distinctive development of the year in motor circles.

The Willys-Knight, with the Lanchester Balancer installed, is ready for inspection and demonstration. Try it out—at all speeds. Your experience will be eloquently convincing.

NEW LONDON PAGEANT RECALLS VISIT OF LAFAYETTE, IN 1824

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 22.—The centennial of Lafayette's visit to New London in 1824 was observed today under the auspices of the New London County Historical society. Exercises took place on the lawn of the Shaw mansion, now the property of the historical society and where the Shaw family resided at the time of the visit of the illustrious Frenchman. The exhibits of Washington and of Lafayette were represented as returning to New London and they were represented by well known men of the city. Captain Carey Congdon impersonating Lafayette and Morris Sherman, the father of his country. These distinguished personages were entertained at a tea party by the supposed persons who attended and entertained Washington and Lafayette when on the 22d of August, a hundred years ago, they sat under the hospitable shade of the Shaw mansion's shelterinz trees and vines and sipped tea, while they talked of the trying times that were ahead and while they arranged a policy and a plan for the future. Beside the characters of Washington and Lafayette there were Martha Washington, impersonated by Mrs. James D. Hanan, Columbia by Mrs. Horace Learned, France by Mrs. Henry C. Chappell. Gen. William F. Mason-McCarthy was at the head of the honorary reception committee, with Miss Jane L. Perkins and Miss Anna L. Nevins, they being descendants of the Shaw family. The pageant reception committee was composed of Elias Perkins, Ernest E. Rogers, Capt. Charles Bulkeley, P. Leroy Harwood, Capt. Francis Allyn, Henry H. Stoddard; Lafayette's secretary, C. A. D. Boss; Lucretia Shaw, Mrs. Harry E. Hasty; Polly Shaw, Mrs. Mary Mitchell Strickland. The chief of the first Americans was Occum Fielding with Mohegan descendants; the American nation was represented by volunteers from all nationalities. The escort of Lafayette were sailors from the submarine base and soldiers from Fort Wright. An orchestra was provided and served under the direction of Mrs. E. A. Bitgood, Howard Pierce and Joseph Cranker. The spirit of '76 was from the membership of the Knights of Columbus. Peace was represented by Lafayette and a military escort. A group of flower girls was led by Miss Charlotte Woodruff. At the close of the exercises The Marseilles was sung. The ceremony attracted a large assemblage which witnessed the exercises from the walk and from the streets.

An automobile owned by a Mystic colored man was damaged by fire last night, the blaze originating when the owner foolishly sought to inspect the gasoline tank by using a lighted match to assist his vision. The nerve arrived at the gasoline filling station, corner of Main and Federal streets after midnight and desiring to have his machine replenished with fuel, he ordered a quantity of gasoline. After four gallons had been emptied into the tank the negro insisted upon determining whether the tank would hold an additional gallon. He lighted a match and held it at the opening of the tank. The fumes became ignited and communicated to the gasoline. In a moment the car was enveloped in flames and fearing its destruction an alarm was rung in from Box 25, corner of Federal and Main streets. The blaze was quickly extinguished but not until considerable damage had resulted. The car was taken to a service station for repairs.

Frank Morgan, 255 Williams street and in which Mrs. Morgan was a passenger, was wrecked in Jordan Village, late last night when sideswiped by a machine, owned and operated by Robert Smith, New York, a summer resident near Pleasure Beach. Mrs. Morgan sustained slight cuts and bruises. Mr. Morgan escaped injury. Mr. Morgan was on his way from Goshen Point to New London. When passing through Jordan village the machine operated by Smith emerged from an intersecting highway and crashed against the side of Mr. Morgan's car. The impact forced Mr. Morgan's car off the side of the road and it crashed against a telephone pole. Smith did not stop to determine the damage occasioned, but a witness managed to obtain the registration of the colliding car. The state police barracks at Groton were communicated with and Officer Henry J. Albright finally located the automobile at the Smith home. The owner was ordered to appear in Waterford town court next Friday night. Smith declared that he was not aware that his car had been in a collision and has retained counsel.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

There was little of the unusual in Norwich a half century ago. Arguments over the tearing down of the old Laurel Hill school continued and committees were appointed but that is as far as the meeting went and the old, rickety structure must be used for a time, at least.

Monday, August 17, 1874—The Arctics of this city went to Putnam, Saturday to have a friendly game of ball with the Quinebaugs. They were courteously received and treated by the Putnam club. Mr. Frasier was umpire and William Corkery scorer. The result of the game was Arctics 13, Quinebaugs 3.

Local lovers of horses visited the camp of the gypsies near here Saturday, with the intention of making a few purchases. One horse in particular interested a local man but when he asked the price, he failed to buy. The gypsies wanted $2500 for the animal.

The harbor has been pretty well filled with vessels of late. On Saturday there were nine new arrivals and four sailings. A variety of cargo was brought up on the boats now in the harbor, including general freight, coal, iron, brick and sand.

Tuesday, August 18, 1874—Over five hundred people attended the reunion of the 29th in Thames grove yesterday. All the companies were represented with greater or lesser numbers and a fine time enjoyed. Among the most prominent visitors were Col. T. G. Kingsley and Major Stoll. The election of officers resulted as follows; president, Col. T. G. Kingsley; vice presidents, Maj. Henry Stoll, Lieut. I. Macy and Lieut. Harry Smith; secretary, Lieut. W. Tracy; treasurer, T. G. Kingsley.

Preston is determined that the village shall no longer go in darkness and a meeting has been called for this evening at Stoddard's market for the purpose of voting on that important question.

People of Norwich residing near the railroads welcome the new ruling of the superintendents of various railroads; that the blowing of whistles be discontinued except in cases of signals and for emergencies.

Connell and Ryan-Sheridan and Holdroyd are to race on the Thames in the near future for a purse of $10.

The meeting of the court of common council held last evening was a lengthy one, a number of petitions being received. Permission was granted the A. M. E. Zion church to go on with the building of the new church at Franklin street and permission was granted C. B. Rogers & Co. to erect a new barn on Central Wharf. The longest fight of the meeting came when the new ordinance came up for the closing of saloons, billiard and pool rooms, and every place where liquors were sold, at 10 o'clock in the evenings.

A fight was made to extend the time of closing until 11 o'clock but the original motion carried and all places in the future must close at 10 o'clock or the owners will be liable to fines of $25.

Wednesday, August 19, 1874 — The flood of water during the recent freshet which damaged a large quantity of wool in the basement of the Hunt Smith building has led to a suit against the city for $10,000. It is alleged that improper drainage caused the flooding of the basement and the loss of wool followed.

Col. C. A. Converse, who lately purchased the spice mill of C. T. Palmer in the Shetucket Foundry lot, Franklin street, for a pistol manufactory, is putting on an addition to the rear, 45x30 feet and the same height as the old building. It is expected that they will be ready for work by September 1st.

The extension of the jurisdiction of the city court over that terra incognita, known as Scalpingtown, went into effect last Thursday, since that time the people of that district have enjoyed real night rests.

Hose Stewards have petitioned the common council for an increase in wages to $50 per year. The petition will be referred to the fire committee.

Thursday, August 20, 1874—A force of workmen are busy on the new street to be opened from Franklin street to Mill Pond Lane. A large gravel bank is being dug through and it may be necessary to change the location of a building or two before the new street can be put through.

At a meeting held in Preston last evening, Hugh King, John Galligan and Edwin Oldfield were chosen the committee for the ensuing year to solicit subscriptions for and to take charge of street lights.

Y., and are three in number, the largest weighing 2031 pounds, the next 1024 pounds and the smallest 603 pounds. On the outer surface of each bell are engraved the words; Presented by Mrs. Harriet P. Williams, April 1874. The interior of the church is now almost completed, the wainscoting and tinting being finished in a beautiful manner and the arches of the roof and the figuring of the memorial windows being wrought in a pleasant and attractive style.

R. P. Colburn of Ansonia, Conn., has purchased the Sterry Faucet Co., in J. Huns Smith's building and will remove the business to Ansonia.

The managers of the road have for some time been considering an extension of the road from Allyn's Point to Groton; also the building of a new bridge over the Shetucket river at this city, at a cost estimated at about $40,000. It was also voted to authorize the issuing of $1,000,000 of new stock.

A 180 pound sturgeon is being displayed in New London. It was caught near the terminus of the new pier now under construction.

Patrick Leyden, 80, died Thursday night at his home on the Fogarty farm, after being in ill health for ten years, and helpless for five years. Mr. Leyden was born in County Clare, Ireland, March 23, 1844, but came to this country when he was three years of age. He came from Preston to Griswold in 1869.

Mr. Leyden managed the Griswold town farm for 14 years, with credit to himself and to the advantage of the town. At one time he, with his family, lived in the Belcher house, famous as having been the birthplace of Colonel Belcher of the war of 1812. This house was burned to the ground during the time of Mr. Leyden's occupancy.

He married Maria Crosby 52 years ago in Hopeville. He is survived by his wife and four children, Mrs. Margaret Doyle of San Francisco, Cal., Mrs. Mary Marnane of Providence, Mrs. Catherine Fogarty and Frank Leyden of Jewett City. He leaves two brothers, Peter of Groton and Henry of Boston, and two sisters, Mrs. John Lee of Lisbon, and Mrs. Patrick Gibbons, of Pawtucket.

Several of the friends of Edmond Jodoin have been to his home on the East Main street highlands, to see his new "obstacle" golf set. In the rear of his house, on a plot of land 100x50 feet is to be seen a regular 9-hole golf course, but with everything in miniature and with all the varied natural effects of the field "set-up". The game is played like regular golf.

A report has been received of a pair of robins, with a nest in an apple tree, that are raising their third brood. The observers had occasion to note the devotion of the female during the cold of early spring, when she was obliged to sit upon the nest for days and nights in succession to protect the fledglings. On Mother's day, during the course of a sermon in a Jewett City pulpit, the narrative was told, to illustrate mother love, of a robin, that hatched her brood very early, and during a sleet storm, rather than forsake her young, froze to death on her nest.

WATER PROVED GASOLINE— BOY BADLY BURNED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Jewett City, Aug. 22.—Allan Whalley, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Whalley of Lisbon, was badly burned Friday evening while at the home of his grandfather, A. H. McCluggage, in Synvandale. The children were playing on the porch with some little candles, which they put into a small can; thinking it contained water. The candles were lighted and the liquid proved to be gasoline, not water. The flames shot up and set the little boy's clothing on fire. Houston McClugsage pulled off his coat and wrapping the child in it extinguished the flames. Dr. J. H. McLaughlin, who was summoned, found that the boy was badly burned on his forehead and knees. The sweater he wore protected his body and his uncle's quick action probably saved the childs life.

Remarkable.

Plate Marks.

Plate marks or hall-marks are the legal impressions made on watch cases, jewelry, gold and silver plate. In Great Britain the marks are, with a few exceptions, optional. The plate marks are of four kinds. The standard or quality mark, the mark of the particular office where the assay is made, the mark signifying the date, and the maker's private mark.

Orion the Storm Maker.

In Orion the ancients saw a mighty warrior and hunter, of ill-repute among classic writers, says Nature Magazine. With his appearance they associated the storms which were so prevalent at this time of year and so dangerous to seamen.

BREAK IN STOCK MARKET.

New York, Aug. 22.—Stock prices crumbled sharply today under the weight of a large volume of selling orders for both accounts. Net loss in the active issues ran from 1 to 7 points with total transactions again well over a million shares.

There was nothing in the day's news to account for the heavy liquidation. Many observers regarded it as a normal setback, due to the weakened technical condition of the market as a result of the recent drastic reduction in the short interest.

Bullish operations in Nash Motors, United States Cast Iron Pipe and American Water Works, all of which sold at their highest prices of the year, temporarily interrupted, but failed to halt the downward trend of the general market. Other stocks to break through their previous top prices were International Telephone, International Railways of Central America, Reynolds Tobacco B, Ohio Fuel Supply, American Foreign Power issues and Pierce Arrow Prior preferred.

United States Steel broke nearly two points to 108, and carried all the independent issues down with it although the net losses in these were relatively small. Erratic fluctuations took place in American Can, which opened at 134 3-4, dropped one point, rallied 4 and then dropped back to 134. Baldwin and Studebaker failed to hold their early gains and closed fractionally lower.

One of the sharpest breaks took place in Colorado Fuel, which dropped more than seven points on reports that oil drillers in the Moffatt field of Colorado had struck water. Recent buying of this stock has been predicated on the possibility of oil developments in Moffatt territory. Other outstanding weak spots were General Electric, Interborough Rapid Transit, Central Leather, Chandler Motors, International Harvester, New York Dock, Railway Steel Spring, Tidewater Oil and United Fruit, off 2 1-8 to 5 1-2 poir

A run-in of the short interest in Atlantic Refining sent that stock up to 92 3-4, but it eased later to 90 7-8 where it was up 3 3-8 on the day. American Water Works soared six points to 120 and then fell back to 115. West Penn Power closed nearly two points higher at 89 3-8. American Sugar Refining, American Tobacco issues, Liggett and Myers, Schulte, Moon Motors and Eastman Kodak were among the few shares to show net gains of a point or more.

Rails yielded with the industrials but the losses as a rule were not as large. Jersey Central broke ten points on one sale and rallied 2 on the next, while New York Central, New Haven, Norfolk and Western, Southern Railway, Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson and several others dropped a point or more.

Call money continued to rule at 2 per cent. Time money and Commercial Paper rates held firm, but business was rather quiet.

Foreign exchanges again turned reaction with trading extremely light. Demand sterling dropped more than a cent to below $4.50 and French francs ruled slightly above 5 3-8 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 22.—Bond prices again worked lower today as the continued weakness of Liberty issues influenced further selling of other high grade obligations. Erratic fluctuations of the St. Paul railroad liens, which declined one to three points in the early trading and then recovered, was a feature of trading.

Contributing to the early reaction of the St. Paul bonds were reports that the road, in planning its next year's refunding program was dissatisfied with tentative terms proposed by bankers and would frame a counter proposal. Uneasiness over rumors that no financing would be attempted until earnings improved were partially dispelled by officials of the road, who asserted that the outlook for fuel tonnage was better than at this time last year.

Recovery of the bonds later was accelerated when reports reached Wall street that Van Sweringens were buying St. Paul stock with the view of eventually linking the road with their new Nickel Plate to form the first real transcontinental rail system.

Today's decline in Liberty Bonds, exceeding more than a half point in some issues, brought losses within the past few days to as much as a point. Selling was traced to banks, which were reported to be finding better employment for their funds in the interior through the movement of crops and the revival of trade.

A local syndicate headed by the First National Bank was awarded $20,000,000 Province of Ontario 4 1-2 per cent bonds on a bid of 94.86, which compared with a bid of 94.80 by a competing syndicate. Directors of the Skelly Oil company authorized an issue of $6,850,000 convertible 6 1-2 per cent notes to be offered to stockholders.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Sharp new setbacks in the price of corn resulted today from a rush of selling due to hot weather favorable to the growing crop. The closing in the corn market was nervous, 1 3-4 to 3 5-8c net lower; December 1.08 1-2 to 1.08 5-8 with wheat unsettled 3-4 to 1 3-8 down; Sept. 1.25 3-8 to 1.25 1-2 and Dec. 1.30 1-2 to 1.30 3-4; oats 1 5-8 to 2 1-8c off, and provisions showed 5 to 20c decline.

It appeared to be a generally accepted opinion that rapid advancement of the corn crop would result from the prevailing high temperatures. The tenor of crop reports coming in was much more hopeful than has been the rule of late, and although the markets scored numerous rallies, none proved to be of a lasting character. Lowest prices of the day were reached just before the close, and were about 12c under Monday's top level.

Some recent sellers were reinstating their lines, asserting that the break in values had gone far enough and that six weeks of good weather without frost is needed if the bulk of the crop is to mature.

Wheat proved responsive to corn weakness, although liberal export business gave wheat prices numerous transient upturns. Big receipts of wheat, however, acted as a weight on values and so too did more favorable advices regarding the Canadian crop outlook. Prospective increases of domestic spring wheat marketings counted, too, as a bearish factor.

The provision market sagged with grain.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Aug. 22.—Profit-taking gave an irregular tone to curb market trading today, but although the selling deprived several issues of recent gains, buying in others, notably the public utilities, carried them into higher ground.

American Gas A electric established a new high record at 85 1-2 but closed at 84 3-4 for a gain of nearly 4 points. Commonwealth Power continued its advance, touching 110 1-2, later easing to 108 1-2 for a gain of nearly three points. The sensational rise in American Power and Light in the last few days was curtailed by profit taking, the shares closing with a loss of eight points at 410.

The oils turned reactionary after early firmness, fractional losses only being suffered by most issues. Prairie Oil and Gas and Indiana Pipe each closed 1 1-2 points lower and Solar Refining lost two points. The Standard Oil group moved within a narrow range.

Industrials were featured by a gain of 2 3-4 points by Glen Alden Coal to 128. The radio and motor shares were affected by the realizing movement, but showed resistance. Trading was on a small scale in these issues.

WEST KINGSTON

A severe electrical storm passed over this village Sunday evening. Louis May, who lives about one and a half miles from the village had a horse killed by lightning.

Dr. Kenyon's barn was struck and some clapboards were torn off as neatly as any carpenter could have removed them. Inside the barn, some strips of boards were torn off. A cow stood not many feet away but suffered no harm. In the house the lightning arrester was blown to atoms. The noise was terrific. A curtain was blackened and torn and paper scorched. It seemed almost a miracle that no one was hurt nor no fire started from the explosion.

Mrs. Susan B. Sherman died Saturday evening at her home here, after many months of suffering. The funeral was held from her home on Tuesday at 2 o'clock, Rev. C. H. Palmer of Usquepaugh was the officiating clergyman. Burial was in Usquepaugh cemetery.

E. C. POWER COMPANY EXPLAINS OFFER TO COUNCIL COMMITTEE

At a meeting of the special gas and electrical committee of the court of common council and the board of gas and electrical commissioners held Friday evening at the office of Mayor Mile R. Waters in the court house representatives of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., explained in detail their offer made to the city some time ago for the purchase of the municipal gas and electric plant. The Eastern Connecticut Power representatives were present at the meeting, which was in the form of a hearing, on invitation of Mayor Waters.

Present at the meeting were Mayor Waters, Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., Alderman Henry Gebrath, Alderman Edward Crooks and Councilman Alfred G. Lillibridge of the committee James L. Case, Jeremiah A. Desmond, C. Edward Carpenter, and Frank Welch of the gas and electric board of commissioners, General Manager C. W. Taggert of the gas and electrical plant, General Manager H. D. Larrabee of the Eastern Connecticut Power Company and E. A. Harris of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co.

The hearing was for the purpose of giving the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., an opportunity to discuss their offer for the purchase of the city's plant. General Manager Larrabee explained his company's offer which was presented to the mayor and council committee in written form, after which there was a general discussion on the matter.

During the discussion Mayor Waters speaking with reference to the price offered by the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., $1,692,896.96, stated that recently he had received a tentative offer of two million dollars for the plant by other interests.

The Eastern Connecticut Power Company's communication which was read at the meeting by General Manager Larrabee follows in full:

We assume that the article printed in the Norwich Evening Record of August 13th, 1924, on the report of the Board of Gas & Electrical Commissioners, upon the two propositions from The Eastern Connecticut Power Company, now before your committee, is an authentic copy, and it is upon that report that we submit our comments.

We are submitting this in writing because of the scope of the discussion and in order that the matter may be before the commitete in tangible form.

Sale of Property

A. The commission recommends rejection of our offer to purchase the property on the ground that the price is lower than would obtain in an open market, but they do not give any reason for this opinion. We offered the only available figure, namely, that value shown by the department in its report of December 31st, 1923, to the public utilities commission. The amount offered is $1,692,896.96 as a going business, and we doubt very much if an open market would indicate any greater value. This proposal to purchase not only pays 80 per cent. of the total debt of the city and materially increases the grand list, but it also means a saving of not less than $83,000 per year to the users of electric service. This saving to the consumer continues indefinitely, and in less than five years it will equal the balance of the present city debt. It hardly seems possible that there could be any doubt but that such a proposition is greatly to the advantage of the city, taxpayer and consumer, and it would certainly seem to warrant the support of any one who is really interested in the welfare of the community. The profits from the operation of the property have all been used by the Gas and Electrical department, and your counsel has given as his opinion that there is no legal way by which the city, or the taxpayer, can secure these profits; therefore, it is clear that the city and the taxpayer can collect these profits only through the sale of the property.

Purchase of Power

B. The commission also recommends the rejection of our proposition to sell power and exhibits a new set of figures purporting to show a loss to the city under our proposal.

Our coal cost of 1922 is set up against the city's operating expense at current coal costs, while our current coal cost is about $2.00 per ton less than it was in 1922. Peak loads, used in calculating the demand charge under purchased power, evidently represent the city's total load. This includes the amount now being purchased in addition to that generated by steam, and charges against purchased power for each K. W. received from the Uncas Power Company $1.35 per month more than the city would pay under the proposed contract. Consequently the assumptions in these new figures are not correct, so that the results which they indicate are of no value.

The facts in regard to the saving which will result through the purchase of power are these:

On actual operating data for 1921, with approximately 4,500,000 KWH generated by steam, the department's own calculations show a saving of $57,000, or $27,000 if allowance be made for the item of extra amortization; and, for the calendar year 1922, based upon data filed by the department with the public Utilities Commission, and making every allowance against purchased power, the figures agreed upon show a saving with an output of 6,120,000 KWHrs. of $30,657.94 or $29,657.94 allowing for the item of extra amortization. Here are two conditions of different coal costs, and a 35 per cent. difference in output, showing practically the same saving. No new figures are needed to show that with an increase of only 7 per cent. in output the same saving of $55,000 will still exist.

The only thing which the commission's new figures show is that the item which they have insisted upon for extra amortization could be $21,340.00 instead of $25,000.00, so that if this item be considered, the saving upon the figures agreed to would be $33,317.94 instead of $29,657.94. It is, of course, unnecessary to point out that to amortize a given investment in 10 years does not require as much as 1-10 of that amount per year, because of the interest which would be earned by the amount accumulated. The real point concerning this matter of replacing the city's plant is that if its operation be continued, this issue will have to be met in less than 10 years, while if power be purchased the issue cannot possibly come until after 10 years. This difference of opinion in regard to depreciation or amortization could very well be disposed of by making the firm period of the contract 20 years instead of 10, and that we are perfectly willing to do.

Another matter in this connection is that the contract does not necessarily terminate at the end of 10 years. The provision is that it must run for 10 years and that it continues beyond that period until either party cancels it, which can only be done after prior written notice of not less than one year. The notion that we would actually cancel the contract at the end of 10 years, in order to increase the rate, is rather imaginary. The trend of rates is so decidedly downward as to almost certainly preclude such action. There is no reason to suppose that we would desire a cancellation of this contract in 10 years, because by so doing we would lose the business. The fact that such cancellation might result in the installation of a new power plant by the city, or might in some other way be a burden to the city, would not in any way change the fact that by the termination of the contract we would certainly lose the revenue thereunder.

The report refers to our furnishing power to the Ponemah Mills, but we fail to see how that is any part of the present discussion. As a matter of fact this does not in any way infringe upon the rights or privileges of the city, because both the Ponemah Mills and the Gas & Electrical Department were in business long before the Eastern Connecticut Power Company was organized.

Reference is made in the report to the matter of the Ironsides Board Corporation in 1920. The negotiations which we had at that time were not with the Ironsides Board Corporation but with the Gas & Electrical Department, to whom we suggested that, inasmuch as we had a transmission line which crosses the property of the Ironsides Corporation, and that they were making inquiries as to prices on a steam turbine at that time, the city either permit us to sell the power and pay the city a royalty thereon, or else sell the power to the city for their immediate re-sale to the Ironsides Board Corporation. The answer which we received from the department was to reject our proposals, and to express strong resentment over our action. It may be of interest to note that the quantity of energy involved would have cost under the city's rate $146,376.00 per year, while under the suggestion the city would have sold this power to the Ironsides Corporation for some 46 per cent. less, namely, $78,600.00 and still retain a profit of $7,050 per year.

The greater part of the commission's report is devoted to criticism of the contract submitted, and we attach hereto more detailed comment upon the various points raised. The principal objection seems to center around the demand charge, but this can be met by substituting a flat capacity charge of, say, $4400 per month in lieu of the demand charge, and also of the 11 per cent. investment charge; which removes all question as to any penalty under a demand charge. This form of rate we suggested before the contract was submitted, and we are, therefore, perfectly willing to use it.

The other objections to the contract are minor and are mostly due to a misinterpretation of the stipulations. We have had no opportunity to correct these points, because we had no intimation that there were any objections to any terms of the contract until the commission's report was printed in the Evening Record of August 13th, 1924. The contract, as submitted, is the same as has been found satisfactory to our other wholesale customers, containing the provisions as to a substation location, high tension metering, standard and extent of service, term, demand rate, coal cost, suspension of service and territory. Nevertheless we believe that all of the objection can be easily met, and if it be so desired we will be pleased to re-write the contract with this end in view. If the Commission desires to secure a form of contract which will provide for the purchase of power under what they consider the most favorable terms and conditions, we believe that in the best interests of the city, and as a matter of fairness, all of their suggestions should be presented for consideration.

One point to which we feel attention should be called is that in the list of peak loads shown in the report, September, 1923, is given as 3400 K. W. and October, 1923, as 3600 K. W. These probably include the load which was at that time furnished by the Uncas Power Company; but if, by any chance, they should represent solely that load produced by steam, it means that the city must, within a very short time, take steps to provide additional capacity in its power plant. It seems most likely that 3600 K. W —which means 5000 or more KVA—is the limit of the plant, and the only reserve capacity is in the two smaller turbines, which are inadequate as to size and more uneconomical than is the 4000 K. W. unit. If this peak load on the steam plant actually obtained, then the city must either invest a large amount of new money, or find itself unable to supply all its customers—a condition not to be tolerated in a public service.

Many of the points brought up we have already covered, and we do not find anything in the commission's report which changes the statements or the conclusions exhibited in our booklet presented to your committee at the meeting on July 8th, 1924. We believe that the entire matter is quite fully covered in that booklet, together with our letter to your Honor on July 29th, 1924, relative to the pamphlet giving operating figures of the Gas & Electrical Department for a period of 20 years, and adding this present letter with the exhibit attached hereto, giving our comments upon the commission's criticism of the details of our contract. We will, of course be pleased to furnish further or additional information which might be of assistance in having the matter more clearly understood.

Copy of this letter, together with the comments attached hereto, is being given to the president of the Board of Gas & Electrical Commissioners, and to each of the two local papers.

Comments Upon the Power Contract

Objections	Answers
1. Line and Equipment: The city is to provide the Power Company with the right of way for poles and wires through the city streets, together with land for locating a substation.	No such provision is in the contract. The city streets are neither mentioned or referred to. The contract says "that the board shall provide such land and space, with access thereto at all times, as may be necessary for the substation or substations." We are willing that the city may own and pay for the substation, and also the line entering into it.
The amount upon which 11 per cent. is to be charged is not fixed.	We will fix the investment at our estimate, or absorb it, as suggested in our letter, in the capacity charge.
2. Delivering and Metering: The city must stand the expense of the transformer losses.	This is merely a question of rate, but low tension metering could be arranged for by compensating for these losses. This item, however, is just about equal to the difference between the $8,000 allowed for additional gas steam and the $4,000 which such steam would be most likely to cost under actual operating conditions.
3. Standard of Service: The voltage regulation is indefinitely stated and limit of variation not guaranteed.	The contract says "the voltage shall not vary to a greater degree than can be properly cared for by automatic feeder regulators of a type standard at the time of this agreement." This is definite, because such regulators are now on the market and they perform a definite duty. The regulation could, however, be stipulated as 5 per cent. above or below normal.
It is inadequate for the Power Company to agree to maintain a satisfactory standard of service.	This is in addition to the voltage regulation defined, and simply means that in spite of the leeway allowed the Power Company shall exert reasonable effort to keep up the service.
4. Extent of Service: When the city's requirements exceed the capacity mentioned in the contract, the city will be required to pay 11 per cent. upon the added investment required.	This would be merely the substitution of larger transformers. The additional cost would not be a large item, and would certainly be negligible in comparision with the investment which the city would be required to make to secure additional capacity at its own plant in boilers, turbines and auxiliaries.
5. Term: There should not be permitted cancellation of the contract by mutual consent.	We have no objection to leaving this out, although it is difficult to see how either party could cancel without the consent of the other. There seems to be some confusion as to what is meant by "mutual."
6. Rate and Payment: The method of charging is different from that under which the city sells energy for both light and power.	This is inaccurate, for the city has a minimum of $1.00 per month for lighting, and on power a minimum of $1.00 per month for each H. P. in excess of the first H. P. which is at $2.00. This is the same general principle of rate making as our demand charge which has its minimum, except that the city's minimum is higher. $1.35 per K. W. is $1.00 per H. P. and 3-4 of this is 75c per H. P. This minimum is for H. P. of demand, while the city's minimum is based upon connected load, which is a greater number of H. P. than is the demand. Consequently the city's customer, in case of shutting down, is, as a matter of fact, penalized heavier under their minimum bill than the city would be under our minimum demand.
The load delivered to the city by the Uncas Power Company, now owned by The Eastern Connecticut Power company, could be so manipulated as to throw excessive demands into the amount which the city would be required to purchase, and thereby unduly increase the city's cost.	The Uncas Power Company has a contract with the city to do a specific thing, namely, deliver its entire capacity to the city when the city can use it and desires it. This obligation is, of course, not changed or affected by our control of the Uncas Power Company. As a matter of fact the load supplied by the Uncas Power Company to the city has been handled under and according to instructions from the Chief Engineer at the city's plant, ever since we have controlled the Uncas Power Company. Furthermore, the Uncas output is worth more gold to the city than it would be if absorbed into the Eastern Connecticut Power Company's system.
The coal cost is usually based upon the price of coal F. O. B. cars or barges, and difficulty would be found in agreeing upon the cost of coal as unloaded.	In some cases coal cost is taken F. O. B. cars or barges. In others, it is taken unloaded, as we have suggested; but it is taken also as the cost in storage, and one of the largest central stations in New England takes it as the cost in the bunkers of the company's power plant. There is no difficulty in checking up the cost of coal unloaded, any more than there is in checking any other tabulated cost. The difference between the cost F. O. B. and the cost unloaded is not great in its effect upon the cost of power sold, and it might be fair to agree to take the unloading cost at, say, 15c per ton, which is, of course very much less than it costs to unload coal at the city's plant.
The clause providing for a revision of the rate might, under certain conditions, work to the disadvantage of the city.	We have no particular desire to insert a revision clause, but it was inserted (as was explained to the department's general manager) because some of our other customers requested this for their own protection. We are perfectly willing to leave out this clause.
7. Power Factor: No comments or objections are made.
8. Suspension of Service: This clause does not insure continuous supply of energy or indemnify the city for losses by reason of interruption of service.	This is a very usual provision, and any stipulation by virtue of which a Power Company provides indemnity against direct or consequential damages, or actually guarantees a continuous supply of energy would be a very rare thing. There is nothing of this sort that we know of in the rates and conditions of service applying to the customers of the city or of any public utility company.
9. Territory: This protects the Power Company against the city's sale of energy outside of its authorized territory, but does not so protect the city against the Power company selling within the city's territory.	This is a technicality of no real consequence. The city has no right to sell power outside of its stipulated territory and consequently has no right to buy power for such purpose. The Eastern Connecticut Power Company has no right to distribute energy within the city's territory without the city's consent, and it was for this reason that it was necessary for us to go to the city meeting in order that service might be made available in the village of Occum. As a matter of fact this particular clause probably has no force, one way or another, because this is really a question of charter rights granted by the Legislature, and these of course cannot be changed by any provisions of such a contract.
10. Contract provides only for energy which is now generated by steam at the city's plant.	Objection is not offered by the commission to this provision, but we desire to point out that this clause places in this contract definite provision that nothing shall be so construed as to in any way affect the present contract of the Uncas Power Co., which is simply further argument against the possibility of manipulating the load as above referred to.
11. and 12. No comments or objections are made.

On Sunday, Aug. 31, the First Congregational (Road) church of Stonington, will celebrate its 250th anniversary. The Road church, as it is more familiarly known was the first organized religious body in the town of Stonington. In 1874 when the bicentennial was held, the celebration lasted for several days and descendants of the founders, who had scattered to all parts of the country, came back to pay homage at the shrine of their forefathers. While not on such an elaborate scale as the former celebration, the approaching one will be none the less noteworthy and it is hoped that descendants of the men who founded the church in 1674 will be present.

RECALLS BOAT RACE OF 50 YEARS AGO

The column entitled Fifty Years Ago, which runs in The Bulletin every Saturday morning, has always been of interest to the older residents of Norwich and oftentimes recalls happenings of the old days, long since forgotten.

On Saturday, Aug. 9th, an item was published concerning a boat race on the Thames river between the Murphy brothers and Connell and Burke, the latter crew winning after a thrilling battle.

Friday The Bulletin was in receipt of a letter from John D. Connell of 7717 Champlain avenue, Chicago, Ill., a member of the real estate firm of Connell & Wilson, in regard to the item.

In his letter Mr. Connell writes: "In reading over the Norwich Fifty Years Ago, the race on the Thames between the Murphy brothers and Connell and Burke recalls the day I witnessed same, and my father was a participant and the winner.

"I left Norwich in 1887 and have been living in Chicago since that time and naturally such incidents as happened in the Norwich of yesterday afford me great pleasure."

POETRY

SOME DAY.

Some day we meant to travel far,
Before the glow of noontide failed;
But yonder shines the evening star,
And yet—we have not sailed.

We loitered idly on the quay,
Watching the tides that ebb and flow;
We saw the boats set forth to sea;
And yet—we did not go.

Magic or many tales was brought
By travelers and the traveling wind—
New worlds of deed, new worlds of thought;
And yet—we stayed behind.

And still the dream and still the call;
The boats recede with parting hail;
Shadows of coming night-time fall;
And yet—we do not sail.
—Arthur L. Salmon, in The Observer (London).

WIND-BELLS.

The wind-bells have such tinkling talk
And when they chat and swing and sway
There is no music anywhere
As clear and crystalline and gay.

They tell of gardens in Japan,
Of shaded walks and tinted streams
Where soft wistaria is hung
As dim and delicate as dreams.

I could not know on sultry days,
If they were reticent or dumb,
When small, cool winds awake and stir
And little, furtive breezes come.

And when the nights are dark and still
I hear them chuckling fitfully;
Nothing can daunt them nor restrain
Their silvery sociability.

CHARLES G. DAWES TO VISIT PRESIDENT COOLIDGE TODAY

This Afternoon the Republican Vice Presidential Candidate Will Confer With President Coolidge on Campaign Plans—Mr. Dawes Has Denounced Labor Leaders Who Are Endeavoring to Sway Votes of Union Men to Socialists—Dawes Also Decried the Ku Klux Klan.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 24.—Charles G. Dawes, republican candidate for vice president, announced today that he would confer with President Coolidge tomorrow at Plymouth, Vt., where the chief executive is spending his vacation.

The decision to confer with his running mate before returning to Chicago was reached by Mr. Dawes at the summer home near here of Harold M. Sewall, republican national committeeman from Maine, and the vice presidential nominee and his party left here at 8 o'clock (eastern standard time) for Portland. Arriving there, the nominee planned to take a train for Boston, reaching that city at 8.15 p. m., to spend the night.

Mr. Dawes will leave Boston at 7.45 tomorrow morning, going to Plymouth by way of Ludlow, Vt., and will spend the afternoon discussing plans for the campaign with President Coolidge.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE INVITED DAWES TO VISIT HIM TODAY

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 24—President Coolidge today invited Charles G. Dawes, his running mate, to visit him here on his return from Maine and arrangements were made for a conference tomorrow afternoon.

The visit of the vice presidential nominee, who spoke yesterday in Augusta, Maine, is planned, it was said, with a dual purpose—to permit a conference between the party heads on the political situation and to allow Mr. Coolidge to extend the courtesies of New England. The invitation was extended to Mr. Dawes by telephone this morning.

The president today maintained his silence on the recent developments in the campaign, including the discussion yesterday by Mr. Dawes and that of the day before by John W. Davis, democratic nominee, on the Ku Klux Klan.

Both Dawes and Davis announced opposition to the Klan, mentioning it by name for the first time.

Under present plans, Mr. Dawes will be a guest of the president and Mrs. Coolidge at luncheon tomorrow in the home of Mr. Coolidge's father where he is spending his vacation. It is understood Mr. Dawes expects to leave again tomorrow night on his return to Chicago.

Reports have reached here that some other party leaders expected to call on the president this week, including George Harvey, former ambassador to England, but C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to the president, said no definite time for the visit of others had been fixed.

Attendance at the one room Union church and a visit with James M. Lucey, shoemaker of Northampton, Mass., and close friend of the president, comprised today's program of Mr. Coolidge. It was another day of quiet which has marked almost every day of his vacation.

Mr. Lucey arrived here just after dinner and received a happy welcome from the president, visiting with him for about 45 minutes. Lucey is a candidate for the Massachusetts assembly and he said he came up to tell the president what the latter had written him just after entering the white house:

"Your friendship," as Mr. Lucey described the letter, "has aided me greatly in any success that I have."

The general store corner was again crowded and the little church filled to capacity when the president and Mrs. Coolidge with John Coolidge, their son, and the president's father walked across the road for services this afternoon.

"Uncle John" Wilder again led the congregation in singing, which was concluded with "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

The Rev. John White, pastor of the Episcopal church at Sherburne, Vt., who visits this community for services on Sunday afternoons delivered a sermon on "The Divine Presence" emphasizing the need of seeking communion with God.

Two of the candidates for the republican gubernatorial nomination of this state—Roland Stevens and Lieutenant Governor Billings—called here later in the day, both coming almost at the same time.

DAWES DENOUNCES THE SOCIALISTS AND THE KLAN

Augusta, Maine, Aug. 24—(By the A. P.)—Charles G. Dawes, the republican candidate for vice-president, opened his speaking campaign yesterday in Augusta with a declaration of opposition to the Ku Klux Klan and a denunciation of attempts of labor leaders to influence "patriotic, law-abiding union men into a political combination with socialists."

Mr. Dawes had announced he would "shoot at sight from the shoulder, politicians or no politicians," and the audience which gathered at a republican state rally at Island Park near here was prepared for some hot shots. It was taken aback somewhat, however, when the vice-presidential nominee mentioned the Klan by name in his first sentence, discussed that question at some length, and then turned his fire on "politicians cringing before the whip of a few bluffing labor leaders."

"Appeals to racial, religious or class prejudice by minority organizations are opposed to the welfare of all peaceful and civilized communities," he shouted with waving arms after telling of the rise of the Klan in Oklahoma and in Williamson county, Illinois. "Our constitution stands for religious tolerance," he continued. "To inject religious and racial issues into politics is contrary to the welfare of all the people and to the letter and spirit of the constitution of the United States."

The audience stood astonished for a moment for Maine is counted by Klan leaders as one of the states where the organization is strongest; then there was scattering applause, but many of those present merely looked one at another, plainly wondering as to the effect of the statement just made on next month's barometric state election. There was somewhat general applause though when Mr. Dawes concluded the Klan portion of his address by saying:

"I have told you why I am opposed to the Klan. Take what I say into your hearts and consciences, and think it over calmly. However, it may be with the mind, there is no acrimony in conscience."

DE VALERA ADDRESSED HUGE CROWD IN DUNDALK

Dundalk, Ireland, Aug. 24.—(By The A. P.)—A large crowd gathered in Market square here today to listen to a speech by Eamon de Valera. Mr. De Valera was escorted to Dundalk by volunteer soldiers.

In his speech, De Valera declared that one of the greatest honors he had ever received was in being chosen with Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, to represent County Down in the northern parliament. He was a member of both Irish parliaments, but he never attended the sessions of either of them because he was opposed to them.

The position of the republican cabinet, De Valera said, was that it was willing to give the Ulster a parliament within the Irish state for its own social affairs and with as much autonomy as was consistent with the national unity. The republicans also were willing to give parliaments to Connaught, Minister and Leinster. Personally, he declared, he was a believer in devolution.

Mr. De Valera declared that, now, as in 1921, he held no feeling of hostility for the peoples in the British overseas dominions, who were in a large measure of Irish stock and proud of Ireland as the mother-land of their race.

"Political association with these peoples," said De Valera, "is in no way repugnant to my feelings nor to the feelings of my cabinet colleagues, and a vast majority of thinking republicans. But imperialism every Irish nationalist detests. We have suffered too much from domination and exploitation to desire to participate in or accept responsibility for the domination or exploitation of other peoples or to become involved in imperialistic wars.

"For as progress lies not in the conflicts of empires for supremacy, but in a general league of national states united in co-operation for common interests."

FINANCIAL MARKET WAS REACTIONARY LAST WEEK

New York, Aug. 24.—Reactionary price movements characterized the principal financial and commodity markets last week. Stock prices lost ground when traders became convenced that th erecent brisk advance had overdiscounted the improvement in trade and business and had left the market in a weakened technical position, which bear traders were quick to discern. "A stiffening of money rates was an important contributing factor to the decline in bond prices, with U. S. government issues among the first to give ground. Foreign exchanges fell back on what was generally described as profit-taking following the agreement on the Dawes report, together with an increased demand for dollars at this season of the year for international trade requirements. Canadian exchanges touched par for the first time since 1922.

Weather conditions were a determining factor in the movement of grain prices, wheat, corn and cotton showing substantial reductions on the week.

Outline of Disarmament Plan.

Geneva, Aug. 25.—(By The A. P.)—With a view to a general repudiation of the draft pact for mutual assistance, the disarmament section of the League of Nations has drawn up an outline of a new tentative project which incorporates a number of features of the so-called American draft pact of disarmament and security. The new project provides that any member of the league may call the attention of the council to the existance of danger of war in some designated region, whereupon the council will meet for an immediate investigation.

CAPTURE RUM RUNNER ON COLCHESTER ROAD

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, Aug. 24—The identity of the mysterious rum runner who has changed his route for the purpose of eluding capture while traveling between Westerly and New Haven, was revealed early Saturday morning, when Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officers William S. Congdon and Stanton L. Briggs of this city and Constable John Reilly of Colchester held up a Ford coupe, on the Colchester turnpike just inside Lebanon town line. The driver was Thomas McKeon, of 272 Exchange Place, New Haven. A search of the car revealed a compartment especially constructed for liquor transportation purposes. Under the seat were found 60 gallons of Belgium alcohol, in six-gallon containers. McKeon was placed under arrest and locked up in Norwich. The Ford car and contents were brought to this city, the car placed in a local garage and the alcohol locked in the vault of the basement of the federal building. The coupe was registered in the name of Ralph Vastola, of 6 Donnelly place, New Haven. McKeon was brought before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson at Norwich charged with transporting liquor. He pleaded guilty. His case was continued to the federal court under bonds of one thousand dollars, which were furnished.

For some time past, the federal officers have been working on a tip regarding a mysterious car seen almost nightly going over various routes. The officers had been waiting for its appearance for over four hours.

ACTION BY CONNECTICUT FEDERATION OF CHURCHES

New Haven, Aug. 24.—The Connecticut Federation of Churches, according to an announcement made today, is cooperating through its committee on comity, rural life and social service, in a movement throughout the state. The plan is in operation in fifteen centers in the state, the statement says, and other Connecticut villages are considering the advisability of adopting the plan.

A brochure entitled "The Country Church of Yesterday and Tomorrow" has been prepared by Rev. Morris E. Alling, secretary of the Connecticut Federation of Churches, which describes the village of Northford as being typical of many communities in the state where the federated church would prove advantageous.

SYDNEY BARD, BROOKLYN, IN COLLISION WITH WAGON

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, August 24—Sydney Bard of Brooklyn, driving a Jewett five passenger touring car which bore the registry number 25407, hit a wagon crossing the highway in front of the moving automobile. The affair was reported to the local police. The collision occurred in the Lower Village as the machine was entering the city. The parties arrived at a mutual agreement. The spokes of one of the front wheels of the wagon were knocked out while the front mud guard of the machine was damaged. The identity of the owner of the team was not given out.

WAGON STRUCK BY TROLLEY CAR IN WATERBURY

Waterbury, Aug. 24—An unidentified man, presumably a farmer, was probably fatally injured this evening when his wagon was struck by a Connecticut company trolley car on Watertown avenue, near Carter street. The wagon was demolished and the man was so seriously crushed beneath the wreckage that hospital authorities believe he will die.

No marks of identification could be found in the man's clothes and the police have been unable to obtain any clue as to who he may be. The trolley car was operated by Motorman Frank Foody, of this city. He is not held.

Bridgeport, Aug. 24—Chinese from New Haven, New York and Waterbury, were among a group arrested early today when police raided a Chinese gambling house at 453 Water street this city, confiscating $2,500 in cash which was strewn over the tables in the place.

Among those arrested in the raid are: George Lee, New York; Leong Gun, 15 Mott street, New York; Charles Hing, Waterbury, and Charles Long, New Haven.

Details of Murder Of Major Imbrie

Was Beaten Unconscious by Mob Which Thought the Major Had Poisoned a Sacred Well.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 24.—A detailed story of the death of Major Robert Imbrie, acting American consul at Teheran, Persia, killed July 18 by a fanatical mob, has been sent by Dr. H. P. Hackard, his physician, in a letter to George K. End, Imbrie's "buddie" during the World war.

Dr. Hackard attended Major Imbrie in a Teheran hospital where he was taken after being beaten unconscious by the mob which thought he had poisoned a sacred well. The crowd smashed its way into the hospital to renew the attack as Major Imbrie lay dying, Dr. Hackard said.

"At a sacred well, near the center of the city," the letter said, "Mussulmen had been performing extraordinary feats of fanaticism for several days.

"It was reported that on Friday, July 18 (the holy day of the Mohammedans), the exhibition at the sacred well would be especially interesting.

"Shortly before 10 a. m., Major Imbrie, with Melvin Seymour, an American, and a native servant, went to the well in an open carriage. The exact details as to what happened after they approached the well are not clear, but it is reported that a Mohammedan priest suddenly cried out, pointing to Major Imbrie, "He has put poison in the well."

"Major Imbrie and his companion returned to the carriage and drove rapidly toward the center of the city. They were followed by a crowd headed by a number of native police and soldiers, repeating the cry raised at the well. A native on a motorcycle stopped the carriage and the increasing mob surrounded it.

"Major Imbrie vigorously defended himself. He was dragged from the carriage, but managed to run to the south side of the avenue, where he could better defend himself with his back to the wall. His companion was dragged to the north side, directly in front of the entrance of the military headquarters. Major Imbrie was driven to the center of the avenue again, where a Cossack officer dealt him a blow on the head with his sword.

"My servant, who was passing at the time, recognized the consul, ran to police headquarters near by, and several officers with a group of policemen rushed to the place, taking Major Imbrie to police headquarters, where the hospital is.

"The mob broke through the door, smashing it and three windows in the place, tearing tiles from the floor and again attacked Major Imbrie, raining many additional blows on his head and face.

"Although Major Imbrie sustained about 135 wounds and contusions, none of them was sufficiently serious to have caused his death. The shock was tremendous, however, and he survived it only until 2.30 in the afternoon."

WILL TURN STOWAWAYS OVER TO THE U. S. NAVY

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Aug. 24. (By The A. P.) — Any stowaways found on board the dirigible ZR-3 after the aircraft starts for her hangar in Lakehurst, New Jersey, there to be turned over to the United States navy, will have a parachute attached to them and gently tossed overboard.

This announcement was made today by officers of the Zeppelin plant, where the airship is being built. They asserted that strong efforts would be made to prevent any unauthorized individuals from making the triu across the ocean. Thousands of applications have been received from persons who desire to make the voyage.

The personnel of the flight over the seas, it is announced, will consist of twenty-six Germans, officers and men. The Americans on board will be Captain George W. Steele, Jr., and Lieutenant Commander Sydney M. Kraus, U. S. N., and Major Frank M. Kennedy, U. S. army. There also will be a mascot on board, but whether it will be a cat, dog, goat or canary, has not yet been decided upon.

The inflation of the gas bags of the dirigible, begun a week ago, has been completed, and the ZR-3 is being held in ballast in her hangar preparatory to the initial technical flight which it is proposed to start on Wednesday.

SEEKING FINANCIAL AID FOR LAFOLLETTE CAMPAIGN

New York, Aug. 24.—A million individual campaign contributions are sought for the LaFollette campaign fund, Herman L. Kern, attorney general of Wisconsin and joint national financial director of the fund, announced today.

"The LaFollette-Wheeler campaign fund plan is simply that the people of the country shall underwrite the campaign of their candidates just as Wall street has underwritten its candidates," said Kern. "The statement that 90 per cent. of the campaign fund of both parties come from New York city, made by Senator Lodge last year, has never been challenged. The LaFollette-Wheeler campaign, on the other hand, must be financed by the rank and file of the people."

French Chamber Votes For Dawes Plan

Vote Was 336 to 204 or 26 More Votes Than Its Normal Majority—Was Under Discussion 35 Hours.

Paris, Aug. 24—(By the A. P.)—The chamber of deputies has given its approval to the London conference methods for putting the Dawes plan into execution and has voted confidence in Premier Herriot's government, 336 to 204, some twenty-six more votes than its normal majority. The debate began Thursday afternoon and ended at 4.30 this morning. Thirty-five hours of the time was spent in speech-making.

After the communists had succeeded in disturbing the first day's debate by noisy rowdyism, the discussion maintained a high level, devoid of unseemly incidents which so frequently mar the chamber's proceedings.

The impassioned tone of M. Herriot in his speech last night was in marked contrast to the matter-of-fact statement which he made in opening, and, as the Figaro remarks, "although he added no fresh arguments he enlarged and adorned his preceding declaration". The Figaro expresses dread of the dangers France runs through trusting in the good nature of the premier, which it considers so liable to be exploited by others.

His final phrase—"The London accords do not bring entire peace: we bring only hope of it"—leads the Temps to say; "the country after four years of feeble peace is asked still to carry forward the realization and live in hope. The country is wearied of hopes."

The figure in which M. Herriot sees the first gleams of dawn rising over the London fogs, proclaiming that France is clear of the night, with its pangs and bloodshed, evokes the comment; the people of France would much prefer the gleam of the gold mark."

There is some disposition to obtain fuller details of Marshal Foch's opinion respecting France's security, as to when and how he said: "The conditions of the treaty of Versailles are largely sufficient for France's security," as Foch is credited with an earlier opinion that permanent occupation of the Rhine would constitute the true security of the country.

OPIUM DEN IN HARTFORD WAS RAIDED SATURDAY

Hartford, Aug. 24—An opium den at number 56 Market street, which is said by the police to have been one of the most complete and well stocked ever uncovered in Hartford, was raided late Saturday afternoon by Detective Sergeants Thomas Hickey and C. J. Haley, of the vice squad in conjunction with federal narcotic agents Robert A. Finefeck and T. A. Kelly, of New Haven.

The two keepers of the establishment, Yee Kee Hong and Aug Hong were arrested and held under $300 bond for violation of the federal narcotic act. Three frequenters of the place, Jong Gow, Wong Kee and Yeum Kee were arrested and held under $100 bond.

The raiders seized several sets of smoking paraphernalia. When they entered the room one customer was sprawled on one of the several bunks along the wall. According to the police he was smoking opium. One of the proprietors denied that the place was being used as a dive for opium smokers and the attempt of the other to verify his statement by appearing in a sociable mood failed to convince the officers. A thorough search revealed a large quantity of the raw product and pellets ready for pipes, hidden in a black handbag in a waste box in the kitchen.

The bunks in the room were planks resting on boxes and covered with blankets. It is believed that the men are members of the "dope ring" which reaches all parts of the country.

AMERICAN FLIERS ARRIVE AT IVIGTUT, GREENLAND

The Two Planes Made the Jump, 126 Miles, From Frederikshavn, in Two Hours and Fifteen Minutes—Italians Are Becoming Anxious About the Fate of Missing Airmen—Two American Airplanes Launched From Cruisers to Search For the Missing Airmen.

Skirting the coast, they covered the 126 miles from Frederiksdal, where they found a haven after their hazardous journey from Iceland, in a little more than two hours.

In a message announcing arrival of the two planes at Ivigtut, Lieutenant Smith, in command, said motors would be changed and both machines completely overhauled before the next lap of the flight—500 miles across water to Indian Harbor, Labrador—is attempted.

Lieutenant Smith made no reference to Lieutenant Locatelli, missing Italian aviator, who set out with the Americans from Iceland but failed to arrive with them at Frederiksdal.

From the cruiser Milwaukee, in waters nearby, came the word, however, that the search for Locatelli was continuing and that the Danish authorities were cooperating to the utmost.

Lieutenant Smith's message addressed to Major Patrick, chief of the army air service, said that a pontoon of his plane had been damaged by ice last night, even though protected by the Island Falk, a Danish steamer, and that sailors and natives had been employed to keep the ice away.

Another radio dispatch also addressed to General Patrick, came from the Milwaukee and gave the terse information that the planes took off from Frederiksdal at 1.50 (Greenwich mean time), and had "arrived O. K." at Ivigtut at 4.09 p. m.—two hours and nineteen minutes later.

Neither message indicated clearly that the flight was made today, although army and navy officers here were certain this was true. Smith's dispatch was not timed nor dated. The message from the Milwaukee arrived here at 3.55 p. m. (Eastern standard time).

Before the getaway from Ivigtut was made, the Milwaukee sent another message, which mentioned Lieutenant Locatelli. It said that the Americans were held at Frederiksdal by fog but that the weather was improving.

This dispatch, garbled considerably, said that the search for the missing Italian had covered "4200 square miles" and that the Danish authorities were sending out searching parties and doing their utmost to locate him.

The cruiser Raleigh, General Patrick was told, was proceeding to Bay Island, while the cruiser Richmond would continue the search for Lieutenant Locatelli if its supply of fuel permitted.

The Milwaukee also sent word that a request might be forwarded to have two destroyers sent to the Gulf of Maine to assist in guarding the flight from Pictou Harbor, Nova Scotia to Boston.

Army air service officials were gratified that Lieutenant Smith and his companions had advanced to Ivigtut without mishap, although they had contemplated no difficulty in bridging that relatively short distance.

A real test it was agreed, faces the two pilots and their mechanics on their next jump, which will be entirely across water, although the distance is considerably shorter than that successfully covered between Iceland and the south tip of Greenland.

ITALIANS BECOMING ANXIOUS OVER THE FATE OF LOCATELLI

Rome, Aug. 25.—(By The A. P.)—The entire nation is expressing the keenest anxiety over the fate of Lieutenant Locatelli, who has been missing since he started with the American fliers, Lieutenant Smith and Lieutenant Nelson, on a flight from Iceland to Greenland last week.

Everywhere the people of Italy had been watching Locatelli's flight from Pisa and were hoping for a successful termination of it on the American continent.

Gratitude is universally felt for the energetic efforts of the American navy in its search for Locatelli.

Experts are of the opinion that the durability of Locatelli's machine, and the quality of the provisions and the tools he carried with him, warrants the hope that he yet will be found.

TWO AIRPLANES ARE SEARCHING FOR LOCATELLI

On Board the U. S. S. Lawrence, Off the Coast of Greenland, Aug. 22.—By The A. P.)—The United States cruisers Richmond and Raleigh today launched two airplanes each with the object of making ready for brief surveys of the region roundabout, in the search for the missing Italian aviator, Lieutenant Locatelli. At considerable hazard the American aviators were catapulted from the ship over the ice-strewn water. The weather at the time was not propitious and as there was a heavy fog over the mainland not much progress in the way of searching was made.

A message has been broadcast to all ships in the Greenland coast harbors asking that they join in the search. Eskimo parties have also been recruited for that purpose. Lack of adequate charts and communications complicates the matter, but with more favorable weather, which is expected tomorrow, more satisfactory results may be attained.

PLANES SEARCHED ABOUT 5,000 SQUARE MILES SUNDAY

On Board the U. S. S. Richmond, off the Coast of Greenland, Aug. 23 (delayed, by the A. P.).—Planes from the United States cruisers Richmond and Raleigh searched approximately 5,000 square miles today in the hope of finding some trace of Lieut. Locatelli, the missing Italian aviator.

Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder, in charge of the naval patrol, declares that the search will be continued until it is certain that Locatelli is not on the coast of East Greenland within measureable distance of the sea, outside the icepack, where the ships are unable to enter.

Captain West of the Danish ship Island Falk has organized a searching party along the east coast. Already the Danes have given great assistance in the difficult work.

AGRICULTURE NOT YIELDING COMMERCIAL INTEREST

Washington, Aug. 24.—American agriculture, since the slump of 1920 has not yielded a commercial interest return on its invested capital or a fair wage for the average farm operator and his family. This conclusion, reached by agricultural department experts, probably will be one of the first to be placed before President Coolidge's proposed agricultural relief commission here.

Other conclusions arrived at by the departmental experts, who recently have completed a series of studies of farm income, also are expected to serve as a basis of data for the committee, which the president in his acceptance speech, said would be appointed for the purpose of helping agriculture to a basis of economic equality with other industries.

Information gathered by the experts shows that the low point of the agricultural depression was touched in 1920-21, with some improvement the following year. In the last two years the improvement has been quite noticeable, and the department asserts indications are that it will continue.

As a means of gauging how the agricultural depression has affected farm standards of living in the four years since 1919-20, the department points out that in this period wholesale prices of all commodities declined 25 to 30 per cent, retail prices of 22 food articles 30 to 35 per cent, and living costs 13 to 15 per cent, while the farmer's income declined as much as 50 to 72 per cent. These figures relate to agriculture as a whole and to the average farmer.

The average farm operator, after deducting a commercial interest return on his capital, actually earned less than was paid to common hired hands during the five-year period, according to the studies.

Interest paid on total farm indebtedness consumed all capital earnings in the crop years 1920-21 and 1921-22, the statistics show. In the next two years, there was a return of 3.1 per cent on total capital invested. This investment was written down from $79,607,000,000 in 1920 to $59,400,000,000. Land and buildings by themselves, were written down from $66,216,000,000 to $49,500,000,000. That is the department's estimate of the extent to which the value of property used in agriculture declined from 1919 to 1923-24.

FIND DAYLIGHT SAVING DETRIMENTAL TO CHILDREN

New York, Aug. 24.—A new objection to daylight saving was hinted at today when the Children's Aid society announced it would investigate the condition of 5,000 children in its ten health centers to determine whether or not the extra hour of daylight is detrimental to their welfare.

Children will not go to bed while there is light enough to play, it was said. In order to induce them to retire some parents resort to "penny bribing," a system which the society considers more harmful than loss of sleep because of the extra amount of cheap candy the youngsters purchase with their money.

BISHOP HAMILTON PREACHES AT CAMP MEETING SUNDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic Camp Ground, Aug. 24—Today was "big Sunday" at Willimantic camp ground. It opened with an old-fashioned Methodist love-feast in the grove and auditorium at 8.30, under the leadership of the secretary of the camp-ground association, Rev. F. C. Baker, of Bridgeton, R. I. Many fervent testimonies were given and rousing hymns were sung.

The preacher was Rev. L. H. Dorchester, D. D., of Hartford. After an inspiring praise service led by Prof. H. U. Leedy, Rev. F. W. Gray, of Rockville led in the Apostles' Creed.

Prayer was offered by Rev. J. G. Sallis, of Mystic. Dr. Dorchester read from John I.

District Superintendent Bath of Norwich made announcements and the offering was taken.

Dr. Dorchester's text was John 1:9 "That was the true light that lighteth every man which cometh into the world." "The Religion of the Inner Light," was his theme. He spoke of George Fox, layman, as emphasizing a truth today, even as Absaham, Joseph and Moses and David were laymen and spoke out their inner experiences. The conscience needs enlightenment along such lines as that of Christian stewardship of prayer and of the baptism of the Holy Ghost.

The Stafford Springs Heuds was crowded at the 1 p. m. service, led by Everett Huntington, of East Thompson. The pastor, Rev. J. R. Wilbur had charge at six o'clock.

A great audience of perhaps a thousand stretched beyond the wings and back of the tabernacle or were within hearing distance on the verandas of the surrounding church cottage, when Bishop John W. Hamilton of Washington, D. C., arose to preach. The usual praise meeting began the service. Dr. George P. Jones of Wilmington conference offered prayer. The chorus rendered a selection. Two organs were used jointly at the services one played by Miss Sarah Greer of Thompsonville, the other by Miss Marjorie Stephens of Vernon. Bishop Hamilton's text was II Timothy 2:14. He spoke of the value of memory, both in this world and the next. Heaven, is based on memory. We are to remember Jesus' incarnation and resurrection. The bishop strongly stood for the virgin birth of Christ and His resurrection.

The Epworth League had a meeting at 6 p. m. at which the certificates of attendance at the Institute, were awarded.

The preacher of the closing sermon in the evening, was Rev. F. D. Grant, of Warren, Mass.

The tabernacle had out few empty seats, Saturday evening. After a rousing praise service under Prof. Loedy, Rev. M. S. Stocking of Westerly read the 13th of First Corinthians and Rev. H. H. Conklin of Danielson offered prayer. The chorus choir sang a fine selection. The text of the speaker, Bishop John W. Hamilton, was Isaiah 2:4. By argument and illustration the bishop presented a strong arraignment of war, and declared that the only power which could settle anything was love, such as Christ exhibited in His sacrificial death on the cross.

The Norwich District Epworth League held its annual meeting in the tabernacle at 1 p. m., Saturday, the president, Rev. N. E. Burton, occupying the chair. The number registered at the institute this season was 725. It was voted that the institute contribute $250 to the Campmeeting association. The following officers were elected: President, Rev. N. E. Burton, Putnam; first vice president, James Greer, Thompsonville; second vice president, Rev. R. C. Stimpson, Vernon; fourth vice president, Miss Gertrude Bruce, Stafford; fourth vice president, Rev. Frank W. Gray, Rockville; secretary, F. B. Florian, East Hartford; treasurer, Miss Marjorie Stevens, Vernon; district junior league superintendent, Miss Ruth La Forge, Hockanum.

The closing morning watch Saturday was led by Rev. H. H. Conklin, of Danielson, whose theme was Self-Consecration, which he said was composed of humility and obedience.

The final periods of the institute were held during the forenoon. Dean Athearn in his final talk at 8.25, gave an instructive talk on the psychology of human personality. Epworth chapel was filled so that many were standing in the rear. He claimed that both intellect and emotion and will made up personality. He maintained it was silly to say that a creed was unnecessary, for all acts depend upon what you believe. Knowledge brings appreciation, and love. The will is the ruler, and results in behaviour.

In the next period Dean Athearn emphasized that our country is for freedom in this way, that the minority must obey the majority in everything but religion, and all have freedom of speech and of the press. He stressed the fact that Sunday school instruction should be as thorough as that of day schools. Matter, mind and method are the necessary things to know in order to have successful teaching.

Dr. Cleland in his final hour of Bible Study took for his subject the prophet Jonah, the story of which he termed the Good Samaritan of the Old Testament, where a Jew is commissioned to go to a hated and wicked people, the Ninevites. The real message of the prophets was that Israel was to be a spiritual people rather than a world power, and that God was to be revealed to the world through right character.

In spite of shewery weather the tabernacle was well filled Saturday afternoon at 2, to hear Bishop John W. Hamilton who, though now retired, the district superintendent introduced as "one of our most active bishops."

Prayer was offered by Rev. J. B. Aldrich of Norwich Town. Bishop Hamilton read the 11th chapter of Acts. He prefaced the sermon with an interesting story of a visit he made several years ago to the Sandwich Islands. Judges 3: 20, "I have a message from God unto thee," was the bishop's text. The Old Testament was a book of flood and war. Yet we get lessons from God—first, that God is near at hand and approachable, again that we must all be messengers for God, and must be the embodiment of the message.

The annual meeting of Willimantic Camp Meeting association was held in the Niantic house, Saturday, at 4 p. m. The district superintendent, Rev. W. H. Bath of Norwich, was in the chair, and offered prayer. Miss Helen Dyson, secretary of the Cottage Holders' meeting, read the list of delegates chosen for this meeting and they were confirmed. Rev. F. C. Baker, secretary of the Camp Meeting association, read the minutes of the various meetings of the executive committee held during the year.

A nominating committee, consisting of Rev. W. C. Darby, Tolland; F. B. Florian, East Hartford, and Mrs. Stephen Dunston, of Willimantic, was appointed by the chair, and brought in the list for officers and Secretary Baker cast a ballot for the following: President, the district superintendent; vice president, Rev. Joseph Cooper, of South Manchester; secretary, Rev. F. C. Baker (for 19th year); treasurer, Van R. Wheeler, Providence; trustee for five years, E. A. Cleaveland, Providence; three years, H. M. Randall, Port Jefferson, N. Y.; Rev. J. Cooper; Theodore M. Lyon, Stafford Springs; one year, Rev. A. S. Muirhead, Willimantic.

Rev. F. C. Baker read resolutions respecting the death of one who had for many years been a member of the executive committee, Costello Lippitt, of Norwich. It was voted that these resolutions which were signed by Van R. Wheeler and F. C. Baker, be adopted.

W. W. Gordon of Hazardville and Rev. W. C. Darby were appointed to draw up resolutions of appreciation for Rev. W. H. Bath's splendid service for six years as president.

The account was audited by Rev. F. C. Baker.

The report of the treasurer was adopted. Rev. J. R. Miller of East Thompson, president of the Stafford Springs House Camp Meeting association, asked that their program be incorporated in the regular program for 1925, and it was voted this be done.

The district superintendent announced that Brother Costello Lippitt's funeral would take place Monday at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, Norwich.

The tabernacle was well filled Friday evening. Prof. Leedy led an inspiring praise service. Rev. J. W. Carter of Jewett City offered prayer. Rev. V. V. Sawyer prefaced his sermon with congratulatory remarks concerning the fine team work being done by the Willimantic Camp Meeting association and the Norwich District Epworth league; also that the district had been privileged to have Rev. W. H. Bath as superintendent, since by the law of the church he returns to the pastorate.

A local observant citizen said Sunday that he hoped that when Brother C. L. POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

THE BROWN THRUSH

There's a merry brown thrush sitting up in the tree,
He's singing to me!
He's singing to me!
And what does he say, little girl, little boy?
"O, the world's running over with joy,
But I'm glad! Now I'm free!
And I always shall be,
If you never bring sorrow to me."

So the merry brown thrush sings away in the tree,
To you and to me, to you and to me,
And he sings all the day, little girl, little boy,
"O, the world's running over with joy;
But I won't be,
Don't you know? Don't you see?
Unless we are as good as can be."

By Lucy Larcom.

THE GRASSHOPPER AND THE CRICKET

Green little vaulter in the sunny grass,
Catching your heart up at the feet of June,
Sole voice that's heard amidst the lazy noon,
When e'en the bees lag at the summoning brass;
And you, warm little housekeeper, who class
With those who think the candles come too soon,
Loving the fire, and with your tricksome tune,
Nick the glad silent moments as they pass:
O sweet and tiny cousins, that belong,
One to the fields, the other to the hearth,
Both have your sunshine; both, though small, are strong
At your clear hearts; and both have given to earth
To sing in thoughtful ears this natural song—
Indoors and out, Summer and Winter—Mirth!

By Leigh Hunt.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

How many members of the Wide Awake Circle have ever stopped to wonder why it is that grass is green, leaves of trees and plants green, in fact, wondered why it is that so much of nature is green? Possibly this has never presented itself as a question to you, but really now, when you stop to think how restful a color green is to the eye, it simply makes you think that nature is certainly taking care of its own.

Almost everywhere on this earth there is some kind of life, more abundant of course where there is more to feed upon, than where there is little or nothing on which to live. By this simple method nature takes care of distribution of living things, for things exist only in places where nature distributed kinds of food that they live upon.

One great food, of all the possible foods of life, by far the most abundant and widely distributed, is carbonic acid. Carbonic acid is distributed in the air, and, therefore, is distributed with the air, wherever there is life of any kind on this earth. Thus on this earth the most widely distributed life is that which feeds upon carbonic acid, the only kind of life which does this being that which produces the green substance, known as chlorophyll—one of the most important chemical compounds in the world.

That is the reason why so much of nature is green, and it means even more for it shows us that for us to live, there must be a certain quantity of green life in nature. Man destroyed large quantities of green life every year and many of you Wide Awakes eat some green life with your meals, especially during the summer months. However this green life always exists on the earth, at least, until humane learn how to make use of carbonic acid, as does the plant, but there seems little possibility that this is ever to happen.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

ONE GOOD TURN DESERVES ANOTHER

Dear Uncle Jed: It was a cold morning. Frank was on his way to school. His red cap was pulled down over his ears. He was dragging his sled over the snow.

"Frank, Frank, wait for me," called little Teddie, who was standing in the doorway of a white house. His mother was trying to button his coat, but the little fellow was in a hurry to go to school.

"There's Teddie French," said Frank to himself. "Now I suppose I must pull him to school on my sled. It's too bad." Frank went up the street as if he didn't hear him.

Teddie ran after him. But his little legs couldn't go very fast. "Oh, Frank," he called again. "Do wait." Frank didn't turn his head. An old man on the other side of the street looked back and smiled at Teddie. Teddie didn't smile. He was afraid Frank didn't wish to hear. Frank was still talking to himself. "I might as well wait." He was a nice little boy. I can give up the long slide today." Then he turned back. "Come on Teddie," said he. "Would you like to ride?" Teddie sat himself on the sled completely out of breath, but full of joy. Frank was good to him after all. The old man then crossed the street. "Could two boys sit on the sled?" he asked. "Yes sir," Frank answered. The man then took them for a ride.

MY TRIP TO STORRS COLLEGE

Dear Uncle Jed: Two years ago some of the Voluntown school girls organized a cooking club with our teacher, Mrs. Peckham for the leader. The club was composed of 14 members. Thirteen girls and one boy. We have our meetings every two weeks.

On Monday August 4th, 1924, Mrs. Peckham came to my house to tell me the club had decided to go to Storrs Agricultural college on the following Thursday (Aug. 7th.) We were to go in four different cars and there was one car which accompanied us. We each carried a basket lunch. We all enjoyed the ride there and also the sights we saw when we arrived. There were tropical fruit trees and many beautiful flowers. I think we all enjoyed the trip immensely and arrived home about 10 o'clock tired but happy.

SAVED A SWALLOW

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write and tell you about a swallow. One afternoon as I was going to the barn, I saw a little baby swallow trying to fly. I though it had fallen out of the nest, but when I picked it up I saw it had a long horse hair twisted around it's wing. I brought it to my mother and she took the hair off. Then the little swallow flew out of my mother's hands, and after that the little bird wasn't wounded. I will close hoping all the Wide Awakes will be kind to the birds and dumb animals. Try and help them all you can if possible, when in trouble.

FOR MY PAPA

Dear Uncle Jed: It was a cold winter day. Snow lay thick on the ground and trees. It covered the brown cottage where Jack lived. It covered the road and fences, and hid the bushes.

Jack's papa was an engineer. The cottage wasn't far from the station. Just as the big clock in the tower struck five, the door of the cottage opened and little Jack ran out.

"Good bye," said Jack to his mamma.

"Oh, you didn't give me a kiss for papa," he said, as he ran back to the house to get it.

"Here it is dear," said mamma.

"Are you sure you are quite warm?"

"Yes indeed," said Jack, "I couldn't be cold with my new coat and mittens and cap."

Mother watched Jack until he turned into the broad street. As she went back into the house, she said to herself, He's almost too small to go himself, but he is such a brave little fellow. Jack was five years old, but he felt very much older as he carried his papa's supper to him. He went along very proudly with his big tin pail. It was so heavy that he had to take it first in one hand and then in the other. He ran quickly along, and just as he turned the corner, something ran into him.

To be continued next week.

A TRIP TO WOODSTOCK

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to tell you about my trip to Woodstock. We arrived there about noon and ate our lunch under the shady trees. We stayed there about two hours visiting friends. On our way back we visited Roseland Park. It was very pretty.

We returned home just as it was getting dark after a very pleasant day.

OUR PETS

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write you about my little sisters' and brothers' pets.

We have two goats, a billy and a nany, two kittens, one gray and the other yellow.

The gray kitten will let us do anything we want with him. Yesterday I took it to the store about a mile away, and gave him some ice cream. Oh, he played as if he enjoyed it very much.

Our goats are always into mischief. They climb onto my big brother's auto and onto any machine that may be in the yard.

They get into my dad's garden and eat cabbage and a number of other things, but we have so much pleasure with them that we just let all the mischief they get into glid by.

I will not write any more for this time, but will write again soon.

CLARA M. GRDENK, Age 10.

AN OUTDOOR SUPPER

Dear Uncle Jed: One day the Pequot Camp Fire Girls met at Franklin Square to go on a hike.

We took the West Side car, and, stopping at Maple's Corner, we hiked down Maple street and leaving the road at the East Great Plain school, we turned into the woods.

After walking about three miles and a half we stopped and cooked our supper. We built a fire and heated some large flat stones over it. After the stones were hot we laid strips of bacon on them and cooked them. Those that wanted fried eggs took half a slice of bread and cut a large hole in the center of it. The egg was then broken in the hole. After it was done, it was taken off and put on a slice of bread. If you wanted a boiled egg you had to roll your egg in mud until it was about three times its usual size. The eggs were put in the ashes. When you heard a pop, you could take out the egg. There wouldn't be any dirt on it then. Those that didn't have bacon and eggs had hot dogs.

The next time I write it will be about my camping trip.

Isabel Kennedy, Age 14.

ON THE FARM

Dear Uncle Jed: Imagine my joy one morning when my mother said we were to go to the farm.

We started early in the morning and arrived at 10:30. There were only two houses in sight, my cousins and the one we were staying at. It seemed very funny to get drinking water out of a pail instead of a faucet but it seemed funnier still not to have an electric light at night. The next morning as I was going to gather the eggs I heard a bell and looking down the road saw my cousin driving the cows to the pasture. Saturday I went to market in the wagon.

Friday I went to my first country dance and it seemed very funny to see women there with their children as the day for our return trip drew near we all picked huckleberries to take home to can. I felt very sad but was cheered as I thought of the nice long letter I would have to write to you.

MY PET CAT

Dear Uncle Jed: My pet cat's name is Beauty. She is a very nice cat and is the pet of the household.

When we sit down to read beside the window she will jump up on us and purr.

One day Beauty caught a little mouse. She was playing with it and when she was not looking the mouse ran into the wood box. We took all the wood out but we could not find it.

I expect to write another story about her very soon.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Loaded Down With Lollypops

"The sweetest music I have heard
Is the song of a little forest bird.
The coolest spot I've ever been
Is a mossy couch beneath the green
Twinkling leaves of a shady tree.
Oh, the woods are the place I love to be."

sang the Yellow Tramp, as he laid aside his old straw hat and stretched out his hind legs. Then, taking out his corncob pipe, he filled it with cabbage leaf tobacco and smoked awhile. By and by as he sat

"It's you and nobody else"

there, puffing contentedly on his old pipe, a slight noise made him prick up his ears. Who can that be?" he asked himself, very softly, you know, so that no one could hear him.

There it came again. "clinkerty cling, clinkerty, clink!"

Rising to his feet, the Yellow Dog Tramp looked quickly up the Shady Forest Trail. "Clinkerty clink, clinkerty clink!" There, it came again for the third time. The next moment Little Jack Rabbit came hopping down the path, his red striped candy cane swinging from his left paw and his knapsack bouncing up and down on his back, "Clinkerty clink."

"Ha, ha-" barked the Yellow Dog Tramp, "So it's you and nobody else. Glad to see you."

"Dearegg me, I'm glad it's you, old friend," panted the bunny boy. "I'm all out of breath. My knapsack is so heavy."

"What you got in it?" asked his nice tramp friend. With a wag of his tail.

"Lollypops," shouted the little rabbit.

"Lollypops, all pink and blue
Maybe a couple of hundred or two."

"Gracious me, enough for a picnic," barked the Yellow Dog Tramp.

"How did you guess it?" questioned the bunny boy, sitting down beside his kind old friend. "Anybody tell you?"

"Well, perhaps," answered the Yellow Dog Tramp. "I know lots of little birds."

"I wanted a surprise," sighed the little rabbit. "I hopped up early this morning to the Big Brown Bear's Cosy Cave, but I never thought anyone saw me."

"Never mind and don't worry," replied the old dog, soothingly. "I was only joking. Nobody told me."

"I'm so glad," answered the bunny boy, "'cause Mother and I have planned such a good time for tomorrow. We're going to give a picnic party. Want to come?"

"Of course," agreed the Yellow Dog Tramp, with a happy bark.

"I haven't been to a picnic
For so many and many a year.
I hope that Mr. Merry Sun
Will shine down bright and clear."

"Oh, he will, I'm sure," laughed the bunny boy. "Billy Breeze has promised to keep the rain-clouds away."

"I'll carry your knapsack," said the Yellow Dog Tramp, placing his tattered straw hat on his head, just a little over his left ear, and away they went, the little rabbit, slipperty clip and the old dog trotterty trot, until, pretty soon, not so very far, they reached the dear Old Bramble Patch.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Writing to The Bulletin relative to people here seeing a brilliant star in the daytime, James N. Tucker of East Killingly makes the following interesting statement:

Julius and others are mistaken. They have not seen Mars by daylight, as it is not at present above the horizon, except during the night, when it is a magnificent orb, easily distinguished by its brilliancy and red color.

Saturday, the 23rd, it was in opposition to the sun, therefore rose at sunset. By 10 p. m. it was in a good position for observation. Astronomers are saying that it will not be as near the earth again for many years.

The planet seen by Julius and others is Venus, which now rises about 1.30 a. m., about 3 1-2 hours before the sun, consequently that much ahead of the sun during the day, and far enough removed from the brightness of the sun to be visible. If you should be so fortunate (or unfortunate) as to be up at 2 a. m., you can now see both planets—Venus low down in the east and Mars in the southwest.

Since my boyhood days I have been somewhat of a star-gazer, but have never been able to get a daylight view of any of the planets except Venus and Jupiter. I think that, during its daylight voyage overhead, Mars is too far away and small to be visible.

I think, however, that when favorably located, about April 4, Sirius, a brilliant fixed star, known as the "dog star," may be seen a while before sunset.

Of interest to young people of Killingly and surrounding towns is the following relative to the Putnam Trade school:

Although the State Trade school continues throughout the year, vacations being arranged for students and faculty without closing, there is usually a considerable increase in the enrollment at the beginning of the regular school term which starts this year Sept. 3rd. This includes prevocational, trade and home economics instruction to approximately 300 boys and girls of the grammar schools. Also first year home economics work for high school girls and upper class students electing these courses, together with high school co-operative courses in the trades for boys.

The regular all-day courses are in good demand. These are outlined on the basis of general trade practice and related subjects involved, are intensive in nature and designed to fit for useful employment in the trades immediately upon completion of the courses.

Instructors in charge of the various departments are as follows: Home economics department, Miss Hannah E. Pease, Miss Ethel E. Spooner; drafting department, C. L. Ransom; machine department, K. J. Bogardus; electrical department, J. R. McCormick; textile department, C. S. Blossom; carpentry department, Ernest Starr.

Co-operative high school courses should prove attractive to the boy who wants to make the most of his time, as this course provides opportunity for general high school education and a trade training in four years.

Early application for instruction in the various courses will help the faculty in getting the new students properly placed, schedule arranged and school organized for this larger enrollment without undue loss of time.

"None of my money does me so much good as that which I gave to the South Killingly church." This is a quotation from Rev. W. S. Beard, whose family name has long been identified with the activities of the community where the church referred to is located.

The remark is particularly significant at just this time—the eve of another Old Home gathering on the church grounds. During the past two years the church has built a community house, bought a piano, made expensive and extensive repairs on the church tower, floor supports, pews and windows of the meeting house and painted the same; has done the turfing and grading made necessary on account of the cut incident to the building of a new state highway past the church property, installed an acetylene lighting plant and carried on its regular work, which includes transportation of children in the church school to Danielson at a considerable expense.

Unusual emphasis is being placed on the offering this year. The church needs $600 to complete grading, repairing and painting of its properties, to furnish needed equipment and to carry on the regular work until the end of the year. The friends of the church who cannot be present on Old Home day are being asked to help by sending their contributions by mail. Old Home day is scheduled for Labor day, as has been the date for years.

There were several minor mishaps with automobiles here because of slippery state road surfaces during the rain of Saturday.

John C. Gilles of Haverhill was a week end visitor with friends in Danielson.

Many a dollar was turned loose by eager buyers in the Dollar day shopping in Danielson. Shoppers were in many cases waiting at the store doors for the business places to open and trade was brisk, when rain cutting in about 12 o'clock spoiled the operations to some extent.

There was evidence that in this season when work has not been too plentiful for many that the fine bargains offered were very much appreciated, and it was again demonstrated that there is plenty of reserve money in the territory and that it will come forth if the inducements for buying are made sufficiently great.

Merchants were pleased at the extra amount of business done. The bargain event brought buyers from widely separated points in eastern Connecticut and all fo them found the trip worth while.

At midnight Friday fire in outbuildings at the Delor Ercmon place on the West Side called out the fire department of Danielson in the Brooklyn fire district. The fire caused only a small amount of damage; but it endangered dwellings and a number of garages in the vicinity. The loss was probably not in excess of $300.

PUTNAM

Miss Celia Smith, daughter of Sam Smith, proprietor of the City hotel, pleaded guilty in the district court at Webster, Saturday morning, to driving an automobile in a reckless manner, so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public. When a fine of $50 was imposed by the court Miss Smith could only produce $25 but the balance was made up by Jack Bloom, who was really responsible as the actual driver of the car owned by Miss Smith.

The arrest was made Thursday night, about midnight, when, according to a Webster policeman, the car came speeding down Lake street, Webster, and passed a number of other cars on the highway without giving any signal by sounding the horn. The officer said that Mis Smith had previously been warned against speeding.

Miss Smith came into the limelight last spring, when she was arrested in Putnam, after officers had chased the car and searched it for intoxicating liquor. No liquor was found, but Miss Smith was arrested for reckless driving and, it has been alleged, with her mother, Mrs. Lea Smith, and other members of the party were taken to the police station and detained there. Miss Smith was found guilty in the Putnam city court and took an appeal and the case is pending.

As the outgrowth of the while transaction Mrs. Lea Smith brought a civil action against Captain William Jarvis and other members of the Putnam police force, claiming false imprisonment. This case has not yet come to trial.

Plans are under way whereby Putnam will carry out a set programme for National Defense Day, September 12th. Alderman-at-Large Charles Richards, in the absence of Mayor Victor Chapdelaine, is organizing a general committee to arrange for whatever demonstration may be decided upon.

The acting mayor plans to invite the heads of all patriotic, civic and fraternal organizations in the city to become members of a general committee on arrangements. As soon as this is accomplished the committee will meet, organize and discuss plans and arrange a programme.

Putnam's headquarters company of the 43rd Division is expected to be under orders for the day as the 35th Brigade, to which the company is temporarily attached has orders to take an active part in the day's programme. Captain John J. McGarry has pledged his full co-operation and that of his command in making the day a success.

It is expected that the schools of Putnam will co-operate and will set apart the afternoon of September 12 to patriotic exercises and addresses.

Having made a recapitulation of matters pertaining to their financial standing, Chautauqua guarantors find that they have got to go into their pockets to make up a deficiency in the guarantee. It is now believed that the assessment will be about $20 each. While it was hoped that the finances would be satisfactory it was feared and anticipated that, in view of local conditions, a deficit would result. Many people who have bought tickets year after year have felt obliged to conserve cash in every way on account of being tied up by bank conditions. The ticket committee worked harder than ever and it was only through their efforts that the deficit was not larger.

There were good sized Chautauqua audiences Saturday and Sunday. The Saturday programme opened with Junior Chautauqua in the morning. In the afternoon there was a concert by the Kennedy-Johns Recital Company, and a lecture, "The Divine Right of Government," by Edward F. Miller. At night the concert was repeated with a lecture, "The Inexcusable Lie," by Private Peat.

Sunday there was a service in the afternoon, with no admittance charge. The Saturday entertainers remained over and participated in the programme. There was music, talks and community singing.

The criminal list as now made up includes a total of 68 cases. The most important cases are two defendants charged with manslaughter, one involving an automobile accident and the other the throwing of a woman downstairs from which she sustained injuries causing death. A case of especial interest to Putnam is that of Patrolman John Ryan of the police department, charged with illegal transporting liquor.

The body of Walter H. Stoutenburg, 82, prominent Woodstock Hill resident, who died at his home there, Thursday evening, was taken to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., his birthplace, where funeral services were held on Sunday.

He found employment and in 1890 became superintendent of the hospital and almshouse in Washington, D. C. He held this position for 21 years and in 1910 bought the Weaver place in Woodstock and moved there.

Mr. Stoutenburg leaves three daughters, Mrs. Thomas W. Barrett, of Poughkeepsie, Mrs. James E. Peckham of Los Angeles and Miss Blanche Stoutenburg of Woodstock, who lived with her father; also two sons, Dr. John A. Stoutenburg and A. H. Stoutenburg, both of Washington, D. C.

Funeral services for Miss Grace L. Moffitt, 67, who died at her home on Walnut street, Thursday afternoon, after a brief illness, were held from the home, Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. Henry D. Baker of the East Woodstock Congregational church officiating. Burial was in the Grove Street cemetery.

start back to Washington Tuesday next, making a short stay with relatives in Providence and New York. Mr. Benoit has to do two weeks' relief duty and will then resume his vacation until congress convenes in December.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miron of Gloucester, R. I., and Attorney and Mrs. Irving H. Miron of Putnam, were in Milbury, Mass., Saturday morning to attend the funeral of their cousin, Mrs. Viola K. Lindsey. During the war Mrs. Lindsey lived in Putnam and acted as assistant clerk of the draft board for this district.

Interest in the local bank situation has turned from the amount of shortage, where money has gone, the condition of Cashier Gilpatric and other matters that have been read with interest for more than a week and is now directed to the two committees working in different fields of endeavor to give Putnam its much needed national banking facilities.

The citizens' committee, made up of men disinterested except in procuring a bank owned and controlled by substantial business men of Putnam's banking community, which impinges neighboring towns, is making progress toward that end. Enough money has been subscribed to assure the organization of a bank when a charter is secured. No further conditional subscriptions are being received it was stated Saturday.

A committee appointed Friday night by a gathering of fifty or sixty stockholders of the old bank entered the field Saturday. The avowed purpose of this committee is to ascertain the exact condition of the First National bank and, it found practical, to arrange for its reopening on a sound financial basis and under the best possible management.

There has been no effort so far to get these two committees together. One committee's objective is a new bank while the other committee's objective is the reorganization of the old bank.

The citizens' committee, backed unanimously by a large citizens' meeting, Thursday, August 14th, is emphatically for a bank owned, managed and controlled by citizens of this banking community. It was with this understanding and purpose that people in this community subscribed a total of nearly $200,000. Every dollar of this represents that the individuals want no outside interference in local banking affairs. It is believed that until such time as Putnam is assured a banking institution locally controlled, the citizens' committee will continue to function.

It was stated at the first citizens' meeting that outside interests had been active relative to coming into the banking field that Putnam affords, even before citizens had recovered from the shock of its tragedy. It was emphasized, when this became known, that such outside efforts were not wanted and that if the people would rally to the support of a new bank, they would not come to pass. The people did so rally.

Two banks have been suggested. This matter was also brought before the mass meeting of citizens and it was the unanimously expressed feeling that Putnam was not large enough field to support two national banks.

The citizens want the banking facilities restored as soon as possible and believe that a plan will be worked out satisfactorily, either by the citizens' committee or by the bank directors' committee, whereby Putnam will have one national bank, owned, controlled and managed by the citizens of its own banking community.

Receiver Coffin was again closely confined to the bank Saturday with only occasional trips to the office of his attorney, State's Attorney Charles E. Searls. He was not accessible to individuals or committees during the day, so far as could be learned, but the directors' protective committee, it is understood, will seek an interview at an early date, in its effort to find out the exact conditions of the bank. The citizens' committee early in its endeavors tried to get a detailed statement of conditions, but was unsuccessful. It was given an audience with Chief Bank Examiner Bean, who urged the formation of a new bank, but stated, at that time, that he could give no definite information as to the condition of the bank. It has become the general belief that when the condition of the bank does become known, the information will come from Washington, where the report of the bank examiner will be sent.

It is a matter of regret that the Veterans of Foreign Wars post in Plainfield be compelled to disband. After the great war, some enthusiastic veterans worked hard to make arrangements and inaugurate a post in this town. Before the end of the year every veteran, who were across joined the post. The Lawton Mills gave the "Vets" the use of a room over the corporation store. The members fixed it up so as to make everything harmonious. The post purchased card tables, a pool table, and a phonograph. Every member was given a key to come and go whenever it pleased him. The past year tells a different story. The majority of the members never went near the rooms even to attend meetings. The post does not mean a great deal to many of the boys now but in years to come when they are old they will reproach themselves for having broken with the only organization that would keep them together.

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 24—The automobile owned and driven by Philip Mandell, 4 Thames street, Norwich, and a machine owned and operated by Alexander Dick Mitchell, stationed at the submarine base, were in collision at 12.30 o'clock this morning on Williams street, near Gallows Lane road. Both cars were damaged and both drivers were arrested charged with reckless driving and will be in the police court Monday morning. Zedis Collins, also a sailor stationed at the submarine base, was taken into custody charged with breach of the peace, upon complaint of Mandell and was held in bonds of $50 for trial.

Mandell was operating his car, an Oakland, from Norwich to New London. With him were Mrs. Louis Mandell, 4 Thames street, Norwich and William Fox, 28 High street, Norwich. Just after passing the Gallows Lane road the machine operated by Mitchell, in which Collins was a passenger, approached from the opposite direction. Instead of clearing, the two cars came together with great force. Mandell placed the responsibility for the crash upon Mitchell and the latter claimed that Mandell was to blame. After the occupants of the cars had alighted Collins is alleged to have attacked Mandell and knocked him down with a blow on the jaw, rendering him unconscious for several minutes. In the meantime Patrolmen Michael Dorsey and John Foley had been notified of the crash and on the arrival of the officers, Mandell, Mitchell and Collins were arrested.

Fred Wentworth and Robert Moriarty, youths, were taken into custody this evening by Captain Charles A. Pinney and Patrolman Howard Sloan, charged with beating a horse. They denied their guilt, but are being held for trial in the police court tomorrow morning. Shortly after 1 o'clock this morning, Alfred Grotti, a member of the crew of the tug Commissioner, of the fleet of the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Corporation, complained to Patrolman John Sheridan at the corner of Montauk avenue and Bank street, that he had been held up and robbed by two sailors while he was walking to the wharf of the wrecking company. Grotti declared that he was stopped by the bluejackets in front of the car barn of the Connecticut company on Montauk avenue and relieved of his money $15. Patrolman Sheridan sounded his whistle and Patrolmen Charles Hammond and Thomas Lyden and Edward Daniels responded. The officers went to Montauk avenue and at the corner of Steward streets they encountered Smith and Mathis, whom Grotti identified as the fellows who had robbed him. The tars were taken to the police station where they were searched and but only $7 was found on them.

Submarine S-3, stationed at the base, was engaged in practice stunts off the mouth of the harbor Friday afternoon and in the course of target practice a torpedo was lost. The projectile, which has a value of $10,000, was not located and it is probable that the services of a diver will be engaged in an endeavor to locate it.

William Metzermacher was arrested Saturday afternoon by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock charged with non-support of his wife, Grace and their minor children, William, 11, and Charles, 3. I. Herschowitz, proprietor of a shoe store, 656 Bank street, complained to the police last night that an Italian youth had stolen a pair of shoes from the store earlier in the evening. Patrolman John Sheridan discovered that the youth suspected was Leo Di Maggio, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archangelo DiMaggio, 23 Moore avenue. This morning Sergeant Frank Howard visited the DiMaggio home and from the father of the youth it was learned that the boy had not been at home since Thursday. Di Maggio requested that the police arrest the lad that he might be sent to the State School for Boys at Meriden. The boy visited the shoe store and inquired the price of a pair of canvas shoes and a short time after Herschowitz discovered that a pair of shoes was missing.

Another large crowd patronized the New Haven railroad excursion to New York today. The entire seating space of the 12 cars was sold out Friday.

John A. Markham, Hartford attorney, and Daniel F. Cotter, also of Hartford, both summer residents at Ocean Beach, Saturday purchased at public auction the residence of Clarence M. Shay, Neptune park, for $9,575. The sale was ordered by the superior court and James R. May, real estate broker, was appointed, commissioner to conduct the sale, as a result of a foreclosure of mortgage of $4,500 by the Mariners Savings Bank. Robert R. Congdon held a second mortgage for $3,000 and there was several other incumbrances, including delinquent taxes. The sale was opened with a bid of $7,500 which was gradually increased until the purchase price was reached. There were about 15 bidders. Messrs Markham and Cotter own residences at the shore and it is understood that they acquired the Shay property as an investment.

Bernard FaBricant and Mortimer M. Murphy, were in the police court Saturday for violation of the parking ordinance, but they were not penalized. They said they were there through spite, and there were indications that their statement was true. The men are truck operators and reside on what is called Crouch street. They declared that to call the thoroughfare a "street" was to misname it, for the highway was simply a path from Summit avenue. The men were charged with parking their trucks more than 12 inches from the curbing. The accused declared that there was no curbing in the street. They held that neighbors had made a complaint to get them into court that they might be fined. Judge Crandall, who was on the bench, suspended judgment in the cases though he cautioned the men as to the intent of the ordinance. The truckmen it is said, are in the habit of leaving their machines in the street all night. It is this that annoys the neighbors.

OLD WOODBRIDGE TAVERN BEING RESTORED BY OWNERS

(Special to the Bulletin.)

In connection with the laying of the new road through Center Groton to Old Mystic, it is interesting to local residents to know that the old house which stands at the foot of the hill below the Baptist church in Old Mystic has been purchased by Isaac Horton and Will Douglass and is being renovated and restored, as nearly as possible, to its original condition by the new comers.

The house had become weatherbeaten and passers-by often wondered what its ultimate fate might be.

In her book, Old Homes of Stonington, Miss Grace D. Wheeler states that the house was built by Dr. Dudley Woodbridge in 1760, was once a tavern and is said to have sheltered many famous men on their journeys to and from New York and Boston by stage coach. About 1820 the New London and Providence turnpike was opened and this was a part of the main avenue of travel between New York and Boston. three or four lines of three or more four-horse stage coaches being maintained daily over this route.

Back in the days when this ancient house was used as a tavern, kept by Russel Williams, with interest the arrival of these stage coaches were eager to see the passengers and hear the news of the outside world, and when the lines of coaches stopped for relay of horses and the refreshment of travelers there was much excitement and commotion. An ell at one end of the house but at right angles to it was evidently designed as a taproom and the extra cupboards and closets in hidden and out of the way places are significant of the kind of refreshment provided for travelers.

The house fronts toward the triangular village green which originally belonged with the property, but it is built so close to the side of the hill under which it stands that the windows in the rear of the house are on a level with the highway. In spite of its aged appearance on the outside, some of the beams in the interior of the house were in a fine state of preservation. In some instances where the beams had been covered in plaster it has been removed and the beams and woodwork refinished, including painting of doors and window sash, and a very old latch has been placed on the front door. The walls are being papered with Chinese paper in imitation of the original paper and the house is being fitted with antique furniture.

Sunday visitors at the South County beaches witnessed the departure from Narragansett Bay waters of the converted naval tender S. S. The large mooring mast made the craft easily distinguishable as it passed out by Block Island, Sunday afternoon.

Last week in Barre, Mass., Edmund Dean Kelsey, who was born in Stonington, and resided there until his parents, moved to Providence, and Amherst, Mass., married Miss Freda Trowt, of Barre. A Barre paper said: Miss Freda Trowt, daughter of Mrs. Merton A. Trowt of South street, Barre, and Edmund Dean Kelsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harmon J. Kelsey of Amherst, were united in marriage Saturday morning, Aug. 16, at 8.30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Rice on Summer street, by Rev. Charles M. Crooks, pastor of Barre Congregational church, with members of the two families present. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Rice.

The bride wore a white Canton crepe beaded gown, and carried a bouquet of roses. The matron of honor's gown was blue georgette. She carried sweet peas. Following the ceremony a reception was held, and refreshments served. The house was decorated with gladioli and other flowers. Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Kelsey left for a short wedding trip to Lake George.

The bride is a graduate of Barre High school, 1914, and Fitchburg Normal 1917. She taught a year at Fitchburg Normal school and the past seven years at the High Plains school, South Barre, and as principal of the Barre center school. This summer she attended Hyannis Normal school. She is a past president of the American Legion Auxiliary, a member of the Congregational church and of the Barre Woman's club.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Rindge Technical High school, Cambridge, 1912, and of Massachusetts Agricultural College 1917. He is a member of the American Legion, and a second lieutenant in the 358th Field Artillery, U. S. Organized Reserves. In 1919 he came to Barre as supervisor of work for boys on the farm at Stetson Home. After four years there, he became supervisor of the Southern Berkshire County Cow-testing association, at Pittsfield. He resigned that work in June to take the summer course in agricultural teaching at M. A. C. He has been appointed assistant principal of Bradford, Vt., academy, a school of 150 pupils, where he will teach agriculture and science. While in Barre Mr. Kelsey was adjutant of Barre Post, No. 2, A. L., and assistant scout master of Barre Boy Scouts, Troop 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelsey have a newly furnished cotage in Bradford, Vt., where they will be at home after Sept. 1.

Henry F. Walton of Pawcatuck was an automobile visitor in Newport Sunday afternoon.

Amos P. Brown, now of New Haven, returned to that city Saturday after a short visit with Westerly relatives and friends.

Mrs. George A. Golden of Westerly, while driving on the Weekapaug road last week, was in an automobile collision with a Massachusetts car, which had stopped in the roadway. The only damage was to the rear end of the Massachusetts auto.

Miss Irene F. Howard of Deep River, arrived Saturday to pass a short vacation at Watch Hill.

Louis B. Collins was a Providence visitor Saturday.

Mrs. Harry B. Agard and son, Fred H. B. Agard of Westerly are on the return trip from San Diego, Cal., and a visit of several weeks to the Pacific coast.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Murphy and Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Murphy leave Westerly today (Monday) on an automobile vacation trip, which will take them into Virginia.

Martin Davina is an duty for the Pawcatuck fire department, while changes are being made at the press works of the C. B. Cottrell & Sons company, which make the sounding of the fire whistle there uncertain. Arrangements have been made with Fire Chief George E. Egger of the Westerly department, so that if an alarm comes in on the West Side the bell signal on the Westerly engine house can be sounded for Dixon House square.

At the Savin Rock Firemen's meet Watch Hill fire department was represented by Lieutenant Hoxie, Harry Sisson and Fred Clerk.

The automobile 81-265 R. I., of P. Serullo of Bradford was run into Sunday morning 9 o'clock a quarter of a mile from Bradford. The operator of the other auto left the scene without making known his identity. Motorcycle Officer Robert Kessel, who was called to the scene was not able to locate the driver after a thorough search of the neighborhood. Serullo was accompanied by three children, two women and a man. No one was injured. The left side of the Serullo car was smashed.

The Rex truck of the American Thread company while backing into the driveway west of the Westerly station of the New Haven railroad Saturday noon jammed into the Ford beach wagon of the Weekapaug Inn, driven by John Reilly. The Ford was damaged slightly.

Sebastiano Lomberdo, 36 Liberty Street, Pawcatuck, a barber in the employ of Alfred H. Chapman on West Broad street, sustained cuts, bruises and a shaking-up, Sunday noon as he attempted to take a Shoreline electric car bound for the beach. Near the head of Main street three men ran to jump onto the trolley car after it had started. The first two men were successful but Lombardo, losing his hold fell to the pavement and it looked to the bystanders as if he might get under the wheels, but he stopped just in time. He received treatment at a Main street pharmacy.

The large bus of the Norwich Westerly line was used Sunday to convey the members of the Alert Hook and Ladder Company of Westerly on their annual outing and clambake, at Rocky Point.

GENERAL DAWES AGAIN.

When General Dawes made his speech of acceptance at Evanston he declared this campaign to be one of brass tacks—not bombast. He might also have added that it was not one of evasion.

When he spoke to the people of Maine he followed by a day a campaign speech by the democratic candidate for president, John W. Davis, who apparently believed that he had discharged a 16-pounder in the political fight when he, in an extension of his speech, denounced the Klan by calling it by name, although he had considered that there would be no mistake about his reference to it in his speech of acceptance.

This was on the eve of General Dawes' scheduled address in Maine and was a challenge which he quickly accepted, and there is no question as to where General Dawes stands in regard to that organization, or in regard to lawlessness or constitutionality. The Constitution isn't to be abridged and lawlessness should not be fought by lawlessness. Dawes in expressing his opposition didn't confine himself to generalities, he dealt with facts and conditions.

General Dawes with telling effect took up the matter of honest administration and maintained that individual dereliction does not justify the condemnation of an administration. This is fully understood in view of the insistence that the guilty be punished and the efforts put forth to that end.

When General Dawes justified the tariff rates as a protection for American labor and industry he pointed to what has long since been recognized, a fact which is no more obvious than a previous reference to the "honesty and the accomplishments of the most successful business administration of government ever people have ever had."

Not a little time was devoted to the presentation of his views regarding labor and trade unionism, which, he says, has "elevated, protected and dignified labor," and "been an element in the progress of our country."

The republican candidate for vice president is clearly living up to his words that it is not a campaign of bombast but of brass tacks. His speech is straightforward, clear and convincing.

ESTABLISH REGISTRATION.

In connection with the smuggling of immigrants and the many schemes that are being disclosed for circumventing our immigration laws, the Boston Transcript says that that "Whether steps can be taken to prevent such occurrences is a question for consideration" and believes, in the case of certain instances where Italians have been caught and other plans which have developed among them, that the Italian government should do much to place a check thereon.

Unquestionably the Italian government will be desirous of seeking that lawbreakers among its subjects are not encouraged in the violation of the laws of other countries and will do much to offset any impression that Italy is lending its support through inaction to such schemes. But when we have seen the studied efforts to break our immigration laws we need to give all possible protection to ourselves.

It would seem as if this very situation concerning smuggling of aliens had been anticipated by those who have backed legislation in behalf of causing all aliens in the country to register. It is well known that once a group of smuggled aliens get into the country there is little chance of detection, and this is particularly true if they keep out of trouble and avoid those circumstances which would involve an inquiry as to their entrance. They would have the chance to enjoy all the benefits and freedom of the country quite the same as those who have complied with the immigration requirements.

Registration for the alien who has made a proper entry into the country has no terrors. He would have the means of defending it. But when it came to the smuggled alien there would be no registration and that very fact would be first hand evidence that he had gotten into the country illegally, was a law breaker and therefore the subject for immediate deportation. In addition to the penalty of evading the laws should it be discovered, the excellent chance of being thrown out would make smuggling less attractive to the persons being smuggled.

PROTECTING THE MAIL.

Heavy are the expenses which Uncle Sam is forced to because of the determination of a certain element that it is going to make its living by robbing the United States mail.

It was only a few years ago that it was found necessary for a time to send armed guards upon certain mail trains in order to properly protect them. They were not only armed but they were ordered to shoot to kill. The establishment of such guards made it clear that those without business on a mail train were sure to invite serious trouble.

It was only a few days ago that the postoffice department rewarded an employe with a gift of $1,000 and a citation for bravery for the shooting of one robber and the driving off of another.

But regardless of such steps as the postal service has taken to provide assurance for the safe delivery of mail, it has not been so effective but what there has been shown the wisdom of providing armored cars for the carrying of the mail. This means much expense but it is cheaper to get such cars than it is to stand the losses due to the lack of them.

When the robbers bring to bear all the implements of war including poison gas the department does well to act. Even bravery doesn't count under such circumstances, and the big hauls, such as that where two million was obtained, quickly ends any hesitation concerning the expense of protection. It becomes evident that the idea of trusting to luck must be abandoned. Armored cars which will give the postal force protection and a chance to give the robbers some of their own medicine gives promise of being the most effective method of meeting the situation. The department's plan must be regarded as a good one until it has been proved otherwise.

THE CRANFORD WRECK.

Cranford, N. J., was the scene of a train wreck as well as an auto wreck as the result of an express train striking a truck loaded with crushed stone. Four deaths and a huge expense, to say nothing of the persons injured, followed. It was another of those occasions which prompted the assertion that railroad crossings should be eliminated at once.

The elimination of railroad crossings is constantly going on. There are many points where the possibility of train and auto colliding should be overcome, but the idea of ending this big problem at once is out of the question. If for no other reason the tremendous expense that would be involved is enough.

These collisions and wrecks at crossings simply emphasize the need of placing greater stress upon the danger to be anticipated there. This crossing at Cranford appears to be one where much similar trouble has been experienced. The indication is that it is not sufficiently guarded, or else some of those using it have become so calloused in crossing railroad tracks that they snap their fingers at danger. Wherever there are much used crossings the importance of gates or a flagman cannot be too much emphasized, while the same amount of effort put forth by the users of the highway to insure their own protection as is rendered in their behalf by the railroads would quickly end most of such fatalities.

FAKING.

When a New York paper this month put forth a special story telling of the existence of a large liner hovering off the coast on which there was maintained an elaborate equipment for dispensing liquor and accommodations for guests who desired to spend a short vacation there, it was accepted with a grain of salt.

It nevertheless received greater credence because of the fact that this newspaper had printed it, and done so under the belief that it was telling the truth. It recognized the many criticisms that followed but it defended the story and even chided some who went to seek the floating barroom instead of appealing direct to the writer of the story who could quickly produce the proof.

The government was naturally interested in the tale. Government vessels scoured the ocean for miles beyond the indicated point in order to get a look at the ship, but none could be found. Even that fact was countered by the proffered supposition that inasmuch as the captain of the ship had learned the authorities were seeking him he has decided to withdraw.

As time passed there were features of the story which failed to hold water. The paper began to grow suspicious of its own product. It challenged the writer to produce the proof, and when he failed, realizing the jig was up, he disappeared and forwarded a written confession that the story was a fake. Possibly there is much of the same kind of faking going on, but in this case the writer has been posted as dishonorably dismissed. He has gathered a reputation which damages his future. Not many newspapers are desirous of presenting such fakes. It's a lesson which others inclined in that direction may well take to heart. It doesn't pay.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Before attempting to stitch heavy fabric such as canvas or khaki on the machine rub the hems and seams with hard yellow soap and the needle will penetrate easily.

Sponge brass chandeliers with hot vinegar and salt, rinse with soapsuds and polish with flannel or chamois moistened with a few drops of machine oil.

To remove coffee and tea stains from linen rub with a little borax and soak for half an hour in cold water, then hold over the mouth of a deep dish and pour boiling water over the stains.

Fruit stains may be removed from the hands by rubbing them with a ripe tomato or juice of a lemon.

A small piece of apple cooked in a meat pie or stew will make the meat tender.

Windows and mirrors may be washed with newspapers squeezed dry out of cold water containing a little ammonia, and wiped with dry newspapers crumpled until soft.

You can slice hard boiled eggs without crumbling them if you use a knife dipped in boiling water and wiped dry.

Grass stains may be removed from white goods by sponging with ammonia water. For silk, alcohol or chloroform is better.

A sliced onion placed in a basin of cold water will absorb the smell of new paint in a room.

Never trim a lamp wick with scissors. It is almost impossible to cut it clean and straight. Just rub the burned part off with an old cloth.

SHAWL CAPE IN FAVOR

The shawl cape is increasing in favor. On the coat-frock it is often of plaid to contrast with the frock itself and frequently it is in kasha, no matter what the frock material.

BEST FOR MAYONNAISE

A fork is the best implement to use when making mayonnaise dressing. A beater is likely to cause the egg and oil to separate, while a fork will thoroughly mix the ingredients.

A WORD ABOUT IODINE

Iodine should not be used when it has been kept for any length of time. This is because the alcohol in which iodine is dissolved evaporates rapidly and the tincture thus becomes concentrated and the strength increased. It is best to buy iodine in small quantities and to use it sparingly.

NEW NECKWEAR

Organdy neckwear has come into its own once more. We see many delightful treatments of this becoming material. A wide collar and cuffs of white organdy have tiny wands of green faggoted together and attached to the collar. The bands are of three different tones of the green ranging from light to dark.

CLEANS MESH BAGS

USE HOT VINEGAR

MEASURING MOLASSES

To measure molasses quickly, dip the measuring cup or spoon in scalding water and the molasses will pour out quickly.

CARE OF MAH JONGG TILES

Owners of mah jongg sets should keep the tiles in flaked camphor. A small white worm bores into bamboo and will ruin the set completely unless there is camphor protection.

DRYING RUBBER BOOTS

Newspapers crumpled up and put in the feet of rubber boots help dry them. Put the boots in a warm place and renew the paper when it gets damp.

IMPROVISED HAT BOX

A hat box that is truly ornamental may be made by covering an ordinary box with wall paper or chints in an interesting design and using a bright colored ribbon bow on top.

LAUNDRY HINTS

A good way to sprinkle your clothes is to dip a whisk broom in water and use it instead of distributing the water by hand. It is a quicker method.

To clear muddy water for laundry use, stir in a scant tablespoon each of alum and borax, dissolved in hot water.

To facilitate the washing of dirty clothes soak them in water containing a small quantity of kerosene and borax.

Water that is strongly impregnated with iron is apt to stain clothes that are washed in it. This may be counteracted by adding a heaping teaspoon of washing soda for every gallon of water.

A piece of heavy cotton felt such as is used for covering a dining room table is the best thing to use as an ironing cloth for embroidery. Fold it in two and fasten the edges together. The embroidery should be laid on this, right side down, then covered with a thin damp cloth and ironed with a moderately hot iron. The embroidered parts will stand out beautifully if treated in this way.

MOIST HEAT

A double boiler is splendid for warming biscuits, rolls and muffins, particularly those a trifle dried out.

FOR THE BRIDE

If you are new at cooking, measure and weigh accurately all ingredients and your first attempts will encourage you to further efforts.

NOW THEY USE CANES

At first thought one might not suppose a brilliantly painted cane an absolute necessary for the bathing girl. Yet this cane has other uses than that of beating off the savage starfish and clams; its handle is full of the powder, dry handkerchief, rouge and lipstick so vital, these days, on the beach.

WHEN JELLY BOTHERS

When your jelly will not jell do not turn it back into the pan to cook again, but take a large dripping pan and half fill it with water. Set your undisturbed glasses of jelly in it, not close enough to touch, put in a hot oven and let them bake until sufficiently jellied. This usually takes about three-quarters of an hour.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Among the semipicture hats shown in Paris today is the mousquetaire. It is a wide chapeau with a brim turning up a bit across the front. And, respite the warm weather, it is often trimmed with a rosette of fur.

It is remarkable to see the slender lines that may be achieved for stout figures by the ingenious use of drapes and panels.

A touch of scarlet brightens the majority of white, gray, black and navy blue gowns that are seen, and it is particularly liked with plaids and checks.

A dark blue silk dress that is extremely striking has large white roses upon the surface. These roses are combined with leaves so that the motif formed is triangular.

The little hat, to which fashion still clings despite summer sun, comes down now way over the eyebrows. It is trimmed sometimes with uncurled ostrich fronds which hang over the eyes and down to the cheeks.

Forecasts of autumn styles made today emphasize the note of simplicity. With this simplicity goes a tendency toward the strictly tailored, but also, for a change, thought is given to the more mature woman, instead of the boyish young girl.

Suede finished materials are new this season and are very lovely in color and texture.

COMING IN AGAIN

A considerable change is predicted in footwear. The oxford is coming in again for late summer and for autumn. Heels will not be very high, the Cuban being most often seen.

HAT FOR MIDSEASON

For midseason the little hat is either all black or black and white. One model is in white taffeta, almost a cloche shape except for its very high beehive crown, which is ornamented with a large flat bow of black velvet across the front, held in place by a white buckle.

ABOUT WOMEN

Every Tibet woman has from three to five husbands.

Forty per cent of the attendance at boxing clubs in Los Angeles is composed of women.

Holland has seven women members of parliament and each one belongs to a different political party.

Though she is less than 30 years of age, Miss Stella Akin of Savannah, Ga., is an established criminal lawyer.

Women prisoners in the California State prisons are allowed the same tobacco and cigarette rations as the men prisoners.

RECIPES

Fried Celery Cubes: Choose some large, firm stalks of celery, cut about two inches in length, then dip in egg and cracker crumbs, and fry in deep fat, or saute in butter. Serve with a brown sauce. These are good served with fowl, creamed fish or with oysters.

Canning Summer Squash: Use only firm, fresh squash. Wash and sterilize jars and covers in boiling water 20 minutes. Wash the squash removing bad places. Cut in slices half an inch thick. Put in cheese cloth bags and boil five minutes. Pack jars to within three quarters of an inch of the top. To each quart of summer squash, add one teaspoonful of salt. Fill to overflowing with previously boiled warm water. Put on rubbers and covers, placing clamps over covers without fastening. Put on a rack in a boiler and with sufficient water to cover, boil gently 25 minutes. Remove jars, and let stand a few minutes before clamping permanently. Store in cool, dry place.

Wafer Sandwiches: These are delicious, but should be made only a short time before they are to be eaten, and they require careful handling. Whip some double cream until thick, sweeten and flavor with vanilla essence or other flavoring, then stir into the cream some finely chopped walnuts or hazel nuts or preserved ginger or pineapple. Spread this on some wafers, cover each with another and press gently together.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

LOST, ONE OCEAN CURRENT

The west coast of Greenland is always less icy than the east coast, where the supply ship for the American world flyers has had difficulty in penetrating the ice floes. But Western Greenland is even freer from ice this year, for the great Labrador current seems to have gotten lost or at least to have been greatly slowed up.

Cultivation of lemons in London gardens and relegation of Washington's climate to Boston are the somewhat startling possibilities suggested, if the disappearance of the cooling Polar stream reported by oceanographers of the United States Coast Guard Service should be permanent.

"A project was framed some years ago for producing artificially such a revolution of climate in eartern North America and nearly all Europe which nature is apparently presenting without man's millions and toil," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from their headquarters at Washington, D. C.

"Product of vast melting ice fields, the seasons for uncounted years, has swept down from snowbound Baffin and Hudson ... through Davis strait between Newfoundland and Greenland. ... over the Grand ... one of the world's greatest ... spinning over the bank's edge near the ocean-liner path, either mingling with the Gulf stream or sliding under it, seeping down toward the Equator along the ocean bottom. A small offshoot flowed through Belle Isle Straits between Newfoundland and the tip of Labrador and, joining the St. Lawrence, hugged the Nova Scotian and East Atlantic shores, only completely fusing with the mighty Gulf Stream off the Carolinas.

"This 'Cabot Stream' gave New England the same climatic temperatures as the British Isles, although Edinburgh, for example, is as much nearer the North Pole than New York, as New York is north of Havana, Cuba.

"Certain scientists planned a great dike across Belle Isle Straits diverting the chill waters to mid-ocean. Others proposed stretching a great cable over the Grand Banks to cause a sand-bar which was expected to confine the Arctic outflow to a deep depression near Green land where it could flow under the Gulf Stream without cooling it and on into the Sargasso sea. Undiluted the Gulf Stream might then reach English and Scandinavian shores even warmer than it is now, wafting on its waves a climate comparable to that of southern Japan for the British Isles.

"Now nature seems to be putting these dreams to test! Ebb of the Labrador Current has left the great reservoir of the Great Banks water from 6 to 7 degrees warmer than normal. The vastness of this increase is measured by the fact that it takes about 3,300 times as much heat to raise a given body water 1 degree as it does a similar quantity of air. Generally 350 icebergs float past Newfoundland during April, May and June. There were fewer than a dozen during the three months this year! Coast Guard ... searching for the lost Labrador Current suggested two possibilities. The underwater ridge between Greenland and North America may have been thrown up by earthquake action forcing the melting Arctic waters out past Spitsbergen or through the Bering Sea. A dam of ice may have lodged on this same barrier producing a similar effect.

"Temperature is but one strand of the net of contemporary climate which may be torn in the Labrador Current accident. The mid-Atlantic Ocean current junction has supposedly given rise to a permanent low pressure spot near Iceland. With the Junction vanished, the 'low,' which guides storms to Europe, might be displaced and send the storms which track across America to a different European port. If the storms which track across Denmark and through Russia should by any chance be wiped out catastrophies even greater than the Volga famine might occur.

"Massachusetts might even be compelled to make boots and shoes sacred, instead of the famous cod, if the stream should not turn up. How the matter is to turn out will be indicated by whethere the ocean on the Grand Banks stays green or turns blue. Scientists have determined that plankton, minute life in sea water necessary for fish, thrive in the Labrador Current and give it a characteristic green color. The Gulf Stream, on the other hand is more blue, the desert color of the oceans, and is less rich in plankton. Even if the halibut, pollock and cod of the Grand Banks could stand the change in temperature, loss of their full dinner pail might be more serious.

"How much the Gulf Stream can replace the Labrador Current is another puzzler for scientists, because impelled by the prevailing west wind and slipping under the rotating earth, it tends to drift toward Europe. Ponce de Leon searcher for eternal youth, discovered the Gulf Stream off Florida where it attains the speed of the Mississippi river between the Arkansas and the Ohio rivers, rushing along with a volume equal as one of his many side lines, determined the limits of the Gulf Stream. His researches enabled the American privateers to outmaneuver the British and help win the Revolutionary war."

Willys Refused to Recognize Failure

As a boy, John N. Willys dreamed of being a millionaire. He gave up school and worked hard that he might make money, but often failure threatened to shatter his hopes.

While attending public school in Canandaigua, N. Y., where he was born, he and another boy ran a laundry, then sold it, clearing profit of $200. Money-making looked easy. Willys secured the agency for a bicycle, left school at 17 and opened a bicycle shop. Sales were many when on credit, but the riders neglected to pay, and he had to go out of business.

Next a salesman for a rubber concern, he saved $500 and bought a part ownership in a sporting goods store at Elmira, N. Y., placing a manager in charge while he continued on the road. He thought that now he would be a capitalist, but the manager ran the business to the verge of bankruptcy, and Willys had to take charge. He made a specialty of bicycles, became a wholesaler, and before he was 27 he did a business of $500,000 a year.

Becoming enthusiastic over automobiles, he contracted to sell all of the 500 cars to be put out in a year by the Overland factory at Indianapolis. After selling the product, he found the company ready to go into the hands of a receiver and all his funds tied up in it. It was during the financial disturbance of 1907, money was scarce and over Sunday he had to commandeer enough funds from the hotel restaurant and bar to meet the $350 pay roll shortage. He kept the plant running, bought the company's stock and soon was president, secretary, treasurer general manager and salesman. In the following year the Overland company made 4000 automobiles at a profit of nearly $1,000,000.

Success came rapidly. The Pope-Toledo plant at Toledo, Ohio, was purchased. Other concerns were added, and before he was 45 Willys was a multi-millionaire at the head of six plants and employing 20,000 people.

Then the World war came, and the financial troubles that followed. Willys' companies suffered with many others, and his struggle was herculean. Now it's reported that he is coming back stronger than ever.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

There is at least one landlord in the country who does not object to families with children. He is the Rt. Rev. Joseph B. Cheshire, who has built an apartment building in Raleigh and announced his intention to make a reduction in rent to couples having children. Bishop Cheshire is head of the diocese of North Carolina and one of the best known prelates of the Protestant Episcopal church. He is a native of North Carolina and a graduate of Trinity college in that state. Law was his first choice of a practice for some years after being admitted to the bar in 1872. Then he decided upon a career in the church, received his ordination in 1880 and for some years filled pulpits in Charlotte and other cities. In 1893 he was consecrated coadjutor bishop of North Carolina and two year later succeeded the bishopric. Bishop Cheshire is the author of a history of the Protestant Episcopal church and of various other works on local and church history.

Stories That Recall Others

Pair from Rhode Island

The impulse to make a game of identifying the state license plates of the many tourists' automobiles passed was being indulged in by a party of traveling men. They were getting enough fun out of it to relieve the monotony, when suddenly there appeared something different in the way of a vehicle. It was a small truck drawn by a pair of mules. As soon as the stubborn fellows hove into sight one of the party exclaimed, "That pair must be from Rhode Island."

OBITUARY

Miss Lizzie Levey.

The death of Miss Elizabeth Levey of Town street occurred Saturday morning about 1 o'clock, at Backus hospital, where she was taken for treatment, less than 24 hours before.

Miss Levey, who was the daughter of the late Edward and Elizabeth Nugent Levy, was born in New York and came to Norwich when about seven years old. The early part of her life she lived in the households of some of the prominent families of Norwich. Her mother, who died many years ago, was an invalid for years, during which time she was devotedly cared for by her faithful daughter. From the anxiety and stress at that time, Miss Levey's health was impaired. The family then resided on Town street, which location has since been her home. She was a member of the Sacred Heart parish, Norwich Town. For some time past she has been a member of the McGarry family, residing in the same house for a great many years.

Miss Nellie McGarry, who recently assumed the ownership of the house and her aunt, Miss Mary Ann McGarry, with whom Miss Levey resided, extended their hospitality to her and rendered every possible kindness, as did other friends and neighbors.

Although her condition was serious only about two weeks, it was deemed advisable to remove her to the hospital which, through kindness of interested friends, was done Friday morning.

A brother, George Levey, died about thirty-five years ago, and at the death of her mother a few years later, Miss Lizzie was left on her own resources, being the last of her family. She was kind hearted, always willing to do anyone a favor that lay in her power. She was especially attached to her friends and those friends were very considerate and thoughtful of her.

Michael F. Murphy

Michael F. Murphy died August 20th in Los Angeles, California, after a short illness. Mr. Murphy spent the early years of his life in Preston. His wife Ellen Hayes of Norwich, died several years ago. He was a member of Company B, First Connecticut Volunteer Infantry, Spanish American War.

Mr. Murphy is survived by one brother Peter R. Murphy of Santa Barbara, Cal., and two sisters, Mrs. P. J. Lyons of Hartford and Mrs. Ellen Sullivan of East Hartford with whom he formerly made his home.

George M. Reynolds

After an illness of five months the life of George M. Reynolds came to a close August 15th at his home in Oak Park, Ill. He was born in Norwich, October 13, 1846 the son of George and Susan Frances Reynolds. He entered the service of the Western Union Telegraph Co., October 16, 1862 and was retired on a pension January 1, 1923, after over 60 years of service.

In 1870, in Norwich, he was united in marriage with Anna Maynard of Preston, who passed away in 1882. In Chicago, Ill., in 1888 he married Eva Willets, who survives him with two daughters, Mabel and Caroline of Oak Park. He also leaves one brother Fred Reynolds of Providence, R. I., and a cousin, Herman S Case of Norwich.

Judgement may also be entered for the plaintiff to recover nominal damages in the sum of $10.

REVEALING HOUR COMES IN EVERY MAN'S LIFE

The Man Who Did Not Know Himself, was the subject of the sermon selected by Rev. Peter C. Wright of New York City, formerly of this city, who occupied his former pulpit Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church.

Peter's case is that of a man who did not know himself, said Rev. Mr. Wright, but Christ knew Peter and told him that he would deny Him. There are many people who do not know themselves, but yet, in every man's life there comes a time, the revealing hour, the hour of the test, when the true character and nature of the man is revealed.

Robert E. Lee was one of the outstanding good men in the Civil War, although many people may think he chose unwisely. When the time came, Robert E. Lee chose to stand by his state; he cast his lot with the confederacy. His character was revealed on that day.

Billy Sunday revealed his true character when he refused an offer of $2500 to play baseball and took the salary of $700 as a Y. M. C. A. secretary. That was his revealing hour.

When Peter and John were thrown into prison and told to stop preaching in His name; they decided it was better to obey God than man. The stamp of their character was revealed at that time, it was their testing hour.

Today men are more prone to ignore the assaults of evil and when something is done, some evil thing, mentality, emotional trouble and a screw loose somewhere is claimed as an excuse for their act. Is there no human being in the world today with a conscience? Is there no accountability left in the world today? I tell you that it is not well for the world to call every act of devilry a disease, resulting from emotions. Is there no conscience left in man? Remember the words of Paul who said, "Wicked man that I am I am doing evil when I know better."

Let us not judge a man at his best, or at his worst. Let us judge him in the main. May men reach the point when they can withstand the assault of evil.

We should thank God that we live in America, in this glorious country. But stop, in 1910 there were 50,000 divorces, in 1916 there were 100,000 divorces and in 1922 there were 150,000 divorces. Just think of it, 300,000 people separated and sent out in the world, the most sacred vows broken. Two and one half million children robbed of their inherent right to enjoy the love of their parents and the parents robbed of true fatherhood and motherhood.

Evil is always assaulting us, spiritually, nationally and socially. Never before has the liquor traffic managers struck at humanity as damnably as they are doing today. Throughout the country people are beginning to follow the rule of obey the laws you like and break those you don't. This spirit has even crept into the best families, the so-called good people are doing it more and more, they are teaching contrary to the morals of the younger generation.

Man doesn't know his danger and often times becomes angry if we try to warn him. There is however the Master's personal attention for everyone, there is His help for you in the hour of your temptation. It is indeed a great thing for the fallen to rise, but it is far better never to have fallen. Men and women, go out and meet the assaults of evil, know the one power to help. Jesus Christ has the marvelous capacity to aid us, to make us all a powerful influence for God and His kingdom.

NORTH STREET CEMENT DAMAGED BY WATER

Water from the skating pond at Mohegan Park, after the shuttle of the dam had been opened by Superintendent F. W. Krohn, washed out about 40 feet of newly laid cement on North Street Friday.

Superintendent Krohn made an investigation as far as Baltic street, but failed to notice men from the street department engaged in laying cement for a new sewer on North street. Believing everything clear, Mr. Krohn let the water out of the pond and the newly laid cement was soon washed out and destroyed.

According to the latest yearbook, the Congregationalists in the United States have seventy-five women who have been ordained as ministers, of whom seventeen are in sole charge of churches.
